N.Y. Twin Towers To Be Tallest

NEW YORK (AP)—Plans were unveiled Saturday for a $350 million world trade center whose twin towers of 110 stories would be the tallest buildings in the world.

The twin towers of gleaming metal would soar 100 feet higher than the Empire State Building, which is 1,250 feet from the street to the tip of its mooring mast. A 222-foot television transmitting tower atop the Empire State Building gives it a technical height of 1,472 feet.

The scale model of the 16 acre trade center was unveiled at a news conference by New york Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Mayor Thomas J. Whelan of Jersey City, N.J.

They were joined by Chairman S. Sloan Colt and Vice Chairman James C. Kellogg III, of the Port of New York Authority.

The trade center will be located on the lower West Side of Manhattan, overlooking the New York, New Jersey harbor.

The center is to provide a unified community in the port of New York for America's export import business, and act as a clearing house for the handling, development and expansion of such business.

Sen. Goldwater Bids For South Conservatives

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C., (AP) —Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater accused President Johnson Saturday of "an attempt to divide Americans" with his plan to fight poverty. He said the Republican party is the only home for conservative Southern Democrats.

Goldwater, in the South for the first time in his bid for the GOP presidential nomination, told a party fund - raising breakfast that "regardless of who is the Republican candidate, we're going to make gains in the South" in next November's election.

FOR FREEDOM

"The historic position of the Southern Democrat has always been for freedom of the individual," he said. "They have no place to go except to the Republican party."

He attacked Johnson's three-year billion-dollar plan to combat poverty as an echo of the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"It was F.D.R. who divided the people up, pigeon-holed them and made us hypenhated Americans," Goldwater said. "Out where I come from we're just plain Americans."

The senator didn't spell it out, but he clearly was talking about economic divisions among Americans.

"If anybody has done anything to put people against people in this country, it's been the Democratic party over the last 30 years," he told a news conference.

Goldwater told the news conference the only way to attack poverty in the United States is to put people to work—and the way to do that is the free enterprise system.

"I don't believe we have a

MELVIN BELLI, RUBY'S ATTORNEY . . . Wants To Offer Evidence

Ruby Case Attorneys To Argue

DALLAS, (AP) — Jack Ruby's chief attorney says he wants to present evidence Monday to show that Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President John F. Kennedy and killed patrolman J. D. Tippit. But there is a question whether he will be permitted to do it.

Oswald was charged with murder in both deaths before he was slain by Ruby in the basement of the Dallas City Hall. Rudy was then charged with murder and is held without bond.

The legal point directly at issue Monday is whether Ruby is entitled to be freed on bond.

Before deciding this point, District Court Judge Joe B. Brown apparently will have to rule on the admissibility in the bond hearing of evidence bearing on

Wants Swift Passage For '64 Growth

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson will prod Congress anew Monday for the $11 billion tax cut. He will predict a big 1964 expansion in America's economy, if the bill is passed swiftly.

This word came Saturday from close advisers to the President. They gave some of the figures he will use in his economic report to Congress, to be released Monday noon.

GNP RECORD

He will tell the legislators that the Gross National Product —the sum of all goods and services—hit a record annual rate of $600 billion in the last quarter of 1963.

This means that if the last quarter figure had applied to all of 1963, the nation's output for the year would have been $600 billion. Actually it was $585 because of lower output in earlier quarters.

The Gross National Product, the President's economists say, has scored a record rise of $100 billion in less than three years. And, they say, profits and labor earnings both hit highs in fourth quarter 1963.

But Johnson will declare that these records are not enough—that an early tax cut is vital to reduce the "intolerable" unemployment rate—5½ per cent of the labor force—and to get factories operating well above the current rate of 87 per cent of capacity.

With the tax cut, the President will say, the federal government will give the economy a greater fiscal stimulus in 1964 than in any previous year in peacetime history.

The President's message, to be accompanied by a report of his Council of Economic Advisers, also will deal with price, wage and monetary policies.

Tax Cut Rates Of Individuals To Be Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $8.8 billion in tax cuts for individuals voted by the House seems likely to be retained without change when the Senate Finance Committee finishes with the big tax bill this week.

This was the concensus of several members of the committee interviewed as the group completed its work on all sections of the House-passed measure except individual rates.

A Treasury official told a reporter privately that "we believe the rate schedule in the bill is the fairest that can be worked out. It has the strong support of many diverse groups in the economy. We do not believe it should be changed."

The heart of the 310-page bill is the $8.8 billion in cuts for individuals and the $2.3-billion reduction for corporations.

The average reduction for individuals is 18.8 per cent although the cuts will range from 30 per cent for those in the lowest taxable bracket to as little as 15.5 per cent for a taxpayer with $38,000 of taxable income.

The Treasury figures that a four-person family using the standard deduction and having $4,000 in annual wage or salary income would get a $100 tax cut. The $6,000 family would get $150, the $7,500 family $191, the $12,000 family $344, and the $20,000 family $696.

VIET NAM FIGHTING

Viet Cong Blasts Another 'Copter

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Communist gunners downed another U.S. helicopter and fought on Saturday against American supported Vietnamese troops trying to wipe out Red bases in the Mekong River delta.

The flagship of the U.S. 7th Fleet, the cruiser Providence, docked at Saigon on a good will visit while blood flowed in the battle about 60 miles south of this city.

Two American crewmen, a Vietnamese and a British observer were listed as missing and believed dead in a helicopter incident at the mouth of the Mekong.

SIX ABOARD

They were among six men aboard a rocket-armed UHIA that cruised the shoreline in support of a Vietnamese landing.

Witnesses said Communist fire apparently knocked off the tail rotor. The helicopter fell a mile out in the South China Sea. Other helicopters, speeding to the rescue, fished out the U.S. copilot and a gunner, apparently unhurt. No bodies were recovered.

Confirmation of the loss of the two Americans would increase to 101 the roll of U.S. combat fatalities and to 175 the deaths from all causes since the United States stepped up its military assistance against the Red rebels two years ago.

A UHIA was destroyed with four U.S. crewmen and a Vietnamese observer over the Mekong Friday.

A persistent fire fight was reported at dusk at the sandy tip of Kien Hoa Province, part of a 100-square-mile area that government forces hoped to clear of Red training camps and supply depots within a few days. A dozen wounded were flown out.

In the center of the province, a Vietnamese Ranger company fought its way out of a Communist encirclement that threatened its destruction Friday night. The company's casualties were eight dead and 20 wounded.

The visit of the Providence was a pointed reminder of the naval power the United States could throw into Viet Nam's war if Red Chinese or Communist Vietnamese decided to step up strongly their support of the guerrillas.

Aboard the 10,670-ton warship two giant Terrier missiles were at the ready and Marines held battle stations on its four-hour cruise up the Saigon River from the South China Sea. B26 fighter-bombers and an observation plane provided air cover against any possible Communist attack from the banks.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge boarded the Providence downstream by helicopter and conferred two hours with the 7th Fleet commander. Vice Adm. Thomas H. Moorer. The vessel is to remain at Saigon three days.

Rains Menace Crop In Cuba

HAVANA (AP)—Heavy winter rains are menacing the new sugar crop on which Cuba's economic life depends.

Officials still express confidence the 1964 yield will exceed last year's 3.8 million tons, the lowest in modern Cuban history.

But the harvest, launched only two weeks ago, is complicated by flooding of some cane fields and damage to unpaved roads that slows transportation of cane to the mills.

Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, president of the Agrarian Reform Institute, touched on this natural hazard in a statement published in Havana newspapers Saturday.

White Youth Convicted Of Negro Death

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A white youth, Larry Joe Sims, 16, was convicted Saturday of second degree manslaughter in the Sept. 15 shooting of a Negro boy. The jury fixed his sentence at seven months in the Jefferson County jail.

Circuit Judge Wallace Gibson deferred sentencing until next Thursday in order to permit defense attorneys to decide whether to appeal or apply for probation.

Sims, charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Virgil Ware, 13, was permitted to remain free under $10,000 bond until that time.

SHOT OFF BIKE

Ware was shot off the handle bars of his brother's bicycle in the hours of racial tension which followed the bombing of the 16th Street Baptist church. Four Negro girls died in the blast.

Another youth, Michael Lee Farley, 16, also is charged with first-degree murder in the same shooting. Farley, who testified in Sims' behalf, goes on trial March 9.

Sims accepted the jury's verdict with the same relative calm that he maintained throughout the trial, which began last Monday.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Sims, broke down and sobbed when the verdict was read by jury foreman John D. Bullock.

The jury deliberated for three and one-half hours.

After two hours of deliberation, Bullock asked Judge Gibson to differentiate the difference between first-degree manslaughter and first-degree murder.

At the request of other jurors, Gibson also read the law on second-degree murder and second-degree manslaughter.

Sims testified Friday that he

Plan Proposed To Warning On Cigarette Packs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The compulsory branding of every cigarette pack with a danger warning was proposed Saturday by the Federal Trade Commission.

A public hearing called for March 16 also will consider the prohibition of any cigarette advertising which claims that smoking promotes good health or physical well being, that it is not a health hazard or that one brand is less dangerous than another.

A third proposed the rule would bar from cigarette advertising statements about the quantity of smoke ingredients, such as tars and nicotine, unless the amounts are verified by tests conducted under government standards and procedures.

The commission identified its proposed regulations with the call for remedial action made by the federal report on smoking and health issued by the surgeon general last Saturday.

The FTC said it has "reason to believe that much current cigarette advertising may violate the laws" prohibiting false, misleading, deceptive or unfair advertising of products that may endanger human health or safety.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla., (AP) —The Relay 2 communications satellite, a sophisticated space switchboard, is scheduled for launching here Tuesday and ground stations on four continents plan to beam transmission experiments to it.

The launching will be one of three major space shots scheduled here in a nine-day period. The first two-stage test firing of the Saturn superrocket is set for Jan. 27, and the Ranger 6 spacecraft is ready to take off Jan. 30 to snap closeup pictures of the moon.

DOWNGRADES CARRIERS

McNamara Sees Undersea Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Looking to 1970, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara believes that the greatest increase in military threats from the Soviet Union will be in nuclear powered submarines and long range reconnaissance and attack capabilities.

That is why, McNamara explained to a critical congressional atomic committee, he decided against spending $160 million more to provide nuclear power for the Navy's new aircraft carrier for which Congress voted $280 million for conventional power.

In testimony taken in October and November and released in censored form Saturday by the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, McNamara stressed these points:

POINTS

1. Large aircraft carriers, pride of Navy admirals and aviators, have a relatively low priority in over - all defense needs. The secretary ranked the controversial new carrier in seventh place.

2. The big increase in costs of fighting ships "is pricing the Navy out of the market. There are other ways of doing these jobs."

3. A nuclear - powered Navy has advantages over other power but the added costs must be reduced.

4. The United States could afford to spend as much as $80 billion a year on defense—compared to recent costs of about $50 billion—but the secretary thinks this is unnecessary.

Sharp differences with McNamara's views on nuclear power for the future Navy and the strategic value of aircraft carriers were voiced by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the committee.

McNamara announced last Oct. 25 that the new aircraft carrier would use conventional propulsion. The closed committee hearings followed on Oct. 30 and 31, with naval officials and admirals urging a shift to nuclear power, and McNamara rejecting this at a closed session Nov. 13.

Pastore held that the Pentagon should ask Congress to reverse its previous decision and order nuclear power for the new carrier.

He asked also that all future major surface ships for the Navy use nuclear power.

McNamara said defense planning must meet probable future threats and argued that between now and 1970 "you can be fairly sure of two things":

Lucky Chutist Survives Fall Of 2,500 Feet

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—A parachutist fell 2,500 feet with a partially opened 'chute Saturday and survived.

John German, president of the St. Louis Parachute Club, suffered serious injuries while making a jump in the vicinity of Lobmaster Field near St. Louis.

Bergman, about 30, leaped from the plane at 5,000 feet. Witnesses said, he apparently tried to open his parachute at 2,500 feet but it failed to open properly.

Bergman plummeted down at a fast clip, but the partly opened parachute saved his life. He landed in a wheat field.

U.S. Avoided 'Bloodbath' In Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eyewitness accounts given to U.S. officials indicated Saturday that U.S. forces exercised great care not to shoot to kill in the mob violence which erupted in Panama on Jan. 9.

The eyewitness version was made available to newsmen by Washington officials. The U.S. policymakers have been concerned with damage to the U.S. image from allegations of high-handed action in Panama.

DEATHS QUESTIONABLE

Whether any Panamanians were killed by U.S. action in the period covered—from about 4:40 p.m. until after midnight that Thursday—was not shown in these accounts. Later reports listed four U.S. soldiers and about 20 Panamanians dead from the violence which continued into the weekend.

One hearsay account, received here separately, alleged that a Panamanian doctor's autopsies at Santo Tomas Hospital indicated that six of the Panamanians had been killed by Panamanian rather than U.S. shooting.

According to this still-unsubstantiated report, the six had been shot in the back and the majority of their wounds inflicted by bullets of a size not used by U.S. forces. Hard evidence was lacking and U.S. officials were unable to confirm it at this time.

'HOT LINE' SNIPPED

Prankster 'Severs' Red-U.S. Relations

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — A prankster or thief, but not a saboteur, clipped in two the Moscow-Washington "hot line" set up last year to prevent an accidental atomic war between the world's nuclear giants, Finnish police said Saturday.

Police said someone cut a 20-foot chunk from the telegraph cable in the early hours of Jan. 9, west of Helsinki.

The cable, running above ground from Helsinki to a relay station at nearby Porkkala, carries the direct teleprinter "hot line" channel between the White House and the Kremlin and 11 other communication channels.

After months of negotiation last year, the "hot line" was connected between the capitals of the world's two major powers to give America's President and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev a means of instant communication to avoid the chance that some error or miscalculation might touch off a nuclear war.

Police said the cable carrying the "hot line" was cut Jan. 9 and repaired several hours later. They said postal authorities, who manage the cable, were hurriedly called out to reroute communications. Technicians had to throw several switches along the 15-mile stretch between Helsinki and Porkkala to repair the break.

Presumably, the cable break did not interrupt "hot line" communication between Washington and Moscow. There is an alternative "hot line" circuit elsewhere in Europe which was switched on while the circuit through Finland was repaired.

Finnish authorities said the cable cutting was an act of mischief or theft, but not sabotage.

Mild Weather Stays In Area

The unexpected dividend of a "spring weather spell" in January will continue today and Monday with temperatures remaining mild and skies partly cloudy.

PLEASANT

Freezing temperatures will be taboo today and Monday, with lows expected to go only to 46 and 50 degrees, and a pleasant "short sleeve" temperature of 66 to 70 for today's high. The top reading for Saturday reached 70 with the low recorded at 34. Pleasant southerly winds will blow at speeds of 5 to 15 miles per hour today.

SOOTHING INCANTATIONS

Yoga Fails To Faze Dane Tobacco Kick

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—The smoking habit kept its grip on Denmark Saturday despite an attempt by the state radio to talk the nation out of it with the dreamy voice of a yoga expert.

A radio spokesman said the broadcast late Friday night prompted "several phone calls and a trickle of telegrams." Most of the callers were pleased and hoped to stop smoking permanently, the spokesman said, but some others were irate.

The broadcast was made by Poul Kofoed, an adviser on yoga and other methods of self - control, who claims to have cured many cigarette addicts of the habit. For 20 minutes Kofoed wooed listeners with a sing-song string of comforting thoughts and ghastly warnings.

"When you wake up in the morning," he murmured, "you'll feel comfortable, more energetic, your nerves will be relaxed, you will be purified, suffer no more restlessness. You won't want to smoke, you won't need it.

"But" — the dreamy voice hardened—"if you smoke tomorrow you'll feel the poisoners pouring into your body again, you'll be dizzy, nauseated, your stomach will ache and your heart will pound.

The newspaper Ekstrabladet reported that it studied the reactions of one Copenhagen family throughout the broadcast. The father worked himself into a fury, lit a cigarette, went to bed, fell asleep and burned a hole in the mattress.

Kofoed's program was put on with the full authority of state radio executives and with the approval of the Danish police, who ruled that it involved no risk of actual hypnotism and would underline the hazards spelled out in the recent American report.

Plan Proposed To Warning On Cigarette Packs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The compulsory branding of every cigarette pack with a danger warning was proposed Saturday by the Federal Trade Commission.

A public hearing called for March 16 also will consider the prohibition of any cigarette advertising which claims that smoking promotes good health or physical well being, that it is not a health hazard or that one brand is less dangerous than another.

A third proposed the rule would bar from cigarette advertising statements about the quantity of smoke ingredients, such as tars and nicotine, unless the amounts are verified by tests conducted under government standards and procedures.

The commission identified its proposed regulations with the call for remedial action made by the federal report on smoking and health issued by the surgeon general last Saturday.

The FTC said it has "reason to believe that much current cigarette advertising may violate the laws" prohibiting false, misleading, deceptive or unfair advertising of products that may endanger human health or safety.

Relay 2 Slated For Launching

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla., (AP) —The Relay 2 communications satellite, a sophisticated space switchboard, is scheduled for launching here Tuesday and ground stations on four continents plan to beam transmission experiments to it.

The launching will be one of three major space shots scheduled here in a nine-day period. The first two-stage test firing of the Saturn superrocket is set for Jan. 27, and the Ranger 6 spacecraft is ready to take off Jan. 30 to snap closeup pictures of the moon.

DOWNGRADES CARRIERS

McNamara Sees Undersea Threat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Looking to 1970, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara believes that the greatest increase in military threats from the Soviet Union will be in nuclear powered submarines and long range reconnaissance and attack capabilities.

That is why, McNamara explained to a critical congressional atomic committee, he decided against spending $160 million more to provide nuclear power for the Navy's new aircraft carrier for which Congress voted $280 million for conventional power.

In testimony taken in October and November and released in censored form Saturday by the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, McNamara stressed these points:

POINTS

1. Large aircraft carriers, pride of Navy admirals and aviators, have a relatively low priority in over - all defense needs. The secretary ranked the controversial new carrier in seventh place.

2. The big increase in costs of fighting ships "is pricing the Navy out of the market. There are other ways of doing these jobs."

3. A nuclear - powered Navy has advantages over other power but the added costs must be reduced.

4. The United States could afford to spend as much as $80 billion a year on defense—compared to recent costs of about $50 billion—but the secretary thinks this is unnecessary.

Sharp differences with McNamara's views on nuclear power for the future Navy and the strategic value of aircraft carriers were voiced by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the committee.

McNamara announced last Oct. 25 that the new aircraft carrier would use conventional propulsion. The closed committee hearings followed on Oct. 30 and 31, with naval officials and admirals urging a shift to nuclear power, and McNamara rejecting this at a closed session Nov. 13.

Pastore held that the Pentagon should ask Congress to reverse its previous decision and order nuclear power for the new carrier.

He asked also that all future major surface ships for the Navy use nuclear power.

McNamara said defense planning must meet probable future threats and argued that between now and 1970 "you can be fairly sure of two things":

Lucky Chutist Survives Fall Of 2,500 Feet

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—A parachutist fell 2,500 feet with a partially opened 'chute Saturday and survived.

John German, president of the St. Louis Parachute Club, suffered serious injuries while making a jump in the vicinity of Lobmaster Field near St. Louis.

Bergman, about 30, leaped from the plane at 5,000 feet. Witnesses said he apparently tried to open his parachute at 2,500 feet but it failed to open properly.

Bergman plummeted down at a fast clip, but the partly opened parachute saved his life. He landed in a wheat field.

U.S. Avoided 'Bloodbath' In Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eyewitness accounts given to U.S. officials indicated Saturday that U.S. forces exercised great care not to shoot to kill in the mob violence which erupted in Panama on Jan. 9.

The eyewitness version was made available to newsmen by Washington officials. The U.S. policymakers have been concerned with damage to the U.S. image from allegations of high-handed action in Panama.

DEATHS QUESTIONABLE

Whether any Panamanians were killed by U.S. action in the period covered—from about 4:40 p.m. until after midnight that Thursday—was not shown in these accounts. Later reports listed four U.S. soldiers and about 20 Panamanians dead from the violence which continued into the weekend.

One hearsay account, received here separately, alleged that a Panamanian doctor's autopsies at Santo Tomas Hospital indicated that six of the Panamanians had been killed by Panamanian rather than U.S. shooting.

According to this still-unsubstantiated report, the six had been shot in the back and the majority of their wounds inflicted by bullets of a size not used by U.S. forces. Hard evidence was lacking and U.S. officials were unable to confirm it at this time.

'HOT LINE' SNIPPED

Prankster 'Severs' Red-U.S. Relations

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — A prankster or thief, but not a saboteur, clipped in two the Moscow-Washington "hot line" set up last year to prevent an accidental atomic war between the world's nuclear giants, Finnish police said Saturday.

Police said someone cut a 20-foot chunk from the telegraph cable in the early hours of Jan. 9, west of Helsinki.

The cable, running above ground from Helsinki to a relay station at nearby Porkkala, carries the direct teleprinter "hot line" channel between the White House and the Kremlin and 11 other communication channels.

After months of negotiation last year, the "hot line" was connected between the capitals of the world's two major powers to give America's President and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev a means of instant communication to avoid the chance that some error or miscalculation might touch off a nuclear war.

Police said the cable carrying the "hot line" was cut Jan. 9 and repaired several hours later. They said postal authorities, who manage the cable, were hurriedly called out to reroute communications. Technicians had to throw several switches along the 15-mile stretch between Helsinki and Porkkala to repair the break.

Presumably, the cable break did not interrupt "hot line" communication between Washington and Moscow. There is an alternative "hot line" circuit elsewhere in Europe which was switched on while the circuit through Finland was repaired.

Finnish authorities said the cable cutting was an act of mischief or theft, but not sabotage.

Mild Weather Stays In Area

The unexpected dividend of a "spring weather spell" in January will continue today and Monday with temperatures remaining mild and skies partly cloudy.

Freezing temperatures will be taboo today and Monday, with lows expected to go only to 46 and 50 degrees, and a pleasant "short sleeve" temperature of 66 to 70 for today's high. The top reading for Saturday reached 70 with the low recorded at 34. Pleasant southerly winds will blow at speeds of 5 to 15 miles per hour today.

SOOTHING INCANTATIONS

Yoga Fails To Faze Dane Tobacco Kick

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—The smoking habit kept its grip on Denmark Saturday despite an attempt by the state radio to talk the nation out of it with the dreamy voice of a yoga expert.

A radio spokesman said the broadcast late Friday night prompted "several phone calls and a trickle of telegrams." Most of the callers were pleased and hoped to stop smoking permanently, the spokesman said, but some others were irate.

The broadcast was made by Poul Kofoed, an adviser on yoga and other methods of self - control, who claims to have cured many cigarette addicts of the habit. For 20 minutes Kofoed wooed listeners with a sing-song string of comforting thoughts and ghastly warnings.

"When you wake up in the morning," he murmured, "you'll feel comfortable, more energetic, your nerves will be relaxed, you will be purified, suffer no more restlessness. You won't want to smoke, you won't need it.

"But" — the dreamy voice hardened—"if you smoke tomorrow you'll feel the poisoners pouring into your body again, you'll be dizzy, nauseated, your stomach will ache and your heart will pound.

The newspaper Ekstrabladet reported that it studied the reactions of one Copenhagen family throughout the broadcast. The father worked himself into a fury, lit a cigarette, went to bed, fell asleep and burned a hole in the mattress.

Kofoed's program was put on with the full authority of state radio executives and with the approval of the Danish police, who ruled that it involved no risk of actual hypnotism and would underline the hazards spelled out in the recent American report.

NEW 'PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC'

ZANZIBAR AP)—Zanzibar's self - styled strong man relayed personal greetings Saturday to Soviet Premier Khrushchev along with a declaration that he agreed with the premier that capitalism is ready for the grave.

Field Marshal John Okello made the statement after the revolutionary regime which took over last Sunday asserted it will be known henceforth as "The People's Republic of Zanzibar."

That is how a Communist state describes itself. There was no elaboration on whether Zanzibar is actually establishing a Communist - style government. Outgoing dispatches are subject to censorship.)

Okello appeared at a news conference at which a correspondent for Pravda, the official Communist party paper in Moscow, was present.

He asked the correspondent to relay his personal greetings not only to Khrushchev but also to the Russian people.

He asserted that he was in agreement with Khrushchev that capitalism, colonialism and imperialism should be buried and added:

"The grave is ready for them."

Earlier Khrushchev had sent greetings to President Abeid Karume. Khrushchev expressed hope for good relations between Zanzibar and the Soviet Union, and wished the people "success in strengthening national independence and also progress and well being."

Okello, 27, former fighter in the Mau Mau, headed the rebel forces which overthrew the old regime. He announced he was the power behind Karume and assumed the title of field marshal.

The Soviet Union and other communist countries moved quickly to recognize the new government. The United States, Britain, and Western countries have not yet acted. This has aroused the displeasure of Karume.

A government spokesman declared that the "people's revolution" had succeeded and that the rebel soldiers who participated were now turning in their arms.

He said a force of 200 police requested from Tanganyika would soon be on duty to help maintain order. A vanguard of 130 was already on hand.

He said the rebel headquarters set up in the Zanzibar radio station was being evacuated and that the spice island is returning to normal government administration.

The spokesman wore a bright blue cap he said was among six which Foreign Minister Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babu had brought back with him from a trip to Peking.

The only American remaining in Zanzibar was Don Petterson, 33, vice consul who said he had been given permission by the U.S. State Department to remain at his own discretion.

"I've decided I'll stay," he told a reporter. "Someone's got to stay."

He was released from house arrest Friday and told by the foreign minister he could remain. U.S. Consul Frederick P. Picard III was deported to Tanganyika after being arrested. He was accused of interfering in Zanzibar's internal affairs.

Petterson was not permitted to communicate with the U.S. Embassy in Tanganyika. He was advised not to go out after dark.

He was at his desk at work in the U.S Embassy, which was open as usual.

He said he understood the abandoned American space tracking station was intact, as he planned to raise the question of its future at a meeting with the foreign minister.

Zanzibar government sources said the old government had agreed on the day before the uprising to extend the lease on the station for another year.

Petterson's wife, Julie, and two daughters, Susan, 18 months, and Julie - Annie, 4 months, were removed to Dar es Salaam, capital of Tanganyika. He gives his home as San Luis Obispo, Calif.

A British frigate with 100 soldiers aboard remained at anchor outside the harbor to insure the safety of Britons still in Zanzibar.

RFK Uncertain On Vice Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has illuminated what may become an acute political problem for President Johnson by leaving the door open for the vice-presidential nomination.

Kennedy, on a Far Eastern mission for Johnson, said in Tokyo that he had not made up his mind whether to accept such a nomination if it is offered, a statement similar to ones made earlier here.

The nomination obviously won't be offered unless Johnson decides for more than merely sentimental reasons that he would like to have the brother of the late President John F. Kennedy as his running mate in the November elections.

After making clear he wanted the attorney general to stay on and to carry out a vigorously active role in the new administration, Johnson refrained from attempting to influence Kennedy's decision on his future course.

The attorney general said he spent six weeks thinking over the matter after his brother's assassination and had "decided basically that I didn't decide."

In a recent interview here he said he'll remain in the Cabinet through the election and "I'll do whatever anybody — the President or the national committee — feels will be helpful."

Kennedy obviously is going to assume under Johnson the civil rights assignment he carried out under his late brother. This means the field command post for any government action to deal with new racial demonstrations will be in the Justice Department, subject to over-all presidential direction.

The attorney general will be a key man also in efforts to get congressional action on the former administration's civil rights legislative package, taken over by Johnson.

In the dual role of federal policeman and government lobbyist, Kennedy is likely to revive the political ill will which built up against him in the South before his brother's death.

On the other hand, he is the individual in the administration most applauded by Negro organization leaders for his efforts to bring racial segregation to an end.

A Johnson invitation to Kennedy to go on the ticket with him would be widely interpreted in Dixie as a presidential decision to cut the political ties he has maintained in that area despite his strong advocacy of civil rights.

But if the President feels in August that he has failed to establish in the Northern industrial states the firm support he would need to win his first elective term, he might welcome Kennedy aboard.

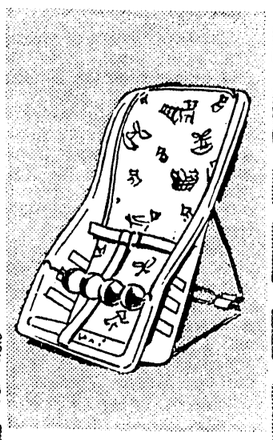

If Johnson feels by summer he has been accepted as a crusader for civil rights and an advocate of other programs appealing in the big electoral-vote states, he might prefer a vice - presidential candidate less politically objectionable to the South.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who is available for the second-place nomination, would give Northern liberals representation on the ticket. He is a Protestant.

If Johnson feels by summer he has been accepted as a crusader for civil rights and an advocate of other programs appealing in the big electoral-vote states, he might prefer a vice - presidential candidate less politically objectionable to the South.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who is available for the second-place nomination, would give Northern liberals representation on the ticket. He is a Protestant.

The Monroe City School system will hold a mid-semester workshop Thursday and Friday, according to Mrs. Olive Cochran, elementary supervisor in the system.

The program, with the theme of "strengthening the Language Arts Program", will be held at Neville High School.

The principal consultant for the program will be Dr. Sterl Artley, professor of education at the University of Missouri. Also on the program will be Dr. Ethel Trice, chairman of the women's division of the department of health and physical education at the University of Arkansas; Carline H. Lamkin, coordinator of fine arts in the Louisiana State Department of Education; Miss Johnsie Kell, a reading consultant; Jim de Boisblanc, art consultant.

The workshop will get underway Thursday at 9 a.m. Dr. Artley will be the main speaker at the meeting. At 11 a.m. group meetings will be held with Miss Kell, Mrs. Vandergrift, Dr. Artley, de Boisblanc, Dr. Trice and Lamkin as consultants. An afternoon session of the group meetings is also on tap Thursday.

Group meetings will be resumed Friday at 9 a.m. The afternoon session Friday will be the second general meeting of the workshop with Charles W. Kulcke presiding.

A meeting of the Monroe City Teachers' Association will conclude the workshop activities.

Dr. Artley is an authority on child reading techniques and is the author of several books and numberous articles on the subject. U.S. Engineers Study Pumping Station Request

The Monroe Utilities Commission's request for permission to construct a water intake, pumping and discharge structure on the Ouachita River is now being considered by the U. S. Army Engineer Corps at the Vicksburg, Miss. district office.

The Vicksburg district office announced Saturday that interested persons may communicate with the Army Engineer corps at their Mississippi office, expressing any objection to the work with respect to its effect on river navigation. Any information on aspects of the work will also be accepted and made part of the record and should be received by Feb. 17.

The City of Monroe Utilities Commission has requested permission to construct the structure on the east bank of the Ouachita River at a point near the extension of Spruce Street and approximately 185.7 miles above the mouth of Black River.

The complete installation is a circulating type water system which will handle about 96,000 gallons of water per minute in the process of generating electricity. The water will be returned to the river with a maxinum of 15 degree higher differential in temperature. Plans of the work are available for inspection at the Vickburg office or at the Monroe Utilities office.

The pumping station will be located about 30 feet landward of the river pool stage elevation. The intake and discharge structure are concrete and will project about 40 feet rivreward of the pool stage elevation. The intake and discharge pipe will be 66-inch and will connect these structures with the power plant located on the landside of the levee.

Root-locus methods, criteria for stability and design of compensation networks and introduction to analyses of nonlinear and sampled-data systems.

Mathematics 714: Numerical Analysis; teacher, Prof. Hollis C. Hearne; difference calculus, modern numerical methods in solving algebraic, ordinary and partial differential equations with applications to engineering and physics.

These classes will meet in the Science Building at Centenary College on Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. The first class meeting and registration is scheduled for Feb. 6 in Room 209 of the Science Building.

Cost of the courses is $20 per student per semester hour and a minimum of ten students is required for a course to be offered.

NEWS ANALYSIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration appears to face an increasingly difficult struggle in its efforts to hold a line against growing trade and diplomatic ties between Allied countries and major Communist nations.

The French decision to recognize Communist China is the latest in a series of developments which are causing deep concern in official quarters.

The impact of these developments, high officials believe, may be strongly felt in the months ahead over the whole range of U.S. policies toward the Soviet Union, Red China, and Cuba.

Policies toward Cuba and Red China are basically designed to pressure them to abandon their revolutionary activities in other lands and move toward more peaceful relations with the rest of the world.

The policy toward the Soviet Union as it involves economic considerations is defined by authorities here as being to encourage the Soviet government to pursue Soviet Premier Khrushchev's declared purpose of peaceful coexistence.

As U.S. officials see it this requires not only negotiating with the Russians on disarmament and other matters, but also limiting the resources which are available to Khrushchev for solving his presently severe economic problems. The Soviet economic plight is considered to be one of the reasons why Khrushchev has been pushing a peace offensive.

The United States made many efforts to dissuade President Charles de Gaulle's government from changing its policy toward Red China. In Paris last month, Secretary of State Dean Rusk urged the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council against any action by the West which would "reward" the militancy of the Chinese brand of revolutionary communism. The West, he said, should make clear its preference for Khrushchev's coexistence policy.

A few days ago De Gaulle sent word that he is going ahead. It is expected he will proceed by slow stages toward recognition and toward developing an expanded trade with Red China.

Of almost equal concern to U.S. authorities, though less dramatic, is Britain's interest in granting long-term credits to the Soviet Union to finance purchases of capital goods, particularly machinery for fertilizer manufacture and for development of the Soviet telephone industry.

U.S. authorities do not see this as posing a military threat. What they have argued to the British without success is that long - term credits, translated into planned development, make available to Khrushchev resources which he would not otherwise have for solving his economic difficulties.

Recently a British firm agreed to sell buses to Cuba. The United States objected but its objection were overridden.

These breaks away from the main lines of U.S. policy constitute in some respects a direct challenge to American leadership and a blow to U.S. prestige as the chief power of the non-Communist world. New strains are placed on relations with the alliance and tensions in evitably develop also within the administration.

President Johnson, in office less than two months, seems suddenly to be confronted with a whole complex of problems which come to the fore in part because of declining tensions between Moscow and Washington. Easier relations with Soviet Union, diplomats say, always lead to difficulties among the allies.

The strains inside the administration, furthermore, are not made any easier by such developments as the crisis in Panama over U.S. control of the Canal Zone and the hot - tempered arrest in Zanzibar of two U.S. diplomats by a young revolutionist president.

All these events have a bearing on U.S prestige and the accumulation of blows in the past week or so is sharpening tempers and wearing patience in official quarters very thin.

In connection with the growing tendency to trade more with the U.S.S.R., U.S. officials argue that the American decision to sell wheat to Moscow has the effect of drawing off Soviet financial reserves for foreign trade into consumer goods which do not constitute a permanent expansion of industrial resources.

Nasser Friend Released From Damascus Jail

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)— Former Deputy Premier Nihad el Kassem, a staunch supporter of U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser, has been released from jail in Damascus, reliable sources said Saturday.

Kassem, who served as U.A.R. justice minister during the illfated Egypt-Syria merger, was arrested here July 18 when Nasser's supporters attempted an armed coup to overthrow Syria's Baathis regime.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many New Books Are Described

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

David Westheumer is the author of a most interesting novel based on actual experiences in World War II. The title is "Von Ryan's Express" and is concerned with the adventures of American and British prisoners in an Italian POW Camp and their eventual escape. It is a book which will appeal especially to men.

Peter Marshall was one of the great preachers of modern times and a new book of his sermons is always eagerly received. The latest one is called "John Doe Disciple" and will find a ready audience. Carlyle Marney is the author of "The Recovery of the Person" a most interesting book of Christian humanism. "Ann Landers Talks to Teenagers About Sex" is a book which will be very popular with all of the young people who read her newspaper column.

"Common Sense in Teaching Reading" by Roma Gans is a book which should be most helpful to both parents and teachers. "French for Beginners" by Charles Duff and "Spanish for Beginners" by John A. Crow are two books which should be most helpful to beginning language students.

There are three lovely new books in the field of natural science "Wild Flowers" by J. H. Barton, "Beautiful Butterflies" by J. Moucha and "The Reptiles" published by Life Magazine. People in the oil business will want to see "The Petroleum Industry" by George Sell. It is a very fine study of the subject.

Irving Stone, author of the best seller "The Agony and the Ecstasy" has edited the biography of Michelangelo and has done a wonderful piece of work. He calls the book "I, Michelangelo". "American Interior Design" by Meyric R. Rogers is a very lovely book dealing with the traditions and development of domestic design from Colonial times to the present. A perfectly beautiful book is "Discovery of Painting" by Rene Berger. It is beautifully illustrated and is an exceptionally fine book.

The Burns Mantle collection of the best plays produced each year is always eagerly awaited. "Best plays of 1962-63" has just arrived and will find many people who want to see it. Shakesperean students will be glad to know that we have added yet another biography of William Shakespeare. The author is Alfred Leslie Rowse and it is a scholarly, yet interesting work. Cleanth Brooks has written a very fine interpretation of the work of William Faulkner: "The Yoknapatawpha Country". It will be useful to students of his work.

Books of far-away places are always popular with our patrons and we have several very lovely books this week. Stephen Toulmin is the author of "The Riviera." Jack Simmins of "England." William Sansom of "Bay of Naples." Harold Keller on "Umbria." W. Zikmund on "Syria." All of these books are illustrated in color and are quite an addition to our library collection. Both of them make quiet and pleasant reading. Tennessee Ernie Ford has written an account of his life called "This is my Story — this is My Song." It is as charming and homespun as he is. "Henry of Navarre" by Hesketh Pearson is a very fine biography and we also have a new biography of Pope Paul VI, called "Apostle for our Time".

"Three Ways of Love" written by Frances Parkinson Keyes is an account of the lives of three saints: Saint Agnes of the 3rd century, Saint Francesca, and Saint Caterina de Sienna. There are also several additions to the reference collection. Robert C. Whitford is the author of "Dictionary of American Grammar" and J. T. Shipley is the author of "Dictionary of World Literature". Denton, Jr. of Baton Rouge will speak on the subject of the Port Hudson Campaign and show slides dealing with this campaign. This should be an interesting program and the public is invited.

Vatican Names U.S. Man Given Guard Chance

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican sources Saturday identified the American citizen reportedly offered membership in the Pontifical Noble Guard as Count Gaetano Baldeschi.

The count was born in the United States while his father was living there, then returned to Italy to take up residence but kept his U.S. citizenship. The city of his birth was not known.

The sources said the count had to turn down the offer because of U.S. laws forbidding its citizens from serving under a foreign power. The Vatican is a city-state as well as the heart of Roman Catholic church administration.

Pope Paul VI was said Friday night to be ready to internationalize his 100-man corps of noble guards, an honorary body whose members are Roman nobles.

Thank You Ward Five

I want to express my most sincere appreciation to all of you whose votes I received in Saturday's second primary. Although I was not elected I am proud of the splendid vote I received. It makes me feel proud to know that so many people had confidence in me. I am especially thankful to the ones who gave me their vote in the first primary and again in the second not believing false political rumors that spread at election time. I thank the folks that worked hard and endlessly in my behalf. I wish to congratulate the candidates who were elected and will cooperate and work with them on any issue that might arise. I thank them for the manner in which they conducted their campaigns. It has been a pleasure to have been a candidate with them.

QUESTIONS BUDGETS

McKeithen Talk Stirs Up Results

BATON ROUGE (AP)—John J. McKeithen's critical views questioning need of the Legislative Budget Committee stirred results Saturday.

A scheduled two-day session Monday and Tuesday to start work on state budgets for the 1964 legislature has been called off.

Sen. W. J. (Bill) Cleveland, Crowley, budget committee chairman for Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, said he cancelled he planned meetings at this time for two reasons:

He wanted to await word from McKeithen, Democratic nominee for governor, on just what McKeithen would like to do.

Not enough state budgets were ready for examination.

Under the law, the governor—in this instance Gov. Davis—has the executive responsibility to prepare and present a balanced budget to the next legislature.

Each time a new administration takes office, however, there is always complication. The new governor takes his oath just as a brand new legislature convenes.

McKeithen is not attempting to take any active part in calling the tune on state operations now. He still faces a Republican Nominee and a States Rights challenger in the March 3 general election.

After that date, McKeithen will be active with a little capitol here until he can take office.

All this time, preparations must go forward for the state budget so it will be ready for the legislature in May.

McKeithen's criticism has been directed at legislative committees investigating this and that—with each committee member drawing $50 a day in taxpayers' money.

Since the governor has the responsibility to offer an executive budget, Commissioner of Administration James S. Reily, his chief fiscal officer, and state budget officer Homer Russell will continue at their budget tasks as usual. They do the mechanical work. Policy decisions must be made by higher authority.

McKeithen said in one press interview he certainly would feel it would be mandatory for him to take a look at the budget, after it is completed, to determine whether any changes would be necessary.

And McKeithen made clear that — at the proper time — he would want to look at it.

Sen. Cleveland, Davis' legislative budget chief, failed to win reelection. But he has been Senate Finance Chairman and Budget Chairman for four years, and perhaps is one of the few men in the state will full knowledge of state fiscal affairs.

"I'm offering my services to the incoming governor," Cleveland said. "If he feels my services can be useful in helping prepare an executive budget."

Cleveland has conferred with Gov. Davis on the matter, and the governor has offered McKeithen cooperation.

Bones Found In Home Of White Slavers

LEON, Mexico (AP)—Bones have been discovered buried at a house of prostitution reportedly owned by two sisters who are the alleged leaders of a white slave ring.

This could increase the total of 17 bodies found so far in an investigation of a prostitution ring which apparently had been killing and clandestinely burying young girls for almost 10 years.

Authorities were investigating the new discovery of bones Saturday, trying to determine how many bodies were buried in the site. The other bodies were found in Lagos de Moreno, about 10 miles from here.

The State Police agent directing the investigation said the total number killed could go as high as 30 or more.

The two sisters, Maria de Jesus Gonzalez Valencuela, 52, and Delfina, 42, are being held in a jail in San Francisco del Rincon, about 15 miles west of here.

Authorities reported that inmates of the jail tried to attack the sisters Friday and that they were being kept secluded in a specially guarded cell.

Late Friday afternoon a crowd of about 500 persons gathered in front of the jail shouting threats against the two prisoners. The demonstration ended without violence.

Press reports from Queretaro, capital of the state of Queretaro, said the chauffeur of the sisters had told authorities that he had made several trips to Mexico City to carry young teen-age girls to Leon, Torreon and other cities.

This indicated the investigation may spread through many other states before it is concluded.

Vatican Names U.S. Man Given Guard Chance

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican sources Saturday identified the American citizen reportedly offered membership in the Pontifical Noble Guard as Count Gaetano Baldeschi.

The count was born in the United States while his father was living there, then returned to Italy to take up residence but kept his U.S. citizenship. The city of his birth was not known.

The sources said the count had to turn down the offer because of U.S. laws forbidding its citizens from serving under a foreign power. The Vatican is a city-state as well as the heart of Roman Catholic church administration.

Pope Paul VI was said Friday night to be ready to internationalize his 100-man corps of noble guards, an honorary body whose members are Roman nobles.

Thank You Ward Five

I want to express my most sincere appreciation to all of you whose votes I received in Saturday's second primary. Although I was not elected I am proud of the splendid vote I received. It makes me feel proud to know that so many people had confidence in me. I am especially thankful to the ones who gave me their vote in the first primary and again in the second not believing false political rumors that spread at election time. I thank the folks that worked hard and endlessly in my behalf. I wish to congratulate the candidates who were elected and will cooperate and work with them on any issue that might arise. I thank them for the manner in which they conducted their campaigns. It has been a pleasure to have been a candidate with them.

QUESTIONS BUDGETS

McKeithen Talk Stirs Up Results

BATON ROUGE (AP)—John J. McKeithen's critical views questioning need of the Legislative Budget Committee stirred results Saturday.

A scheduled two-day session Monday and Tuesday to start work on state budgets for the 1964 legislature has been called off.

Sen. W. J. (Bill) Cleveland, Crowley, budget committee chairman for Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, said he cancelled he planned meetings at this time for two reasons:

He wanted to await word from McKeithen, Democratic nominee for governor, on just what McKeithen would like to do.

Not enough state budgets were ready for examination.

Under the law, the governor—in this instance Gov. Davis—has the executive responsibility to prepare and present a balanced budget to the next legislature.

Each time a new administration takes office, however, there is always complication. The new governor takes his oath just as a brand new legislature convenes.

McKeithen is not attempting to take any active part in calling the tune on state operations now. He still faces a Republican Nominee and a States Rights challenger in the March 3 general election.

After that date, McKeithen will be active with a little capitol here until he can take office.

All this time, preparations must go forward for the state budget so it will be ready for the legislature in May.

McKeithen's criticism has been directed at legislative committees investigating this and that—with each committee member drawing $50 a day in taxpayers' money.

Since the governor has the responsibility to offer an executive budget, Commissioner of Administration James S. Reily, his chief fiscal officer, and state budget officer Homer Russell will continue at their budget tasks as usual. They do the mechanical work. Policy decisions must be made by higher authority.

McKeithen said in one press interview he certainly would feel it would be mandatory for him to take a look at the budget, after it is completed, to determine whether any changes would be necessary.

And McKeithen made clear that — at the proper time — he would want to look at it.

Sen. Cleveland, Davis' legislative budget chief, failed to win reelection. But he has been Senate Finance Chairman and Budget Chairman for four years, and perhaps is one of the few men in the state will full knowledge of state fiscal affairs.

"I'm offering my services to the incoming governor," Cleveland said. "If he feels my services can be useful in helping prepare an executive budget."

Cleveland has conferred with Gov. Davis on the matter, and the governor has offered McKeithen cooperation.

Bones Found In Home Of White Slavers

LEON, Mexico (AP)—Bones have been discovered buried at a house of prostitution reportedly owned by two sisters who are the alleged leaders of a white slave ring.

This could increase the total of 17 bodies found so far in an investigation of a prostitution ring which apparently had been killing and clandestinely burying young girls for almost 10 years.

Authorities were investigating the new discovery of bones Saturday, trying to determine how many bodies were buried in the site. The other bodies were found in Lagos de Moreno, about 10 miles from here.

The State Police agent directing the investigation said the total number killed could go as high as 30 or more.

The two sisters, Maria de Jesus Gonzalez Valencuela, 52, and Delfina, 42, are being held in a jail in San Francisco del Rincon, about 15 miles west of here.

Authorities reported that inmates of the jail tried to attack the sisters Friday and that they were being kept secluded in a specially guarded cell.

Late Friday afternoon a crowd of about 500 persons gathered in front of the jail shouting threats against the two prisoners. The demonstration ended without violence.

Press reports from Queretaro, capital of the state of Queretaro, said the chauffeur of the sisters had told authorities that he had made several trips to Mexico City to carry young teen-age girls to Leon, Torreon and other cities.

This indicated the investigation may spread through many other states before it is concluded.

George Sumlin grabbed off a resounding victory in Saturday's special first democratic primary for one of the two Ward One police jury posts in Richland Parish.

A runoff is slated between N. J. Rester, incumbent juror, and F. K. Rundell for the second post. The three top men battled for positions against a field of five other hopefuls in the special primary staged in Richland Parish Saturday. The second primary will be held Feb. 15.

Saturday's special election became necessary when Frank McEachern, elected in the Dec. 7 first primary for a run-off position, died shortly after the election.

He told an American Legion committee on un-American activities he favors more emphasis on Americanism in public school lower grades and in colleges and universities.

Emphasis on patriotism, he said, could be included in lower grades history, government and civics classes.

did not intend to harm Ware. He said:

"I closed my eyes, then fired at what I thought was the ground. I did not aim the pistol as I brought it out," he said.

Sims and Farley were riding a motorbike when they encountered the Negroes on a lonely western Birmingham road. Both testified during the trial that the victim threw a rock at them as they passed.

Deputy Solicitor—Prosecutor—Robert W. Gwin offered no rebuttal testimony when court convened in an extraordinary Saturday session. Both sides rested their cases Friday.

Defense attorneys Roderick Beddow Sr. and Roderick Beddow Jr. agreed to a stipulation that neither Sims nor Farley had a permit to carry the .22-caliber, German - made pistol owned by Farley.

Gwin did not ask for the death penalty. He called for conviction one one of "the highest degrees of homicide."

Urging the jurors to bring a verdit that would deter others from committing similar acts, Gwin said in his closing arguments: "You are the conscience of Alabama and of Birmingham. If the race of the defendant and victim were reversed, you would not be in the jury room but a very short time before returning a verdict in one of the highest degrees of homicide in this case."

Gwin asked three questions in his argument:

1. Why did Sims and Farley have the pistol?

2. Why did they continue down the road where they had been warned that Negroes were throwing rocks, and why did they not change the course of their trip?

3. Why did they flee from the scene after the shots were fired?

Referring to an abundance of defense testimony from character witnesses, Gwin asked, "If —Sims—is as trustworthy as he is made out to be, why did he harbor in his brest for more than 24 hours the murder of a Negro in cold blood?"

"The only thing this defendant is guilty of is being 16 years old and not having the discretion Mr. Gwin thinks he should have," Beddow Jr. said in the defense's closing arguments.

"You can go back into that jury room and return a verdict of not guilty and look any man in the face," he said.

Beddow Sr. argued that Sims had a right to ride down the lonely road and that he had a right to defend himself.

Seven Persons Are Injured In Accidents Here

A total of seven persons suffered minor injuries Saturday in a rash of traffic accidents that hit the city between 9:15 a. m. and 5:52 p. m.

In the most serious mishap, a 68-year-old man was knocked down by an automobile when he attempted to walk across the 500 block of DeSiard Street. The man, identified as William F. Kennedy, gave his address as the Robert E. Lee Hotel here. He was treated for head lacerations at St. Francis Hospital and kept there overnight for observation.

Investigating officers of the Monroe police department said that the man apparently walked in front of an auto driven by Glenn L. Brown, 73, of 1110 S. 2nd. St., Monroe. No charges were filed, they said. The mishap occurred at 5:52 p. m.

Two persons were inured slightly in a two car collision at North 5th and Pine streets at about 9:15 a. m. Reportedly treated for minor injuries at St. Francis Hospital and released were Jerry W. Cascio, 16, of Parker Road, Monroe and Ruth T. Perdue, 45, of 2206 Myrtle St., Monroe.

According to officers the Perdue woman was heading east on Pine Street and Cascio was going north on North 5th. The woman told officers that she halted for the stop sign and then proceeded across the intersection, not seeing the Cascio vehicle. Her car hit the other vehicle which traveled 129 feet, ramming the side of Haddad's Cleaners, 609 N. 5th St., doing minor damage.

The woman was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Also injured in a two-car collision were Richard W. Pool, 49, of Rt. 2, Eros and Camille B. Harrison, 48, of 308 Erin Ave., Monroe. Pool was treated for minor injuries by a private physician and the Harrison woman received shoulder x-rays at St. Francis Hospital and was released.

According to ponce reports of the accident, Pool was traveling east on Arkansas Street and rammed the Harrison vehicle, heading south on North 3rd. The Harrison woman told officers that she veered to her left in an attempt to avoid a collision. Pool was charged with reckless driving.

In an odd hit - and - run accident, a Northeast Louisiana State College student was injured around 11:30 a. m. at South College and Owl streets. The student, identified as 18-year-old John Blanc from Slidell, was reportedly taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment and released.

Blanc was a passenger in a foreign car driven by Cleveland L. Wiggins Jr., 20, also a student at the college. The two were heading north on South College, en route to Wiggin's home in Winnsboro, when they were rammed by a vehicle being pushed east on Owl Street by a flat-bed truck. Wiggins turned to his right to avoid a collision but the blow knocked the light car out of control, turning it over about 90 feet from the point of impact.

The vehicle being pushed was driven by a 60 - year - old Negro, Sim Kelley, of Girard. He was booked for reckless driving.

Police said that Kelley did not know the man, also a Negro, who was pushing his vehicle. He sped away after the collision, Kelley told officers.

State Solons Plan To Retire With Pensions

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Legislators who are not returning plan to retire at the end of their present terms under a 1963 pension plan.

Sens. W. J. Cleveland, Crowley, and Guy Sockrider, Lake Charles, and Rep. Jasper Smith, Caddo Parish, said they will retire.

Rep. Robert Angelle, St. Martin, said he would accept retirement benefits unless he took a state job.

Cleveland, Sockrider and Angelle supported the bill which increased legislators' retirement benefits last summer.

Smith voted against the bill, and said he would do it again if he had the opportunity.

"But," he said, "I'm not going to turn down the pension if I am eligible."

Cleveland, Angelle and Smith were defeated in re-election bids. Sockrider did not seek re-election.

Sen. Garland Bonin, Lafayette, is having a bill drafted to repeal the new benefits and restore the legislative retirement system to what it was before 1962.

Ruby Case Attorneys To Argue

the assassination of Kennedy.

If he holds this evidence pertinent to the bail issue, defense attorney Melvin Belli likely will call nearly two dozen witnesses and the hearing could last a week.

If he rules it is not pertinent, the hearing probably will end in a much shorter time.

Ruby, 53, has been in jail since his arrest Nov. 24 seconds after he stepped out of a crowd of newsmen and shot Oswald. Oswald was being transferred from City Jail to County jail to await trial.

Monday's court session will be a resumption of a late December hearing. Judge Brown recessed it because of the holiday. The state rested its case before the hearing was recessed.

Ruby's murder trial is scheduled for early February.

The defense has filed a 30 page motion.

"The defense must prove Oswald was the man who assassinated the President and shot officer Tippit," the motion states.

The motion also contends Ruby was temporarily insane when he killed Oswald.

democrat in this administration who really understands the operation of the free enterprise system," he said. Goldwater said he wishes governors would have "a little more backbone" in enforcing states rights.

And, he said, Republicans in Congress count on Southern Democrats to help "beat down this everlasting effort to destroy local government and destroy local initiative."

In a tobacco growing area, acutely aware of the civil rights issue, Goldwater said Congress can do nothing about the government report labeling cigarettes a health hazard, and will not pass the public accommodations section of the administration's civil rights bill.

Congressional action on the tobacco report "would be another boo-boo like prohibition," Goldwater said. "If a person wants to smoke, he's going to smoke, even if he has to roll up newspapers."

He said Johnson eventually will back down on the section of the civil rights bill banning discrimination in public accommodations.

"It's my feeling that without the elimination of the public accommodations section there will be no civil rights bill," he said.

"I think the President will fight for it for a while and then back down to a Southern filibuster."

Goldwater said he thinks Republicans "will pick up members of the House and political positions in all the Southern states" this year.

At the presidential level, he said, "Any Republican in this stage of history who says flatly that he can carry the South is not talking as he should."

Goldwater said Southern voters are more concerned about economic conservatism than about civil rights. He said Johnson "is not a conservative by any stretch of the imagination."

Alabama Republican Chairman John Greiner, Goldwater's Southern campaign director, predicted to a reporter he will deliver 278 out of 279 Southern delegates when the Republican Nationa Convention chooses a presidential candidate next July.

The holdout, Grenier said, will be Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas. "I assume he will vote for his brother" — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, the only other declared candidate for the nomination.

CONVENTION SET

T. H. Scott of Monroe, national director of the Deep South Farm & Power Equipment Association, will attend the group's 19th Annual Convention in New Orleans, January 24-25.

More than 300 DSF&PEA delegates from Louisiana and the Southern half of Mississippi are expected to attend.

Louisiana Grows Where Rural Power Goes

Millions are being spent to discredit REA. It is the symbol of many things its detractors do not like: home control; non-profit ownership and service; competition by example in a monopolistic industry; yardstick to determine "fair" consumer rates in town and country, etc.

REA is a federal banking agency. It is also the proud symbol of rural electrification through home ownership. Selfish interests try to fool the public that REA and its borrowers are the same thing: Government-in-the-power-business. That is false!

REA does not own a single foot of electric lines anywhere. It lends to private companies, public bodies and local Cooperatives interested in rural electric and telephone service. Like FHA-financed homes, ownership is vested in the borrower—NOT THE GOVERNMENT.

REA's low-interest loans lighted rural Louisiana when its critics failed—raising rural service from a miserable 1.7% to 99% today. REA loans are still lighting remote rural homes, camps, business—developing rural Louisiana, creating new wealth, more taxes, more industry—jobs—for town and country progress.

Richland Voters Elect Sumlin To Police Jury

George Sumlin grabbed off a resounding victory in Saturday's special first democratic primary for one of the two Ward One police jury posts in Richland Parish.

A runoff is slated between N. J. Rester, incumbent juror, and F. K. Rundell for the second post. The three top men battled for positions against a field of five other hopefuls in the special primary staged in Richland Parish Saturday. The second primary will be held Feb. 15.

Saturday's special election became necessary when Frank McEachern, elected in the Dec. 7 first primary for a run-off position, died shortly after the election.

Unofficial poll results of the elections Saturday include 593 for a majority for Sumlin; 407 ballots cast for Rester and 397 for Rundell, in the runoffs; and Louie Ballard, 306, Wynn Baum, 234, Thomas Nivins, 166, James Calloway, 128 and A. T. Reynolds, 123.

Dodd Proposes Text Committee

BATON ROUGE (AP) —William J. Dodd, Democratic nominee for state superintendent of education, said Saturday a top-level committee to weed out textbooks with anti-American and anti-Southern views would be desirable in the Education Department.

He told an American Legion committee on un-American activities he favors more emphasis on Americanism in public school lower grades and in colleges and universities.

Emphasis on patriotism, he said, could be included in lower grades history, government and civics classes.

White Youth Convicted Of Negro Death

did not intend to harm Ware. He said:

"I closed my eyes, then fired at what I thought was the ground. I did not aim the pistol as I brought it out," he said.

Sims and Farley were riding a motorbike when they encountered the Negroes on a lonely western Birmingham road. Both testified during the trial that the victim threw a rock at them as they passed.

Deputy Solicitor—Prosecutor—Robert W. Gwin offered no rebuttal testimony when court convened in an extraordinary Saturday session. Both sides rested their cases Friday.

Defense attorneys Roderick Beddow Sr. and Roderick Beddow Jr. agreed to a stipulation that neither Sims nor Farley had a permit to carry the .22-caliber, German - made pistol owned by Farley.

Gwin did not ask for the death penalty. He called for conviction one one of "the highest degrees of homicide."

Urging the jurors to bring a verdit that would deter others from committing similar acts, Gwin said in his closing arguments: "You are the conscience of Alabama and of Birmingham. If the race of the defendant and victim were reversed, you would not be in the jury room but a very short time before returning a verdict in one of the highest degrees of homicide in this case."

Gwin asked three questions in his argument:

1. Why did Sims and Farley have the pistol?

2. Why did they continue down the road where they had been warned that Negroes were throwing rocks, and why did they not change the course of their trip?

3. Why did they flee from the scene after the shots were fired?

Referring to an abundance of defense testimony from character witnesses, Gwin asked, "If —Sims—is as trustworthy as he is made out to be, why did he harbor in his brest for more than 24 hours the murder of a Negro in cold blood?"

"The only thing this defendant is guilty of is being 16 years old and not having the discretion Mr. Gwin thinks he should have," Beddow Jr. said in the defense's closing arguments.

"You can go back into that jury room and return a verdict of not guilty and look any man in the face," he said.

Beddow Sr. argued that Sims had a right to ride down the lonely road and that he had a right to defend himself.

Seven Persons Are Injured In Accidents Here

A total of seven persons suffered minor injuries Saturday in a rash of traffic accidents that hit the city between 9:15 a. m. and 5:52 p. m.

In the most serious mishap, a 68-year-old man was knocked down by an automobile when he attempted to walk across the 500 block of DeSiard Street. The man, identified as William F. Kennedy, gave his address as the Robert E. Lee Hotel here. He was treated for head lacerations at St. Francis Hospital and kept there overnight for observation.

Investigating officers of the Monroe police department said that the man apparently walked in front of an auto driven by Glenn L. Brown, 73, of 1110 S. 2nd. St., Monroe. No charges were filed, they said. The mishap occurred at 5:52 p. m.

Two persons were injured slightly in a two-car collision at North 5th and Pine streets at about 9:15 a. m. Reportedly treated for minor injuries at St. Francis Hospital and released were Jerry W. Cascio, 16, of Parker Road, Monroe and Ruth-T. Perdue, 45, of 2206 Myrtle St., Monroe.

According to officers the Perdue woman was heading east on Pine Street and Cascio was going north on North 5th. The woman told officers that she halted for the stop sign and then proceeded across the intersection, not seeing the Cascio vehicle. Her car hit the other vehicle which traveled 129 feet, ramming the side of Haddad's Cleaners, 609 N. 5th St., doing minor damage.

The woman was charged with failure to yield the right of way. Also injured in a two-car collision were Richard W. Pool, 49, of Rt. 2, Eros and Camille B. Harrison, 48, of 308 Erin Ave., Monroe. Pool was treated for minor injuries by a private physician and the Harrison woman received shoulder x-rays at St. Francis Hospital and was released.

According to police reports of the accident, Pool was traveling east on Arkansas Street and rammed the Harrison vehicle, heading south on North 3rd. The Harrison woman told officers that she veered to her left in an attempt to avoid a collision. Pool was charged with reckless driving.

In an odd hit - and - run accident, a Northeast Louisiana State College student was injured around 11:30 a. m. at South College and Owl streets. The student, identified as 18-year-old John Blanc from Slidell, was reportedly taken to St. Francis Hospital for treatment and released.

Blanc was a passenger in a foreign car driven by Cleveland L. Wiggins Jr., 20, also a student at the college. The two were heading north on South College, en route to Wiggin's home in Winnsboro, when they were rammed by a vehicle being pushed east on Owl Street by a flat-bed truck. Wiggins turned to his right to avoid a collision but the blow knocked the light car out of control, turning it over about 90 feet from the point of impact.

The vehicle being pushed was driven by a 60 - year - old Negro, Sim Kelley, of Girard. He was booked for reckless driving.

Police said that Kelley did not know the man, also a Negro, who was pushing his vehicle. He sped away after the collision, Kelley told officers.

A Monroe area youth, Alex W. Rankin of Mer Rouge, has been selected for the Army ROTC flight program at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge.

State Solons Plan To Retire With Pensions

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Legislators who are not returning plan to retire at the end of their present terms under a 1963 pension plan.

Sens. W. J. Cleveland, Crowley, and Guy Sockrider, Lake Charles, and Rep. Jasper Smith, Caddo Parish, said they will retire.

Rep. Robert Angelle, St. Martin, said he would accept retirement benefits unless he took a state job.

Cleveland, Sockrider and Angelle supported the bill which increased legislators' retirement benefits last summer.

Smith voted against the bill, and said he would do it again if he had the opportunity.

"But," he said, "I'm not going to turn down the pension if I am eligible."

Cleveland, Angelle and Smith were defeated in re-election bids. Sockrider did not seek re-election.

Sen. Garland Bonin, Lafayette, is having a bill drafted to repeal the new benefits and restore the legislative retirement system to what it was before 1962.

In a tobacco growing area, acutely aware of the civil rights issue, Goldwater said Congress can do nothing about the government report labeling cigarettes a health hazard, and will not pass the public accommodations section of the administration's civil rights bill.

Congressional action on the tobacco report "would be another boo-boo like prohibition," Goldwater said. "If a person wants to smoke, he's going to smoke, even if he has to roll up newspapers."

He said Johnson eventually will back down on the section of the civil rights bill banning discrimination in public accommodations.

"It's my feelng that without the elimination of the public accommodations section there will be no civil rights bill," he said.

"I think the President will fight for it for a while and then back down to a Southern filibuster."

Goldwater said he thinks Republicans "will pick up members of the House and political positions in all the Southern states" this year.

At the presidential level, he said, "Any Republican in this stage of history who says flatly that he can carry the South is not talking as he should."

Goldwater said Southern voters are more concerned about economic conservatism than about civil rights. He said Johnson "is not a conservative by any stretch of the imagination."

Alabama Republican Chairman John Greiner, Goldwater's Southern campaign director, predicted to a reporter he will deliver 278 out of 279 Southern delegates when the Republican Nationa Convention chooses a presidential candidate next July.

The holdout, Grenier said, will be Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas. "I assume he will vote for his brother" — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, the only other declared candidate for the nomination.

Ruby Case Attorneys To Argue

the assassination of Kennedy.

If he holds this evidence pertinent to the bail issue, defense attorney Melvin Belli likely will call nearly two dozen witnesses and the hearing could last a week.

If he rules it is not pertinent, the hearing probably will end in a much shorter time.

Ruby, 53, has been in jail since his arrest Nov. 24 seconds after he stepped out of a crowd of newsmen and shot Oswald. Oswald was being transferred from City Jail to County jail to await trial.

Monday's court session will be a resumption of a late December hearing. Judge Brown recessed it because of the holiday. The state rested its case before the hearing was recessed.

Ruby's murder trial is scheduled for early February.

The defense has filed a 30 page motion.

"The defense must prove Oswald was the man who assassinated the President and shot officer Tippit," the motion states.

The motion also contends Ruby was temporarily insane when he killed Oswald.

Louisiana Grows Where Rural Power Goes

Millions are being spent to discredit REA. It is the symbol of many things its detractors do not like: home control; non-profit ownership and service; competition by example in a monopolistic industry; yardstick to determine "fair" consumer rates in town and country, etc.

REA is a federal banking agency. It is also the proud symbol of rural electrification through home ownership. Selfish interests try to fool the public that REA and its borrowers are the same thing: Government-in-the-power-business. That is false!

REA does not own a single foot of electric lines anywhere. It lends to private companies, public bodies and local Cooperatives interested in rural electric and telephone service. Like FHA-financed homes, ownership is vested in the borrower—NOT THE GOVERNMENT.

REA's low-interest loans lighted rural Louisiana when its critics failed—raising rural service from a miserable 1.7% to 99% today. REA loans are still lighting remote rural homes, camps, business—developing rural Louisiana, creating new wealth, more taxes, more industry—jobs—for town and country progress.

Slaying Prober Considers Politics In Releasing Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The chief counsel for the commission probing the assassination of President John F. Kennedy said Saturday the bipartisan body will have to consider the possible political impact of the timing of its report.

The spokesman, J. Lee Rankin, said the matter had not come up for discussion but, "I think the commission is going to have to consider that whole problem."

Rankin's remarks were in response to questions about stories appearing Saturday in the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Post. Both accounts dealt with the political ramifications of the timing of the report in relation to the national conventions and election this year.

The Herald Tribune, in a dispatch from Washington, said the members are "deeply concerned" about whether to report before or after the conventions. The Republicans meet July 13 and the Democrats Aug. 25.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

The Louisiana Tech Concert Association plays host Tuesday to a colorful procession of musicians and dancers from south of the border under the heading "Ballet Folklorico." There'll be two performances — one for students at 3:05 p.m. and another for association members at 8 p.m., both in Howard Auditorium.

This is the sort of booking which has won a reputation for the Ruston concerts organization and its chairman, L. V. E. Irvin, throughout a four-state area in the field of inspirational entertainment.

At least one occasion per season on the Tech bill will bridge the mysterious gap between that which is pure show and that which is disciplined art. From all accounts, Tuesday's attraction will occupy that spot this season.

'PARIS SOIR'

"Ballet Folkorico" played in the French capital in 1961 as part of the Paris Festival of Nations. The fact that here was a troupe from Mexico crossing the Atlantic for participation in the event did not elicit much advance excitement, since the Festival of Nations attracts annually talent from many areas of the globe: China, Japan, India, the African Gold Coast, Berlin and Moscow — to name only a few places.

But the company of 75 from Mexico drew admiration from the first-night audience and cheers broke out after the final curtain.

The newspaper "Paris Soir" gave the most rational account of the group's success amid outright raves from the other critics. Said that newspaper's writer:

"This is, without doubt, the most colorful, the most lively, the most complete — in a word, the most successful spectacle we have seen up to now. It is a beautiful voyage which we make with a troupe that dances and sings with the rhythm of life. . ."

Paris Presse also gave some insight with the following remarks: "The program (of Folklorico) consists of 10 ballets. We would like to see 12-15 — in fact, we would like to stay at the theatre and watch these Mexicans dance until the small hours of the morning —the most original, gay and wonderful production you can imagine. Far beyond the scope of folklore, it is pure dance, worthy of any great classical troupe.. ."

As we said, these are notices from a school of critics who don't mind being frank. If it's good, it's got to be all good for these writers to say so. If it's bad — even in a few spots — the French writers are not likely to point to these as minor imperfections in an otherwise good performance. They tell the world it's terrible!

SPADE WORK

Apparently, Madame Amalia Hernandez who directs the "Ballet Folklorico" realized that before she took her troupe to Paris. She had done nearly a decade of spade work after she left her post as professor of modern dance at the Mexico's National Institute of the Arts to compose ballets on folklore themes.

With only eight pupils she began to present short programs on Mexican television. Two years later, her group increased in size to 20. By this time, the folklore idea had definitely caught on. With more than 200 separate cultures in Mexico, Madame Hernandez's discerning eyes found folk material as rich and as glittering as legendary Aztec treasure. The company itself represents strains of Spanish, pure Mexican as well as some Eurasian heritages.

Since 1959, the Ballet Folklorico has given more than 500 performances. In addition to its tours, it performs on a regular bi-weekly basis in Mexico City, usually to "standing - room only" audiences.

LBJ Speaks With Negroes About Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Negro leaders talked for more than an hour Saturday with President Johnson about civil rights and his campaign against poverty.

The Negro leaders said Johnson shares their hope the civil rights bill will reach the House floor by the end of January.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the meeting dealt mainly with Johnson's forthcoming message to Congress on antipoverty legislation.

King said one step he urged was improved education, including retraining to equip unemployed for available jobs.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Johnson agreed with them that the civil rights bill should be passed as soon as possible.

Wilkins also said: "He wanted us to help make clear to the general public, and especially our section of the public, what he is trying to do in his poverty program."

Whitney Young, executive director of the Urban League, said he told Johnson that one out of every four Negroes is without a job and that 500,000 Negroes between the ages of 16 and 21 are out of school and out of work.

"It's a national disgrace," Young said.

James Farmer, national director of the Congress on Racial Equality, said he urged a remedial educational program on a massive scale, including job retraining.

The White House said Johnson, who previously had met with the four civil rights leaders individually, asked that they call on him Saturday.

A. Phillip Randolph, a vice president of the AFL-CIO and head of the sleeping car porters union, was invited to attend but was kept away by labor negotiations.

Robert Kennedy To Visit Troops At Korean Front

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy puts diplomacy aside for the most part Sunday to visit with U.S. troops close to the no man's land between South Korea and the Communist North. But he will resume with a talk with South Korean President Chung Hee Park.

He came to South Korea from Tokyo and meetings with Indonesian President Sukarno on the Malaysian crisis. He will see Sukarno again on Wednesday in Jakarta after talks with the leaders of Malaysia and the Philippines in their capitals.

Kennedy, who is a special envoy of President Johnson on the potentially explosive Malaysian situation, said he was encouraged by the initial contact with Sukarno. Kennedy predicted that the disputants would negotiate their differences at the conference table.

It appeared that Kennedy obtained some kind of offer from Sukarno that would interest the other leaders. Nothing official was disclosed by either Kennedy or Sukarno, but there was hope that Kennedy had moved closer in his efforts to drive the war clouds from Southeast Asia.

Kennedy, 38, looked a little tired when he arrived by helicopter at the headquarters of the 1st Reconnaissance Squadron, 9th Cavalry of the 1st Cavalry Division. It is stationed just south of the no man's land.

He came directly from Kimpo Airport near Seoul, where he and Mrs. Kennedy flew in from Tokyo. She stayed in Seoul.

Formosa Quake Kills Thirty-Five, Several Injured

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A quake that appeared to center near the former capital of Tainan jolted all Formosa Saturday night and 35 persons were reported killed.

Dispatches from Tainan, a Chinese Nationalist Air Force base and economic center of about 250,000 population, said 31 persons were killed and 97 injured there by collapsing buildings.

Four persons were reported killed and more than 80 injured in the nearby town of Chiayi, where the earth disturbance was followed by a big fire.

The Weather Bureau said the quake registered an intensity of 3 degrees on a 6-degree scale.

So far as is known, no foreigners were among the casualties. Nobody was reported hurt in Taipei, which is near the north end of Formosa.

Rail and highway communications were cut in the Chiayi area and electric light and power service was interrupted at Tainan for two hours.

Tainan is near Formosa Strait 160 miles south of Taipei.

Founded by the Dutch in 1650, it became Formosa's capital in 1662 under the name of Taiwanfu. The name was changed to Tainan when the government was transferred to Taipei in 1885.

Mixed Prices Dull Glow Of Rising Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market trading last week soared to the greatest total in 20 months but prices were mixed and cross currents prevailed.

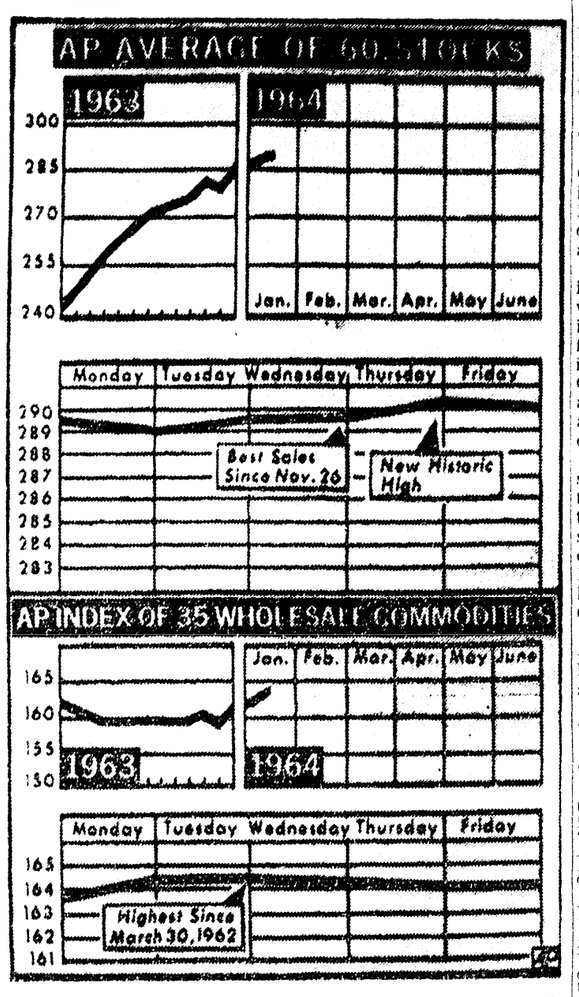

Some, but not all stock market averages touched all-time peaks as a selection of blue chips moved higher. American Telephone, for instance, ended the week at 144, its highest price in history, and cheered its army of shareholders.

The news was not so good for holders of many outstanding steels, motors, oils, airlines and cigarette stocks. The later reacted to the harsh government report on smoking and health. At the same time, there was a bull market in the stocks of cigar manufacturers because cigar and pipe smoking were treated mildly in the report.

Rising world prices for copper and domestic price boosts for aluminums gave these issues rallies, although the coppers relapsed later in the week.

One of the significant aspects of the week's trading was heavy trading in a number of volatile issues, most of them in the electronic and drug industries. To some observers this "forthy" action seemed cause for a warning.

Newton D. Zinder of E. F. Hutton & Co. said, "The market character seems to have changed rather abruptly this week from what was seen during most of 1963 and the early days of this year. One of the most pronounced and healthiest features of the 1963 bull market was the lack of speculative excesses which would have put the market in a more vulnerable position."

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks moved up for the third straight week, closing at 290.0 from 289.1 of a week ago. The weekly volume was the greatest since June, 1962. The commodity index, led by food, advanced for the eighth straight week, closing today at 164.0 from 163.8 of the prevous period. (AP Wirephoto)

The speculative activity was partly responsible for the rise in volume to 30,598,439 shares from 27,043,987 the previous week. It was the greatest total since the week ended June 2, when 40,563,230 shares changed hands.

Of 1,491 issues traded during the week, however, 670 declined and 652 advanced.

U.S. government bond prices headed upward during the week for the first time in nearly two months. Corporates also edged higher in the busiest New York Stock Exchange trading in 18 years.

Volume expanded to $74,844,000 par value from $63,965,000 the previous week and was the most since $84,825,000 for May 30-June 4, 1945.

VAPO-CHEK STOPS HIDDEN MOISTURE DAMAGE

Invisible water vapor rises silently from exposed ground . . . damages houses 10 ways . . . and damage is usually hidden!

19 gallons a day. Incredible as it may sound, there's an invisible "spring" under your house. The ground gives off water vapor . . . as much as 19 gallons per day in the average crawl space area. It rises silently, invisibly, and permeates the structure of your house. It goes through concrete, brick, wood, insulation. In addition to structural damage, it mildews carpets, furnishings and clothes, increases heat loss and creates moldy, sour odors in the crawl space itself.

The better your house, the greater the danger. The best-built, most modern homes are the most vulnerable. Tighter joints and better insulation hold in heat and increase condensation. The result is damage . . . often undetected.

What it is: Vapo-Chek is a 4-mil polyethylene membrane—a form of plastic sheeting—lightweight, tough, absolutely impervious to water vapor.

Recommended by BRAB: The Building Research Advisory Board, after extensive studies of moisture problems, recommends this flexible type ground cover without reservation.

Meets FHA requirements: Vapo-Chek conforms with minimum property requirements set forth in FHA Use of Materials Bulletin No. UM-20a, and moisture vapor requirements of Federal Specification UU-P-147b.

Saves vent and heating costs: With Vapo-Chek you need only one-tenth the usual size and number of crawl-space vent openings. Closing unneeded vents cut your heating costs in half. This saving alone usually pays for Vapo-Chek within two years.

How it works: When properly installed and overlapped on crawl space ground areas, Vapo-Chek holds water vapor at ground level.

Lifetime protection: When properly installed, Vapo-Chek will last the life of your home. It is deterioration-proof . . . will not rot, mold, mildew, harden, crack or peel . . . ever.

Cost is low: Many homes require only spot or perimeter applications of Vapo-Chek. Yet complete applications usually cost less than replacing one moisture-damaged joist.

Business Briefs

TOP AGENT

Ralph H. Murphy of West Monroe was among the top representatives of Colonial Life and Accident Insurance Company invited to attend the company's annual sales meeting in Columbia and Charleston, S. C.

The unique two-city meeting began in Columbia, home office of the South's largest underwriter of personal accident insurance, and then moved on to Charleston, often called America's Most Historic City.

Murphy also received a cash award for placing high in Colonial's sales contest leading up to the meeting.

GET CONTRACTS

Robert West, Regional Director of the Small Business Administration, announced that small firms in SBA's Region X received $86.1 million in government contracts during the five-month period ending Nov. 30, 1963, under SBA's cooperative set-aside program. This represents a substantial increase over the same period last fiscal year.

During the first five months of this fiscal year, West said small business in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas, comprising SBA's Region X, received 2,252 prime contracts valued at $86,129,000. This represents an increase over the same period of last fiscal year when 1,584 prime contracts valued at $68,080,000 were awarded as a result of SBA's cooperative set-aside program.

STROKES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The doctors call "CVA." When it happens to someone you know — spell it this way: cerebral vascular accident.

The National Heart Institute says such accidents occur when the blood supply to a part of the brain is cut off by hemorrhage or blockage of a blood vessel. Recovery after a stroke of this kind is dependent on the nature and extent of damage, doctors advise.

New Bills, Mills Raise Prices On Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures prices on the domestic market turned up at the end of this week to close $1.65-$2.85 cents higher.

The strength reflected a rather sudden influx of mill price-fixing and relatively active short covering on the possibility that it may be some time before any new cotton legislation is agreed upon.

Earlier in the week, the market had tended to back and fill.

The official consumption report for December, released Friday, was closely in keeping with trade expectations. Consequently, it had little effect on the market.

Exports of the staple were strong. The New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimated exports for the week ended Tuesday at 259,000 bales, the largest weekly move since April of 1961.

The total was 105,000 a week ago and 26,000 a year earlier. For the season so far, exports have reached a level of 2,304,000 bales, compared with 1,263,000 bales at this point a year ago.

Oil Industry Giant Once Bargain Priced

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One of the giants of the modern day oil industry was offered for sale for about $7.5 million nearly 62 years ago.

The sale offer was rejected, however, and the company now has assets approaching $5 billion.

This bit of background on the Gulf Oil Corp. is included in the second volume of a 1,792-page history of the first 100 years of the U.S. petroleum industry.

The eight-year project sponsored by the American Petroleum Institute was completed this week with the release of the second volume of "The American Petroleum Industry—1899-1959 The Age of Energy," Northwestern University Press ($7.50).

A prologue to the 1959 volume tells how Sumerians, Assyrians and Babylonians successfully exploited seepages of asphaltic oil in Mesopotamia before 3000 B.C. The 928-page second volume ends with an 18-page appendix detailing the history of organized labor within the American petroleum industry.

The 1959 book traced the story of American petroleum from its inception as a medicinal by-product of sale well operations through its development as a source of illumination — kerosene lamps — for a large portion of the world's population.

The new book is an account of the transformation of the industry from its primary role as a producer of illuminants to its current gasoline age status as a major supplier of energy.

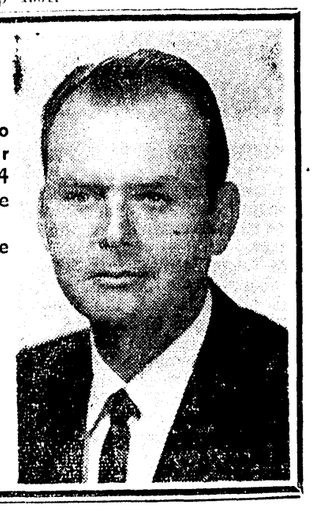

The first chapter of the second volume backgrounds the anti-trust ruling that forced John D. Rockefeller's Standard Oil trust in 1911 to give up control of 37 subsidiaries.

Some nine years earlier Standard had turned down a chance to purchase the Guffey Petroleum Co., one of several firms founded in the early months after the fabulous Spindletop oil discovery in southeast Texas in 1901.

Mixed Prices Dull Glow Of Rising Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market trading last week soared to the greatest total in 20 months but prices were mixed and cross currents prevailed.

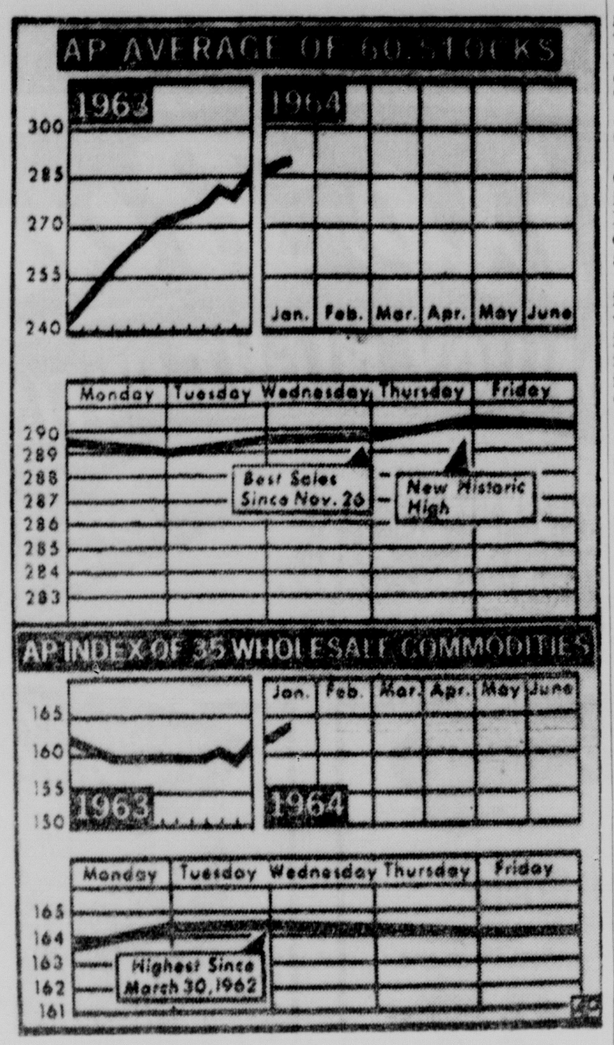

Some, but not all stock market averages touched all-time peaks as a selection of blue chips moved higher. American Telephone, for instance, ended the week at 144, its highest price in history, and cheered its army of shareholders.

The news was not so good for holders of many outstanding steels, motors, oils, airlines and cigarette stocks. The later reacted to the harsh government report on smoking and health. At the same time, there was a bull market in the stocks of cigar manufacturers because cigar and pipe smoking were treated mildly in the report.

Rising world prices for copper and domestic price boosts for aluminums gave these issues rallies, although the coppers relapsed later in the week.

One of the significant aspects of the week's trading was heavy trading in a number of volatile issues, most of them in the electronic and drug industries. To some observers this "forthy" action seemed cause for a warning.

Ralph H. Murphy of West Monroe was among the top representatives of Colonial Life and Accident Insurance Company invited to attend the company's annual sales meeting in Columbia and Charleston, S. C.

The unique two-city meeting began in Columbia, home office of the South's largest underwriter of personal accident insurance, and then moved on to Charleston, often called America's Most Historic City.

Murphy also received a cash award for placing high in Colonial's sales contest leading up to the meeting.

GET CONTRACTS

Robert West, Regional Director of the Small Business Administration, announced that small firms in SBA's Region X received $86.1 million in government contracts during the five-month period ending Nov. 30, 1963, under SBA's cooperative set-aside program. This represents a substantial increase over the same period last fiscal year.

During the first five months of this fiscal year, West said small business in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas, comprising SBA's Region X, received 2,252 prime contracts valued at $86,129,000. This represents an increase over the same period of last fiscal year when 1,584 prime contracts valued at $68,080,000 were awarded as a result of SBA's cooperative set-aside program.

STROKES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The doctors call "CVA." When it happens to someone you know — spell it this way: cerebral vascular accident.

The National Heart Institute says such accidents occur when the blood supply to a part of the brain is cut off by hemorrhage or blockage of a blood vessel. Recovery after a stroke of this kind is dependent on the nature and extent of damage, doctors advise.

New Bills, Mills Raise Prices On Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures prices on the domestic market turned up at the end of this week to close $1.65-$2.85 cents higher.

The strength reflected a rather sudden influx of mill price-fixing and relatively active short covering on the possibility that it may be some time before any new cotton legislation is agreed upon.

Earlier in the week, the market had tended to back and fill.

The official consumption report for December, released Friday, was closely in keeping with trade expectations. Consequently, it had little effect on the market.

Exports of the staple were strong. The New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimated exports for the week ended Tuesday at 259,000 bales, the largest weekly move since April of 1961.

The total was 105,000 a week ago and 26,000 a year earlier. For the season so far, exports have reached a level of 2,304,000 bales, compared with 1,263,000 bales at this point a year ago.

Oil Industry Giant Once Bargain Priced

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One of the giants of the modern day oil industry was offered for sale for about $7.5 million nearly 62 years ago.

The sale offer was rejected, however, and the company now has assets approaching $5 billion.

This bit of background on the Gulf Oil Corp. is included in the second volume of a 1,792-page history of the first 100 years of the U.S. petroleum industry.

The eight-year project sponsored by the American Petroleum Institute was completed this week with the release of the second volume of "The American Petroleum Industry—1899-1959 The Age of Energy," Northwestern University Press ($7.50).

A prologue to the 1959 volume tells how Sumerians, Assyrians and Babylonians successfully exploited seepages of asphaltic oil in Mesopotamia before 3000 B.C. The 928-page second volume ends with an 18-page appendix detailing the history of organized labor within the American petroleum industry.

The 1959 book traced the story of American petroleum from its inception as a medicinal by-product of sale well operations through its development as a source of illumination — kerosene lamps — for a large portion of the world's population.

The new book is an account of the transformation of the industry from its primary role as a producer of illuminants to its current gasoline age status as a major supplier of energy.

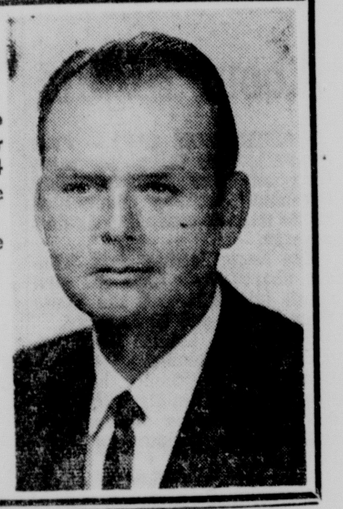

The first chapter of the second volume backgrounds the anti-trust ruling that forced John D. Rockefeller's Standard Oil trust in 1911 to give up control of 37 subsidiaries.

Some nine years earlier Standard had turned down a chance to purchase the Guffey Petroleum Co., one of several firms founded in the early months after the fabulous Spindletop oil discovery in southeast Texas in 1901.

THREE MONROE BUILDING contractors received national recognition this month when featured in a building trade journal as pioneers of a new concept of home building—quiet, sound-conditioned homes. ON NATIONAL LEVEL

Recognition Given To Local Builders

Monroe builders made news on the national level this month in their pioneering of a new building trend of quiet, sound-conditioned homes.

The three men who pioneered this new building concept that is beginning to sweep the nation and are largely responsible for Monroe home owners insisting on having sound conditioning features incorporated in their homes are Contractors Joe Ledoux, Frank Eason and Jim Bradford.

The three are featured in a "Quiet Home Concept" spread in the January issue of the national home builders trade journal, "Practical Builder."

The trend first came up for national recognition shortly before Monroe's annual Parade of Homes in September when Northeast Louisiana Home Builders Association executive secretary Ronald Morris explained the concept to Bob Hamil, senior editor of the trade journal.

Hamil, of Chicago, Ill., came to Monroe and made a tour of the Parade of Homes with Morris and decided an article should be done in an effort to determine why this trend was so popular and firmly entrenched here. The journal associate editor, James J. Shapiro, interviewed the three home builders and concluded the "personal touch" displayed by the three builders was responsible for the vast amount of selling of the quiet, sound-conditioning features in homes here.

The magazine feature shows each of the three builders demonstrating their means of selling the quiet concept to home owners—a social chat and guide through a newly constructed sound conditioned home used by Eason, the use of quiet light switches and carpeting demonstrated by Ledoux and the use of acoustical ceiling in main noise rooms of the house indicated by Bradford.

The three builders have been constructing sound conditioned homes in Monroe since 1958 and attracted such national attention that this concept was given prominent display at the December national convention of home builders in Chicago.

The "Quiet Home Concept" is now being pushed on a national level by NAHAB and features the toning down of everyday noises in homes and apartments that home owners are beginning to demand.

Derailed Train Scatters Cars In Mississippi

FORRESTON, Miss. (AP) — A 160-car Frisco freight train derailed here Saturday, scattering 25 cars along the line and ripping up over 100 yards of track. No one was reported injured.

Only seven of the cars derailed cars were loaded.

A railroad spokesman said the train was going about 40 miles an hour and that apparently a journal burned out at a switch, causing the train wheels to hurdle over the track.

Railroad crews from Birmingham, Ala., and Amory were sent to begin clearing the wreckage. It was estimated that the wreckage would be cleared by today.

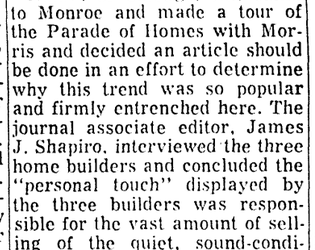

Traffic was rerouted along a Gulf, Mobile and Ohio line through Columbus and Meridian.

U.S. Concerned On Mid-East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outlook for 1964 in the Middle East is cause for concern but is not excessively alarming, authoritative U.S. sources said Saturday. They made this assessment after a thorough study of resolutions passed by the Arab summit conference on Friday.

Moreover, specialists of the area said, the final communique issued in Cairo by the 13-nation conference of Arab heads of state contained at least one positive element in addition to the expected stress on "Zionist danger."

This was the fact that the host, the United Arab Republic's Gamal Abdel Nasser, succeeded in bringing together at the conference table such enemies as the kings of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, on the one side, and Yemen's president on the other; that he himself patched up differences with Jordan; and that the conference improved relations between Algeria and Morocco.

Thus the Cairo summit of three kings, seven presidents, one crown prince, one Emir (prince), and one premier, turned out to be much broader than expected. Though this manifold reconciliation was only a byproduct of the meeting, its importance should not be ignored, officials advised.

It is, of course, not overlooked in Washington that the issue which brought so many Arab leaders together was Israel's announced intention to go ahead with its plan to divert the waters of the Jordan River to irrigate the Negev Desert. In fact opposition to Israel is probably the only issue which can bring the Arabs together, one U.S. informant remarked.

The joint communique itself did not spell out what action the Arabs would take on the Israeli plan. It called the Israeli project "a new mean aggression" and declared that the conference "had taken the necessary practical resolutions to avert the imminent Israeli danger."

High-ranking U.S. officials hint the United States will find means "to make our views known immediately." This diplomatic cliche means the administration will quietly warn the Arabs the United States would not sit on the sidelines in case of an armed conflict in the Middle East.

But administration experts dismiss the possibility of a serious clash between Israel and its neighbors. They recall Nasser's Cairo speech Dec. 24 in which the confronted Arab hotheads, especially the Syrians, with military realities.

"I am not ashamed to say that I cannot fight if I feel that I cannot win. If I cannot fight and then go out and fight I will only lead you to a disaster. Shall I gamble with my people? Impossible," Nasser said.

Discussing the vital water problem itself officials said the administration has no plans to take off the shelf the Jordan diversion plan worked out by the late Eric Johnston, the businessman-diplomat who acted on behalf of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

This plan, developed between 1953 and 1955, provided for what the experts call an equitable allocation of the waters of the Jordan and Yarmuk rivers among the four riparian states: Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, and Israel, by giving roughly 60 per cent of the precious water to the Arabs, and about 40 per cent to Israel.

While the Johnston plan was accepted by both parties on the technical level, the Arab League rejected it for political reasons which, according to an American official, boils down to this: what is good for Israel, is bad for the Arabs.

Still, Jordan has begun to divert the waters of the Yarmuk, the main tributary of the Jordan. Israel's Lake Tiberias project is nearing completion. The United States is convinced that both are within the allocations established in the Johnston plan.

World War I Veterans Set Meet In Area

RUSTON (Special)—A meeting to organize a barracks of veterans of World War I will be held 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the American Legion Hut here.

According to Marion E. Dupont, national deputy chief of staff and commander of Leo Terzia Barracks No. 3279, "All World War I veterans are invited to attend this meeting and join the veterans of World War I organization, if you are interested in an increase in pension for World War I veterans and an increase in benefits to veterans, widows and dependents."

Dupont said veterans would need to bring discharge papers or certified copies.

"The Veterans of World War I, U. S. A., Inc., is the third largest veterans organization in the U.S.A., with headquarters in Washington, D. C." Dupont said.

"They had 241,000 members in 1963 and expected to have 300,000 in 1964," he said.

Dupont said he woud make a talk on veterans' conditions and hospital conditions regarding veterans of World War I at the meeting.

THREE MONROE BUILDING contractors received national recognition this month when featured in a building trade journal as pioneers of a new concept of home building—quiet, sound-conditioned homes. ON NATIONAL LEVEL

Recognition Given To Local Builders

Monroe builders made news on the national level this month in their pioneering of a new building trend of quiet, sound-conditioned homes.

The three men who pioneered this new building concept that is beginning to sweep the nation and are largely responsible for Monroe home owners insisting on having sound conditioning features incorporated in their homes are Contractors Joe Ledoux, Frank Eason and Jim Bradford.

The three are featured in a "Quiet Home Concept" spread in the January issue of the national home builders trade journal, "Practical Builder."

The trend first came up for national recognition shortly before Monroe's annual Parade of Homes in September when Northeast Louisiana Home Builders Association executive secretary Ronald Morris explained the concept to Bob Hamil, senior editor of the trade journal.

Hamil, of Chicago, Ill., came to Monroe and made a tour of the Parade of Homes with Morris and decided an article should be done in an effort to determine why this trend was so popular and firmly entrenched here. The journal associate editor, James J. Shapiro, interviewed the three home builders and concluded the "personal touch" displayed by the three builders was responsible for the vast amount of selling of the quiet, sound-conditioning features in homes here.

The magazine feature shows each of the three builders demonstrating their means of selling the quiet concept to home owners—a social chat and guide through a newly constructed sound conditioned home used by Eason, the use of quiet light switches and carpeting demonstrated by Ledoux and the use of acoustical ceiling in main noise rooms of the house indicated by Bradford.

The three builders have been constructing sound conditioned homes in Monroe since 1958 and attracted such national attention that this concept was given prominent display at the December national convention of home builders in Chicago.

The "Quiet Home Concept" is now being pushed on a national level by NAHAB and features the toning down of everyday noises in homes and apartments that home owners are beginning to demand.

Derailed Train Scatters Cars In Mississippi

FORRESTON, Miss. (AP) — A 160-car Frisco freight train derailed here Saturday, scattering 25 cars along the line and ripping up over 100 yards of track. No one was reported injured.

Only seven of the cars derailed cars were loaded.

A railroad spokesman said the train was going about 40 miles an hour and that apparently a journal burned out at a switch, causing the train wheels to hurdle over the track.

Railroad crews from Birmingham, Ala., and Amory were sent to begin clearing the wreckage. It was estimated that the wreckage would be cleared by today.

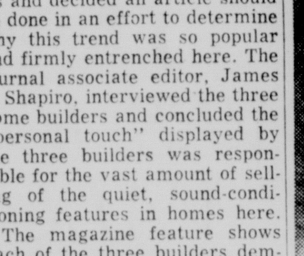

Traffic was rerouted along a Gulf, Mobile and Ohio line through Columbus and Meridian.

U.S. Concerned On Mid-East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outlook for 1964 in the Middle East is cause for concern but is not excessively alarming, authoritative U.S. sources said Saturday. They made this assessment after a thorough study of resolutions passed by the Arab summit conference on Friday.

Moreover, specialists of the area said, the final communique issued in Cairo by the 13-nation conference of Arab heads of state contained at least one positive element in addition to the expected stress on "Zionist danger."

This was the fact that the host, the United Arab Republic's Gamal Abdel Nasser, succeeded in bringing together at the conference table such enemies as the kings of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, on the one side, and Yemen's president on the other; that he himself patched up differences with Jordan; and that the conference improved relations between Algeria and Morocco.

Thus the Cairo summit of three kings, seven presidents, one crown prince, one Emir (prince), and one premier, turned out to be much broader than expected. Though this manifold reconciliation was only a byproduct of the meeting, its importance should not be ignored, officials advised.

It is, of course, not overlooked in Washington that the issue which brought so many Arab leaders together was Israel's announced intention to go ahead with its plan to divert the waters of the Jordan River to irrigate the Negev Desert. In fact opposition to Israel is probably the only issue which can bring the Arabs together, one U.S. informant remarked.

The joint communique itself did not spell out what action the Arabs would take on the Israeli plan. It called the Israeli project "a new mean aggression" and declared that the conference "had taken the necessary practical resolutions to avert the imminent Israeli danger."

High-ranking U.S. officials hint the United States will find means "to make our views known immediately." This diplomatic cliche means the administration will quietly warn the Arabs the United States would not sit on the sidelines in case of an armed conflict in the Middle East.

But administration experts dismiss the possibility of a serious clash between Israel and its neighbors. They recall Nasser's Cairo speech Dec. 24 in which the confronted Arab hotheads, especially the Syrians, with military realities.

"I am not ashamed to say that I cannot fight if I feel that I cannot win. If I cannot fight and then go out and fight I will only lead you to a disaster. Shall I gamble with my people? Impossible," Nasser said.

Discussing the vital water problem itself officials said the administration has no plans to take off the shelf the Jordan diversion plan worked out by the late Eric Johnston, the businessman-diplomat who acted on behalf of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

This plan, developed between 1953 and 1955, provided for what the experts call an equitable allocation of the waters of the Jordan and Yarmuk rivers among the four riparian states: Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, and Israel, by giving roughly 60 per cent of the precious water to the Arabs, and about 40 per cent to Israel.

While the Johnston plan was accepted by both parties on the technical level, the Arab League rejected it for political reasons which, according to an American official, boils down to this: what is good for Israel, is bad for the Arabs.

Still, Jordan has begun to divert the waters of the Yarmuk, the main tributary of the Jordan. Israel's Lake Tiberias project is nearing completion. The United States is convinced that both are within the allocations established in the Johnston plan.

World War I Veterans Set Meet In Area

RUSTON (Special)—A meeting to organize a barracks of veterans of World War I will be held 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the American Legion Hut here.

According to Marion E. Dupont, national deputy chief of staff and commander of Leo Terzia Barracks No. 3279, "All World War I veterans are invited to attend this meeting and join the veterans of World War I organization, if you are interested in an increase in pension for World War I veterans and an increase in benefits to veterans, widows and dependents."

Dupont said veterans would need to bring discharge papers or certified copies.

"The Veterans of World War I, U. S. A., Inc., is the third largest veterans organization in the U.S.A., with headquarters in Washington, D. C." Dupont said.

"They had 241,000 members in 1963 and expected to have 300,000 in 1964," he said.

Dupont said he woud make a talk on veterans' conditions and hospital conditions regarding veterans of World War I at the meeting.

DEMOCRAT UNITY

Free Electors Bid Appears On Rise

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The move for independent presidential electors Saturday claimed to be picking up some needed support as Gov.-nominee John J. McKeithen worked for unity in Louisiana's Democratic party.

What some consider a Republican threat in this Democratic stronghold may tend to put off an electors showdown in the Democratic State Central Committee until after the March 3 general election.

A leader of the independent electors move said confidently "You can be sure we are working every minute" to nail down a central committee majority before a meeting Wednesday.

"We'll know Wednesday," said state Sen. Harold Montgomery, Doyline, chairman of the committee for free electors in Louisiana in a telephone interview.

Montgomery said "any number" of people elected to the committee, which serves as the state party's board of directors, may favor the move to strengthen states rights and segregation, although they didn't answer an independent elector questionnaire.

The policy-making committee, elected in recent party primaries will take office and organize at a meeting here.

A showdown on the electors question was expected, but some new members apparently wanted to put aside any crucial vote until after the general election.

State Sen. nominee J. D. DeBlieux, Baton Rouge, said he had no worries about the independent electors challenge since only 40 of the 105 committee members elected were listed as pledged to independent electors.

DeBlieux said he expected the issue to be shoved aside Wednesday until after the general election.

"I have no reason to believe," he said, "we will do anything about it Wednesday."

DeBlieux said "it doesn't make a particle of difference" what the committee does about the independent electors resolution rammed through the committee last summer by Leander H. Perez Sr.

Perez, Plaquemines Parish political kingpin, won approval of a resolution to set up a two-slate party primary next July for presidential electors — with both slates to be picked by the committee. One slate would be pledged to the national party nominee and the other to conservative independents.

DeBlieux said the electors problem was one for the legislature to solve anyway, and there was nothing to worry about if the party committee rescinded it before the May legislature.

The Baton Rouge committee member said unless the legislature passes a law to back up the resolution it "will not have accomplished anything." The legislature could nullify or implement it, he said.

Besides, he added, "I don't think the people will stand for (the committee) depriving them of the right to choose electors of their choice."

Perez has insisted the choice would be made within the Democratic party electorate under the independent electors plan.

DeBlieux criticizes the move as a device to allow the conservative, segregationist faction of the party to "take on their opponents one at a time. They won't risk having their electors on the general election ballot along with all the others."

Montgomery said he had "high hopes" the independent elector plan will work. Mississippi's Gov.-nominee, Paul Johnson, he said, "is with us all the way, and he is using what influence he might have in Louisiana to help us."

In efforts by telephone, Montgomery said, he had picked up one, possibly two, committee votes for the move in Jefferson Parish, and two in Calcasieu Parish.

Whether the 13 added votes needed to assure committee control can be in by Wednesday, he said, "remains to be seen."

McKeithen won't be in the state when the central committee meets Wednesday. He plans to be "out west" for a week of rest.

Gov. Barnett Hits Try To End Poll Tax

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) Gov. Ross Barnett Sunday attacked abolishment of poll taxes by constitutional amendment as an encroachment on states' rights.

"Each state should have the right to control its own affairs with reference to state elections — all elections held within the state," Barnett said.

The blast came when asked his opinion of the near ratification of such an amendment to the constitution by South Dakota or Arizona.

Both states' legislatures are presently in session and considering ratification. Maine became the 37th state to ratify the amendment Thursday.

Only one state more is needed for abolishing the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting in federal elections. The amendment would not affect state voting.

"If a man isn't willing to pay a poll tax of $2," Barnett said, "I don't believe he's very much interested in good government."

The governor told a press conference "I'm unalterably opposed to doing away with poll taxes. Voting is not a right, it's a privilege."

Barnett said "when you get away from the idea of not being able to control your own affairs — you have lost the most precious freedom that the people know of."

The governor, who leaves office Tuesday, said "each state ought to be able to control its own voting affairs."

When questioned about the possible ratification, he said "it's obliged to be unAmerican in principle and undemocratic in execution."

"We've had the poll tax here for many years. The people are happy with it. It pays for our schools."

Finances from poll taxes by law are used for school purposes.

Barnett announced the appointment of a committee to study the feasibility of establishing an atomic energy and space commission to study development of nuclear and space industries.

The governor requested the committee report to incoming Gov.-Elect Paul Johnson and the legislature recommendations within the next 20 days.

Mrs. Kennedy Flies To Boston For Church Rite

BOSTON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy flew into Boston on Saturday to be on hand for the solemn pontifical Requiem Mass on Sunday in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in memory of her husband.

She was accompanied by her sister, Lee Radziwill, her sister-in-law, Eunice Shriver and Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass.

Other members of the Kennedy family and 1,800 invited persons will attend the 10 a.m. Mass celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra and a 180-voice choir will take part. Symphony conductor Erich Leinsdorf will lead the orchestra in Mozart's Requiem Mass in D Minor.

Rigid security measures will be enforced. Strict watch rules of the Secret Service were invoked Friday night during rehearsals by the orchestra, chorus and solists.

Cardinal Cushing told the members of the orchestra and chorus Saturday that Mrs. Kennedy "will be happy to see you folks."

He added: "I know she wants to meet you. I know she'll want to thank you. She'll be sitting in the front pew right over there. (He pointed to the first pew on the epistle side.)

"There will be a great national coverage. Over 200 television stations will carry the services. So good luck. I'll do the best I can. I don't know much about music. I've got the voice of a fish peddler."

The last remark brought bursts of applause from the orchestra and choir.

Then the cardinal said: "I'll fit in perfect with whatever you want me to do. God bless you."

The Mass will be televised nationally.

LBJ Re-Names CAB Chairman To New Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson designated Alan S. Boyd Saturday for a new term as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, described as untrue reports that Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts had protested to the President against a reappointment for Boyd.

The reports had developed after the annual designation of a chairman had been delayed beyond the first of the year.

Boyd, nevertheless, aroused considerable resentment among New England members of Congress for his vote against allowing Northeast Airlines to continue operating on the New York-Florida run.

Johnson also designated Robert T. Murphy for a new one-year term as vice chairman of the board.

Boyd and Murphy have served as chairman and vice chairman of the board respectively since 1961.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra and a 180-voice choir will take part. Symphony conductor Erich Leinsdorf will lead the orchestra in Mozart's Requiem Mass in D Minor.

Rigid security measures will be enforced. Strict watch rules of the Secret Service were invoked Friday night during rehearsals by the orchestra, chorus and solists.

Cardinal Cushing told the members of the orchestra and chorus Saturday that Mrs. Kennedy "will be happy to see you folks."

He added: "I know she wants to meet you. I know she'll want to thank you. She'll be sitting in the front pew right over there. (He pointed to the first pew on the epistle side.)

"There will be a great national coverage. Over 200 television stations will carry the services. So good luck. I'll do the best I can. I don't know much about music. I've got the voice of a fish peddler."

The last remark brought bursts of applause from the orchestra and choir.

Then the cardinal said: "I'll fit in perfect with whatever you want me to do. God bless you."

The Mass will be televised nationally.

LBJ Re-Names CAB Chairman To New Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson designated Alan S. Boyd Saturday for a new term as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, described as untrue reports that Speaker John W. McCormack of Massachusetts had protested to the President against a reappointment for Boyd.

The reports had developed after the annual designation of a chairman had been delayed beyond the first of the year.

Boyd, nevertheless, aroused considerable resentment among New England members of Congress for his vote against allowing Northeast Airlines to continue operating on the New York-Florida run.

Johnson also designated Robert T. Murphy for a new one-year term as vice chairman of the board.

Boyd and Murphy have served as chairman and vice chairman of the board respectively since 1961.

Memories That Linger

Interesting objects and documents from early periods in area and national history are featured at the Ouachita Valley Museum here, and visitors from many sections of the nation have inspected them. Indications that memories of these visits linger on, are furnished by letters received by museum officials asking for more information on some items, and offering commendation.

The Ouachita Valley Museum in downtown Monroe has been visited by persons from many sections of the nation since its opening last July. And for many it has provided the material for memories that linger.

Recently a visitor from another state decided after returning home that he would like to learn more details about some of the objects he had seen in the museum. He addressed a letter in care of the desk clerk of a nearby hotel and asked that it be forwarded to Mrs. Aline Banister, second vice president of the museum.

And there are others who write asking for an assortment of information. Some letters express appreciation to the officials for their helpfulness in making museum tours pleasant and enlightening.

The museum is housed in the red brick building at 131 St. John St., which first was used as a post office, and later was headquarters for the Parish Health Department.

The museum originally was quartered for several years at Northeast State College and was operated by local members of the Louisiana Genealogical and Historical Society.

Then it was moved to its present site and the Ouachita Valley Historical Society was organized to operate it. On the day of its formal opening to the general public, July 14 of last year, some 1,200 persons visited it.

Since that time visitations have continued at a pace ranging up to 25, and on one occasion 70, in a day. The museum has proven popular with school children.

In addition to Mrs. Banister, officers of the Historical Society include Lawrence Gibbs, president; Jimmy Newburn, first vice president; Mrs. Judy Carroway, secretary; Mrs. Travis Tynes, corresponding secretary, and Pat Thompson, treasurer.

Mrs. Banister and Mrs. R. N. Milling are among the Historical Society members who devote a lot of their time in operation of the museum daily Tuesday through Saturday from 12 noon until 4 p.m.

FIRST FLOOR

The operations of the museum are confined to the first floor, because, as Mrs. Banister observed, "It would be rather hard for the older folks to climb those stairs."

Ten rooms are in use at present and there are plans to place special exhibits in some of the other rooms available on the first floor of the building, Mrs. Banister said. The group plans to eventually construct a new building for its use.

Visitors entering the museum pass by the visitor's registry, and one of the first objects to catch their attention is a large "peacock design" reed chair, hand woven many years ago by prisoners at Bilibv Prison in the Philippines.

The chair is about six feet tall, dark brown, with a fan shape back, circular seat, and circular base. It was donated to the museum by Mrs. Edith Gunby of Monroe.

Objects in the museum range from hand carved rolling pins to muzzle loading firearms, old spinning wheel, early period clothing and bedroom, and copies of newspapers proclaiming news of stirring events in the history of the nation, among many other things.

Officials have hopes of fixing up a room with an old fashioned fireplace and other fixtures and furnishings that would be associated with that period.

In one room are beautifully glazed plates ranging in age from 125 years to more than 200 years.

NEWS ON SILK

In a nearby case is a copy of the old Kansas City (Mo.) World of April 30, 1903, printed on silk with pages hemmed at top and bottom, proclaiming, among other things, the forthcoming visit of President Teddy Roosevelt to Kansas City. Roosevelt had been in St. Louis to dedicate the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

Some other objects include old pewterware and an old brass bell which an inscription says was used to call workers from the cotton gin.

"They rang it so hard," said Mrs. Milling, "that they cracked a hole in the side."

An early bedroom suite featured in one room has quilts in it ranging in age from 100 to more than 200 years. The oldest quilt, said Mrs. Banister, was buried underground in a trunk to keep the Yankees from getting it during the Civil War, and it has water marks on it.

REMINDERS

Some reminders of an earlier way of life include:

An old gourd drinking dipper and a cedar water bucket bought around 1900, and donated by J. W. Garland of Rayville, who also donated old cotton cards.

Two hand - carved rolling pins of about 1750 vintage, donated by Mrs. Lewis Slater of Monroe.

Earthenware foot warmer dating from around 1885, used under lap blanket by persons riding in buggy to keep feet warm. Shaped like a jug, with a plug in the side, it could be heated by filling with hot water. It belonged to the father of F. M. Culver of Monroe.

Complex-appearing sock knitting machine used by Mrs. Fanny May who died at the age of 78 in 1930. It was donated by W. R. Clark of West Monroe.

Doll collection with some objects more than 100 years old. One doll is made out of buckskin with the exception of the head which is of bisque, topped with real blonde hair. Another doll has head, hands and feet of china and body of cloth with sawdust filling. It is clothed in a frilly dress.

One doll has head and body of cloth, face with natural skin tinting, and its head is adorned with natural brown hair. Its full, long dress is a gayly colored oriental type.

There are many other things of interest ranging from early days to compilations of historical data dating to the present time, and the outlook is for a steady increase in the museum's objects, say officials.

A HAND-CARVED wooden rolling pin used around 1750 in rolling bread and cake dough for home baking purposes, is held by Mrs. Aline Banister. It is one of two rolling pins in the Ouachita Valley Museum's collection.

A GOURD DRINKING dipper and cedar water bucket of 1900 vintage are reminders of the days before the spread of automation into the average home. Mrs. Banister gives many sidelights on objects in the Museum.

THIS IS ONE of a number of display cases at the Ouachita Valley Museum containing objects associated with other eras. The museum is open from noon until 4 p.m. five days a week.

New Frontier Fading

Two members of the triumvirate which supporters of fundamental Americanism believe helped to misguide the late President John F. Kennedy down the dark paths of integration and socialism at home and one-worldism and loss of prestige abroad are fading from the Washington scene. Theodore Sorensen has resigned and Attorney General Robert Kennedy is being sent abroad. The third member, McGeorge Bundy, is still around but it is doubtful if anyone pays much attention to what he says, which is fortunate.

Sorensen will leave the White House staff at the end of February to write a personal account of his 11 years with the assassinated chief executive.

In many important respects, Sorenson was Kennedy's principal White House adviser. He handled a broad array of policy questions and was, at all times, Kennedy's chief speech writer.

Of course, the man President Kennedy listened to most was his brother, Robert Kennedy, whom he named attorney general shortly after his inauguration. In addition to heading the department of justice, Robert Kennedy was herd-rider on all the other departments of government and was the nation's chief integration pusher. In fact, he went so far in that direction and the integration marches aroused so much resentment that President Kennedy was reported, about two weeks before his assassination, to have told him to ease off, as he was losing more white votes than he was gaining Negro votes.

Bundy, another principal presidential adviser, worked assiduously to concentrate all the power in the White House and to take it away from heads of government departments and military chiefs. He also pulled strongly at times against other men in government service, and Adlai Stevenson, ambassador to the United Nations, was said to have been among that number.

Robert Kennedy now seems destined to fill the role that President Johnson filled while he served as vice-president — that of international chaser. President Kennedy kept Johnson out of the country a good part of the time by sending him on missions to other countries.

One of President Johnson's latest moves was to send Robert Kennedy on a trip to Indonesia to impress on President Sukarno this country's concern over his threats against the new state of Malaysia. The attorney general is about the last person in government that one would expect to be sent on a foreign mission and it is a far cry from the role of department herd-rider and integration pusher which Robert Kennedy formerly filled, but it gets him out of Washington, which is what President Kennedy did with Johnson.

As the first of Kennedy's intimates to leave Johnson's staff, Sorenson was asked whether he thought his action might encourage others to resign.

"I certainly hope it will not encourage others to follow suit," he replied.

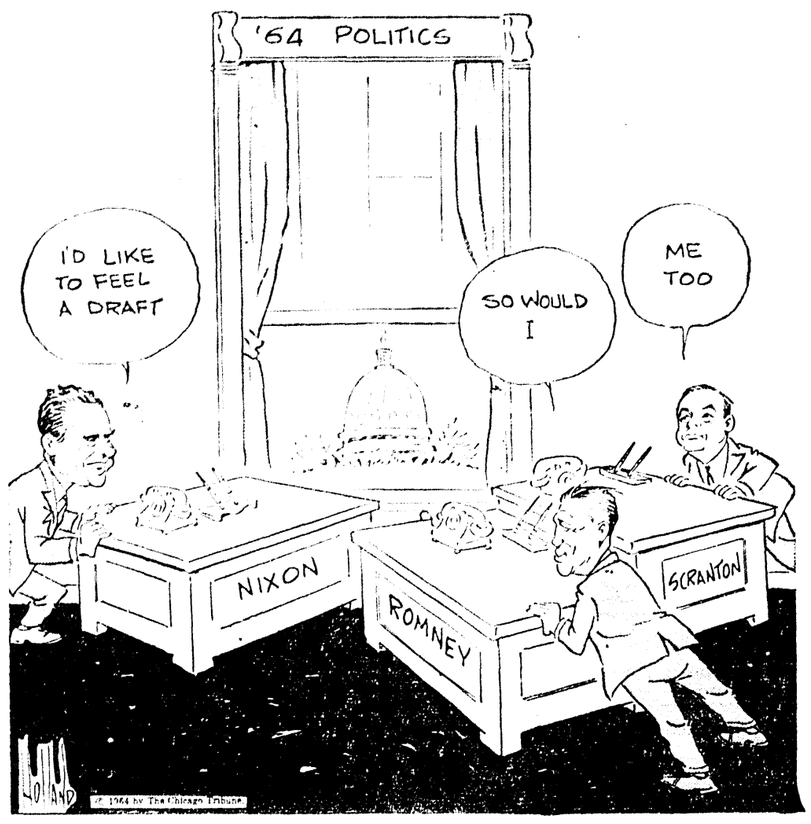

He said he thought Robert Kennedy's decision to remain in the cabinet would influence the late president's associates to stay on the job.

It has been suggested that Robert Kennedy might be the choice for Democratic vice - presidential nominee but many give President Johnson credit for more astute thinking than that.

In Johnson's economy campaign, he might well dismiss a good many of the associates of the late President Kennedy, since some of them are no longer anything more than figureheads, but the chief executive, for political reasons, is not likely to do that until after the 1964 presidential election.

Anyhow, we are largely rid of the influence of Kennedy's White House triumvirate. That, in the opinion of those who believe in democracy, states' rights, free enterprise and freedom of the individual, is good.

Views Of Our Readers

Toward Lord's Words

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In the editorial "Deepening Urgency": Soon men will ride the thrusting fire of rockets far beyond our world. Looking back on earth, hanging in the darkness of space, perhaps they will be the first to find the way of the Lord's words.

As Matthew 22:37-39 said: "Jesus said unto him, thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

The earth is the round, or lopsided "thing" people, animals, trees, birds, congressmen, "dropouts" from school and so on live or exist "on." The world is the ways and words of people through the days, years, centuries.

Those people that ride the rockets or whatever they may be, will not be the first to find "the way of the Lord's words." They are not interested in it.

There are plenty of "things" and "ways" right here on earth that those people could work about to clean up the mess we have here in our block, along our street, in town or state we live in, in the whole federal government.

We have the matter of the "black Monday" decision in 1954 that was not the law. The United States Constitution (made in 1787—nearly 200 years ago) did not and still does not, in 1964, back the decision.

The law of congress in 1948 (how to get a lawsuit for a "civil" or common lawsuit into the U.S. federal district court) denies the decision could have been made "in" the U.S. supreme court at all.

The 14th amendment was not legally made in 1866; it was not legally ratified by the terms of article 5 of the U.S. Constitution, and the U.S. supreme court has not proved the amendment was "legal" let alone using it to befoozle the people between Canada and the Gulf of Mexico.

Cleaning out that one mess as it should be fought out is more important than going to the moon or around the earth "to beat the Russians being first." That mess was told the people here and the rest of the world.

No, going to the moon or around the earth five times in any one 24-hour day will not get "to the Lord's words." It does not even reach toward it.

Bloc Voting

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Some years ago I was invited by a prominent newspaper to be guest writer of an editorial on desirability, vel non, of bloc voting in which was emphasized the justification for defensive bloc voting in matters of vital public concern.

We have lived to see a shining exemplification of both offensive and defensive bloc voting, when voters last week discarded all meritorious considerations to vote either offensively or defensively without regard to public good. Need I remind the reader the defense won a decisive victory humiliating to the offensive?

Such electoral conduct of the offensive bloc in this instance was reprehensible and hardly recommends for good citizenship those guilty, especially at a time when they are heard to loudly proclaim "EQUALITY NOW." Such unit action tends only to augment existing argument against voting privileges for the unqualified, gullible and willing victims of the political Judas goat.

Offensive bloc voting can never be conducted with that degree of secrecy needed to surprise the opposition. It can only fairly be expected to be met by justifiable DEFENSIVE bloc voting, all of which, in the bitter end, endangers the public choice of better qualified aspirants and damages human relations.

It is my fond hope and fervent prayer that the recent result was divinely ordained. May God endow the fortunate nominee with strength and wisdom to outshine his predecessors in service, give him the will to do right and the courage to resist wrong. A four - year course will tell!

Good citizenship in all ranks demands exercise of the voting franchise by the uncoerced conscience, untrammelled by either offers of reward or warnings of disaster and founded solely on merit, justice and fairness for all people, not excluding, believe it or not, THE WHITE RACE!

W. M. HARPER.

Appalling Example

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

First, let me say that I am one hundred percent for our Southern way of life. Having a great-grandfather buried in the Confederate cemetery at Vicksburg and being a native of the oldest community in Franklin Parish, I could be called a true daughter of the South.

Well, this daughter of the South loves above all truth, honor, and integrity, and I am sorry to say I find it seldom reflected in your editorials which I believe most of the public must resent also.

A particular editorial "Their Private School" (Wednesday, January 8) is an appalling example: ". . . . NOW it is revealed that the late President Kennedy organized in the White House a privately - financed school, and about 20 other children of her age from around the families of Washington officialdom. . . ."

Could it be possible that your editorial staff is so uninformed that they just NOW know of the kindergarten in the White House? Or do you choose to use any instrument possible without regard to truth to spread your bias and hate?

I read quite an interesting feature story on school in the White House this past year in a leading woman's magazine. (There happened to be a Negro child in this class, by the way, for obvious reasons). After the assassination of our late president, I read a news item in your paper that school would continue in the White House until other arrangements could be made.

For what interests are your editorials written that your staff, which must be of at least average intelligence, must stoop to such petty misinformation to try to keep alive the "hate" Kennedy program you spawned?

It would truly be good to see the day again when a newspaper editorial represented the opinion of one man — a big man who respected truth wherever the chips might fall.

Courting Agitators

Mount Sterling, Ky.

To the Editor:

No people can ever have an enemy as bitter as one of their own kith and kin who, for personal profit and aggrandizement, turns against them and goes over to the foe. By his own statements and open courting of the Negro agitators, Lyndon Johnson has proved himself not to be either a Southerner or a Westerner but a Boston-Philadelphia-New York-Chicago ward heeler with a legal residence in Texas, who would turn the government of the United States over to an incapable, undeserving and wholly irresponsible ten per cent minority.

Since we are reliably informed that he is seriously considering a Kennedy brother-in-law for his running mate we have the right to look upon Johnson as just another of the Kennedy boys. It was, we must recall, "at the request of the Kennedy family" that he changed the name of Cape Canaveral, and he did this by "executive fiat" just the way Hitler or Khrushchev would have done such a job. Johnson is entirely too amenable to the requests of the Kennedys to be a safe President for the South.

Franklin Reynolds

Writer Disagrees

Columbus, Ohio

To the Editor:

On December 23, 1963 David Lawrence, editor of U. S. News and World Report, expounded upon the virtues of "Naming Warren Probe Head Regarded as Wise Decision."

I fail to see the logic of his reasoning. Did not Chief Justice Earl Warren prejudge the crime to be the result of hate groups before the facts were known, and during the time such commentators as Bill Ryan, Inez Robb, and Edward P. Morgan, and others virtually echoed Communist news reports from Russia accusing the "radical rights"?

And another member of the administration's investigating committee, Rep. Hale Boggs, Democrat, La., is credited with the following quote: "The radicals and haters in politics and elsewhere have had their way. They are the ones who really pulled the trigger which killed the great American, but they won't prevail."

It seems to me that both Chief Justice Warren and Rep. Boggs disqualified themselves to sit as members of the administration's investigating committees. It seems further to me that maybe we should have an investigation of the investigators.

The poison spewed by Mr. Warren and Mr. Boggs calls to my mind the contents of an anonymous letter received by me in response to a Letter to the Editor by me in which I said . . . . "were I a Supreme Court Justice or the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and had rendered 36 out of 39 decisions in favor of Communists or were I the Attorney General and had failed to carry out the mandates of the courts to force the registration and sentencing of Communists, I would surely have a guilty conscience." The letter received by me read: "Why don't you move down to Alabama with that un-American Gov. Wallace and his cohorts. He helped pull the trigger Nov. 22nd and he should be feeling guilty. I'd like to see him hang from the highest tree.

This demonstrates who are really the hate mongers and that one had better not make any accusations or statements about "their" friends.

Please Don't Destroy

Parents have been blamed for many things, sometimes justifiably and sometimes not, but one thing every parent should teach his children is to avoid wanton or selfish destruction. First, the parent himself must have a sense of responsibility and regard for others and he must instill it into his children from their infancy.

Without responsible parents we cannot have responsible children — and this becomes a widening wave of irresponsibility that licks away the foundations of a nation's stability.

Recently, in Charlotte, N. C., a high school class was given an assignment on the life of John Milton. By evening, every article on Milton had been cut from every encyclopedia in the main public library.

Only a person steeped in utter selfishness could commit such an act. Only one of that type could forget or ignore completely the rights of other people. A person who thinks only of his own immediate wants and disregards what others who come after him may need is a distroyer of the worst kind. No one trained in early childhood to have respect for the rights of others will become a destroyer. To him, the destruction of a book to serve a momentary purpose is unthinkable.

Because of vandalism, many of the best libraries throughout the country have suffered great damage. The huge Brooklyn Public Library sets its annual book loss, through theft, borrowing without return and mutilation at half a million dollars, representing more books than many libraries ever own. Teachers unwittingly encourage mutilation when they give extra credit for illustrations pasted into notebooks or reports, but some vandals are adults.

A proposed drastic remedy is publicized prosecution under laws that exist in all states. In 1961 East Orange, N. J., made headlines when borrowers ignoring repeated warnings to return books were arrested at their homes in the middle of the night. We don't condone midnight arrests, as they smack too much of police state tactics, but something must be done. In the East Orange case, thousands of missing books were returned to libraries all over New Jersey.

Sets of encyclopedias cost hundreds of dollars. When one person cuts pages from these books he destroys their use for thousands of other people. How ruthless can anyone become?

More than 3,000 Americans are being kept alive today by electronic pacemakers in cases where the patients own heartbeats are undependable, specialists in this new medical field estimate.

Castro Wants In Warsaw Alliance

LAYING THE GROUNDWORK for Fidel Castro's becoming a member of the Warsaw Pact Alliance is definitely one aspect of the Cuban dictator's mysterious visit to Moscow.

Intelligence has gotten wind of this new Kremlin military-diplomatic bombshell from authoritive satellite sources.

They have reported two highly significant backstage developments:

(1) Marshal Andrei Grechko, Warsaw Pact commander, while on an inspection tour of Soviet Polish forces, was hurriedly summoned to Moscow several days before Castro's sudden arrival. (The Cuban ruler has conferred several times with Grechko and Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, Russian Defense Minister.)

What comes of this secret scheme to bring Cuba into the Warsaw Alliance remains to be seen. Nothing concrete is considered likely at this time.

Rather, it is anticipated that the current discussions will constitute the basis for further steps. The next most probable is an exchange of visits by Pact and Cuban military missions, followed by a formal agreement and an elaborately staged and publicized signing ceremony.

TWO KEY FACTORS are believed behind this latest Kremlin move:

(1) To tie Castro closer to the Soviet block. The volatile Cuban dictator has balked at signing the nuclear test ban treaty, and despite virtual complete dependence on Russia and its satellites for economic existence, has played footsy from time to time with Red China. By bringing him within the Warsaw Alliance field, the Kremlin presumably would have a tighter grip on him.

(2) As a warning to the new Johnson administration against any military measures aimed at Cuba, particularly by armed refugees. The Kremlin is understood to hold the view that the new President is likely to be tougher toward Cuba than his late predecessor. Making Castro an official member of the Warsaw Pact, presumably, would operate as a "deterrent" on Johnson.

In the past month, Castro has received some additional Soviet block arms and personnel. His air force is now estimated at around 400 fighter-interceptors — MIG — 17s, 19s, and 21s.

While capable of carrying nuclear armed rockets, these planes are publicly regarded as "defensive" by the Pentagon.

WHAT'S BEHIND GOLDWATER'S CHALLENGE — Unpublished testimony before Senate committees by two top air force commanders strongly supports Senator Barry Goldwater's sensational challenge of this country's highly touted intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The two commanders are General Curtis Le May, Air Force Chief of Staff, and General Thomas Power, head of the Strategic Air Command and the only senior officers to unquivocably oppose the nuclear test ban treaty. Le May expressed his doubts about the reliability of ICBM's to the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Power in an appearance before the Armed Services Preparedness subcommittee.

While testifying several months ago, their comments are still under lock and key.

Senator John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the preparedness subcommittee, has several times sought Pentagon approval to publish Power's testimony. Defense Secretary McNamara has refused.

Crux of Power's contention is that when the Russians tested their 50-60 megaton bombs two years ago, vital segments of our defense communication system and a number of concrete-shielded ICBM's were, in effect, rendered useless. This was attributed to electronic-magnetic pulses set off by stupendous nuclear explosions which knock out delicate electronic equipment much as lightening striking a house blacks out a TV set.

GENERAL POWER maintained that U.S. missiles cannot be deemed dependable until we ourselves conduct high - megaton tests in the atmosphere to determine their effect on missiles and communication systems. He expressed belief that Russia already had such information as a result of its tests.

Secretary McNamara, who vigorously refuted Senator Goldwater's blast, has balked at releasing Power's testimony.

General Le May raised still another point regarding the reliability of our long-range missiles in his discussion before the Senate Armed Services Committee. He stressed that they have never been adequately tested, and can't be under restrictions imposed by Secretary McNamara.

Asked directly by a committee member, "How reliable are our big rockets?" Le May replied, "We just don't know positively. We have no definite statistics on that."

"We have had a number of tests, haven't we?" asked another Senator.

"Yes," replied Le May, "but we are never going to know with the same degree of assurance we have on the manned systems because we are never going to be able to get the broad basis of experience that we can get with manned airplanes. In other words, the actual number of firings that we will be able to make is going to be relatively small.

"IN ADDITION, when we do fire missiles, we are not really firing them under operational conditions because we cannot fire from the actual wartime position of the missiles. They have to be taken out and set up on the range and fired from there. That is not a true operational test. Further, we are not allowed to fire the war heads and the missiles together."

The U.S. has never fired an ICBM with a nuclear war head. That includes the Atlas, the Titan I and II, and the Minuteman. The only test of a missile with a war head was conducted two years ago when a polaris rocket was launched from a submarine in the Pacific.

THE TROUBLE in the Panama Canal Zone, I believe, stems directly from our policy of timidity and accommodation toward the entire problem of a turbulent Latin America.

To say that the disorders were "spontaneous" and unprovoked — as some of our officials and news correspondents contend — is to ignore the issues this government itself has made explosive by a program of humiliating retreat before the illegal and unreasonable demands of Panamanian nationalists.

Those who have studied the course of American foreign affairs long have known that the policy of accommodation now in effect can lead only to the sacrifice of freedom and independence. It was this weakness in our dealings with the Communists in the 1940s which led to the enslavement of the Chinese mainland.

And in this decade it allowed the Communists to deny the West its rights of free access within the city of Berlin through the erection of the hated wall.

It permitted the poorly-equipped army of Fidel Castro to deliver a crushing defeat to U. S.-sponsored invaders at the Bay of Pigs. It caused our government to equivocate following the October Cuban confrontation and sanction a powerful Soviet military base for subversion and revolution in the Western Hemisphere.

I SUGGEST THAT anyone acquainted with the State Department's vacillation with the Panamanian issue could have easily predicted the rioting, bloodshed and death which has taken place in that area. I pointed to this obvious development in my book, "Why Not Victory? which was published in 1962. On page 49 of that book, I said:

"Human beings and nations being what they are, altruistic behavior by a great power is never honored beyond the first flush or surprise that it has happened. The would-be beneficiaries of our concession and self-denials soon construe them as weakness and want more.

"Does anyone seriously suppose, for instance, that our generous decision to permit the Panamanian flag to fly over American territory in the Canal Zone will placate the Panamanian nationalists? The gesture is bound simply to whet the mob's appetite and transfer its sights to bigger targets."

TODAY, OF COURSE, there is no longer any doubt that this prediction was an accurate assessment of the inadequacies of State Department softness in its handling of our foreign affairs.

The State Department made its first concessions to Panamanian nationalists in 1960, agreeing to allow the Panamanian flag to be flown as visual evidence of Panama's "titual" sovereignty at a few points in the Canal Zone. This concession ended the 57-year-old policy of firmness which had governed our relations with Panama and opened the door to further questions, as such actions always have done and always will do.

New Frontier Fading

Two members of the triumvirate which supporters of fundamental Americanism believe helped to misguide the late President John F. Kennedy down the dark paths of integration and socialism at home and one-worldism and loss of prestige abroad are fading from the Washington scene. Theodore Sorensen has resigned and Attorney General Robert Kennedy is being sent abroad. The third member, McGeorge Bundy, is still around but it is doubtful if anyone pays much attention to what he says, which is fortunate.

Sorensen will leave the White House staff at the end of February to write a personal account of his 11 years with the assassinated chief executive.

In many important respects, Sorenson was Kennedy's principal White House adviser. He handled a broad array of policy questions and was, at all times, Kennedy's chief speech writer.

Of course, the man President Kennedy listened to most was his brother, Robert Kennedy, whom he named attorney general shortly after his inauguration. In addition to heading the department of justice, Robert Kennedy was herd-rider on all the other departments of government and was the nation's chief integration pusher. In fact, he went so far in that direction and the integration marches aroused so much resentment that President Kennedy was reported, about two weeks before his assassination, to have told him to ease off, as he was losing more white votes than he was gaining Negro votes.

Bundy, another principal presidential adviser, worked assiduously to concentrate all the power in the White House and to take it away from heads of government departments and military chiefs. He also pulled strongly at times against other men in government service, and Adlai Stevenson, ambassador to the United Nations, was said to have been among that number.

Robert Kennedy now seems destined to fill the role that President Johnson filled while he served as vice-president — that of international chaser. President Kennedy kept Johnson out of the country a good part of the time by sending him on missions to other countries.

One of President Johnson's latest moves was to send Robert Kennedy on a trip to Indonesia to impress on President Sukarno this country's concern over his threats against the new state of Malaysia. The attorney general is about the last person in government that one would expect to be sent on a foreign mission and it is a far cry from the role of department herd-rider and integration pusher which Robert Kennedy formerly filled, but it gets him out of Washington, which is what President Kennedy did with Johnson.

As the first of Kennedy's intimates to leave Johnson's staff, Sorenson was asked whether he thought his action might encourage others to resign.

"I certainly hope it will not encourage others to follow suit," he replied.

He said he thought Robert Kennedy's decision to remain in the cabinet would influence the late president's associates to stay on the job.

It has been suggested that Robert Kennedy might be the choice for Democratic vice - presidential nominee but many give President Johnson credit for more astute thinking than that.

In Johnson's economy campaign, he might well dismiss a good many of the associates of the late President Kennedy, since some of them are no longer anything more than figureheads, but the chief executive, for political reasons, is not likely to do that until after the 1964 presidential election.

Anyhow, we are largely rid of the influence of Kennedy's White House triumvirate. That, in the opinion of those who believe in democracy, states' rights, free enterprise and freedom of the individual, is good.

They All Want By The Window

Views Of Our Readers

Toward Lord's Words

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

In the editorial "Deepening Urgency": Soon men will ride the thrusting fire of rockets far beyond our world. Looking back on earth, hanging in the darkness of space, perhaps they will be the first to find the way of the Lord's words.

As Matthew 22:37-39 said: "Jesus said unto him, thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

The earth is the round, or lopsided "thing" people, animals, trees, birds, congressmen, "dropouts" from school and so on live or exist "on." The world is the ways and words of people through the days, years, centuries.

Those people that ride the rockets or whatever they may be, will not be the first to find "the way of the Lord's words." They are not interested in it.

There are plenty of "things" and "ways" right here on earth that those people could work about to clean up the mess we have here in our block, along our street, in town or state we live in, in the whole federal government.

We have the matter of the "black Monday" decision in 1954 that was not the law. The United States Constitution (made in 1787—nearly 200 years ago) did not and still does not, in 1964, back the decision.

The law of congress in 1948 (how to get a lawsuit for a "civil" or common lawsuit into the U.S. federal district court) denies the decision could have been made "in" the U.S. supreme court at all.

The 14th amendment was not legally made in 1866; it was not legally ratified by the terms of article 5 of the U.S. Constitution, and the U.S. supreme court has not proved the amendment was "legal" let alone using it to befoozle the people between Canada and the Gulf of Mexico.

Cleaning out that one mess as it should be fought out is more important than going to the moon or around the earth "to beat the Russians being first." That mess was told the people here and the rest of the world.

No, going to the moon or around the earth five times in any one 24-hour day will not get "to the Lord's words." It does not even reach toward it.

Bloc Voting

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Some years ago I was invited by a prominent newspaper to be guest writer of an editorial on desirability, vel non, of bloc voting in which was emphasized the justification for defensive bloc voting in matters of vital public concern.

We have lived to see a shining exemplification of both offensive and defensive bloc voting, when voters last week discarded all meritorious considerations to vote either offensively or defensively without regard to public good. Need I remind the reader the defense won a decisive victory humiliating to the offensive?

Such electoral conduct of the offensive bloc in this instance was reprehensible and hardly recommends for good citizenship those guilty, especially at a time when they are heard to loudly proclaim "EQUALITY NOW." Such unit action tends only to augment existing argument against voting privileges for the unqualified, gullible and willing victims of the political Judas goat.

Offensive bloc voting can never be conducted with that degree of secrecy needed to surprise the opposition. It can only fairly be expected to be met by justifiable DEFENSIVE bloc voting, all of which, in the bitter end, endangers the public choice of better qualified aspirants and damages human relations.

It is my fond hope and fervent prayer that the recent result was divinely ordained. May God endow the fortunate nominee with strength and wisdom to outshine his predecessors in service, give him the will to do right and the courage to resist wrong. A four - year course will tell!

Good citizenship in all ranks demands exercise of the voting franchise by the uncoerced conscience, untrammelled by either offers of reward or warnings of disaster and founded solely on merit, justice and fairness for all people, not excluding, believe it or not, THE WHITE RACE!

W. M. HARPER.

Appalling Example

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

First, let me say that I am one hundred percent for our Southern way of life. Having a great-grandfather buried in the Confederate cemetery at Vicksburg and being a native of the oldest community in Franklin Parish, I could be called a true daughter of the South.

Well, this daughter of the South loves above all truth, honor, and integrity, and I am sorry to say I find it seldom reflected in your editorials which I believe most of the public must resent also.

A particular editorial "Their Private School" (Wednesday, January 8) is an appalling example: ". . . . NOW it is revealed that the late President Kennedy organized in the White House a privately - financed school, and about 20 other children of her age from around the families of Washington officialdom. . . ."

Could it be possible that your editorial staff is so uninformed that they just NOW know of the kindergarten in the White House? Or do you choose to use any instrument possible without regard to truth to spread your bias and hate?

I read quite an interesting feature story on school in the White House this past year in a leading woman's magazine. (There happened to be a Negro child in this class, by the way, for obvious reasons). After the assassination of our late president, I read a news item in your paper that school would continue in the White House until other arrangements could be made.

For what interests are your editorials written that your staff, which must be of at least average intelligence, must stoop to such petty misinformation to try to keep alive the "hate" Kennedy program you spawned?

It would truly be good to see the day again when a newspaper editorial represented the opinion of one man — a big man who respected truth wherever the chips might fall.

Courting Agitators

Mount Sterling, Ky.

To the Editor:

No people can ever have an enemy as bitter as one of their own kith and kin who, for personal profit and aggrandizement, turns against them and goes over to the foe. By his own statements and open courting of the Negro agitators, Lyndon Johnson has proved himself not to be either a Southerner or a Westerner but a Boston-Philadelphia-New York-Chicago ward heeler with a legal residence in Texas, who would turn the government of the United States ever to an incapable, undeserving and wholly irresponsible ten per cent minority.

Since we are reliably informed that he is seriously considering a Kennedy brother-in-law for his running mate we have the right to look upon Johnson as just another of the Kennedy boys. It was, we must recall, "at the request of the Kennedy family" that he changed the name of Cape Canaveral, and he did this by "executive fiat" just the way Hitler or Khrushchev would have done such a job. Johnson is entirely too amenable to the requests of the Kennedys to be a safe President for the South.

Franklin Reynolds

Writer Disagrees

Columbus, Ohio

To the Editor:

On December 23, 1963 David Lawrence, editor of U. S. News and World Report, expounded upon the virtues of "Naming Warren Probe Head Regarded as Wise Decision."

I fail to see the logic of his reasoning. Did not Chief Justice Earl Warren prejudge the crime to be the result of hate groups before the facts were known, and during the time such commentators as Bill Ryan, Inez Robb, and Edward P. Morgan, and others virtually echoed Communist news reports from Russia accusing the "radical rights"?

And another member of the administration's investigating committee, Rep. Hale Boggs, Democrat, La., is credited with the following quote: "The radicals and haters in politics and elsewhere have had their way. They are the ones who really pulled the trigger which killed the great American, but they won't prevail."

It seems to me that both Chief Justice Warren and Rep. Boggs disqualified themselves to sit as members of the administration's investigating committees. It seems further to me that maybe we should have an investigation of the investigators.

The poison spewed by Mr. Warren and Mr. Boggs calls to my mind the contents of an anonymous letter received by me in response to a Letter to the Editor by me in which I said . . . . "were I a Supreme Court Justice or the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and had rendered 36 out of 39 decisions in favor of Communists or were I the Attorney General and had failed to carry out the mandates of the courts to force the registration and sentencing of Communists, I would surely have a guilty conscience." The letter received by me read: "Why don't you move down to Alabama with that un-American Gov. Wallace and his cohorts. He helped pull the trigger Nov. 22nd and he should be feeling guilty. I'd like to see him hang from the highest tree.

This demonstrates who are really the hate mongers and that one had better not make any accusations or statements about "their" friends.

Please Don't Destroy

Parents have been blamed for many things, sometimes justifiably and sometimes not, but one thing every parent should teach his children is to avoid wanton or selfish destruction. First, the parent himself must have a sense of responsibility and regard for others and he must instill it into his children from their infancy.

Without responsible parents we cannot have responsible children — and this becomes a widening wave of irresponsibility that licks away the foundations of a nation's stability.

Recently, in Charlotte, N. C., a high school class was given an assignment on the life of John Milton. By evening, every article on Milton had been cut from every encyclopedia in the main public library.

Only a person steeped in utter selfishness could commit such an act. Only one of that type could forget or ignore completely the rights of other people. A person who thinks only of his own immediate wants and disregards what others who come after him may need is a distroyer of the worst kind. No one trained in early childhood to have respect for the rights of others will become a destroyer. To him, the destruction of a book to serve a momentary purpose is unthinkable.

Because of vandalism, many of the best libraries throughout the country have suffered great damage. The huge Brooklyn Public Library sets its annual book loss, through theft, borrowing without return and mutilation at half a million dollars, representing more books than many libraries ever own. Teachers unwittingly encourage mutilation when they give extra credit for illustrations pasted into notebooks or reports, but some vandals are adults.

A proposed drastic remedy is publicized prosecution under laws that exist in all states. In 1961 East Orange, N. J., made headlines when borrowers ignoring repeated warnings to return books were arrested at their homes in the middle of the night. We don't condone midnight arrests, as they smack too much of police state tactics, but something must be done. In the East Orange case, thousands of missing books were returned to libraries all over New Jersey.

Sets of encyclopedias cost hundreds of dollars. When one person cuts pages from these books he destroys their use for thousands of other people. How ruthless can anyone become?

Castro Wants In Warsaw Alliance

LAYING THE GROUNDWORK for Fidel Castro's becoming a member of the Warsaw Pact Alliance is definitely one aspect of the Cuban dictator's mysterious visit to Moscow.

Intelligence has gotten wind of this new Kremlin military-diplomatic bombshell from authoritative satellite sources.

They have reported two highly significant backstage developments:

(1) Marshal Andrei Grechko, Warsaw Pact commander, while on an inspection tour of Soviet Polish forces, was hurriedly summoned to Moscow several days before Castro's sudden arrival. (The Cuban ruler has conferred several times with Grechko and Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, Russian Defense Minister.)

What comes of this secret scheme to bring Cuba into the Warsaw Alliance remains to be seen. Nothing concrete is considered likely at this time.

Rather, it is anticipated that the current discussions will constitute the basis for further steps. The next most probable is an exchange of visits by Pact and Cuban military missions, followed by a formal agreement and an elaborately staged and publicized signing ceremony.

TWO KEY FACTORS are believed behind this latest Kremlin move:

(1) To tie Castro closer to the Soviet block. The volatile Cuban dictator has balked at signing the nuclear test ban treaty, and despite virtual complete dependence on Russia and its satellites for economic existence, has played footsy from time to time with Red China. By bringing him within the Warsaw Alliance field, the Kremlin presumably would have a tighter grip on him.

The Week In Focus

The Panama Problem

President Johnson faced a swift curve ball in the Panama issue and so far all he has done is strike out. In fact, Panama has scored all the runs with the exception of the actual fighting that broke out a week ago between students and U. S. troops.

As of now no one seems to actually know how the situation stands. On Wednesday, Panama and the U. S. announced that diplomatic relations would be resumed between the two countries as soon as possible. But several hours later, Panama President Roberto Chiari said no.

The roadblock seems to be over Panama's demand for a new Canal Zone treaty and the U. S. government stand for discussion, not negotiation, of the issues affecting the two countries.

The entire explosive situation is tied in to the upcoming general election set for May 10. Chiari is ineligible to run for reelection, but his Liberal party is backing Marco Robles in a seven-man race for the presidency. The opposition is charging that Chiari has betrayed his country by selling out to the U. S.

ROBERTO CHIARI

Meanwhile, Chiari's government completed its break in relations, calling home Panama's representatives in Washington and and asking the U.S. to withdraw its staff from Panama City.

The current rioting and dispute broke out after a group of Panamanian students crossed into the Canal Zone a week ago to protest the action of U. S. students at the Balboa High school in displaying the U. S. flag in defiance of orders from Canal Zone officials. Now certain Panama groups, backed by Castro Reds are demanding:

1. Abolition of the canal treaty; 2. Rupture of all relations with the U. S. until a satisfactory new treaty is approved; 3. Neutralization of the canal as the first step toward its nationalization.

Some Panama leaders are also insisting that an increase be made in the $2 million yearly fee the U. S. gives that nation from the Canal. In addition, some have charged that there is discrimination in the pay of Panama workers in the Canal Zone.

Problem Inherited

Actually President Johnson, who is under pressure from Congress to stand fast, inherited a mess older than he is. It started with President Theodore Roosevelt back in 1903 when Panama, then part of Colombia, revolted and set up its own government.

The idea of digging a canal across Panama goes back at least 300 years. After the Spanish American War there was a demand for it in this country. Roosevelt tried to arrange it with Colombia. He didn't like the terms and called the Colombians apes. In this country, but not by Roosevelt publicly, the people in the province of Panama, were encouraged to revolt. They did and got instant American military help. Later Roosevelt came out publicly and said: "I took Panama." He quickly recognized the new republic and just as quickly made a deal with it to build a canal. The canal was finished in 1914 and the treaty granted the U. S. "in perpetuity the use, occupation and control of the zone of land 10 miles wide from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Almost from the day the treaty was signed, Panama leaders have criticized it and have demanded this and that. On many issues, the U. S. has granted concessions. In fact, so many have been made that practically nothing is left except to turn the canal over to Panama.

This would be another tragedy for this nation should it do so.

The Canal Itself

The canal and zone splits Panama almost in half, is under complete jurisdiction of the U. S. Actually the canal does not cross the isthmus from east to west as generally supposed, but from northwest to southeast, with the Atlantic entrance 33 miles north and 27 miles west of the Pacific entrance. The canal length from shore line (Atlantic Ocean) to shore line (Pacific Ocean) is 40.27 statute miles, and from deep water, 50.72 miles.

The big body of water inside the isthmus is Gatun lake which is fed by the Chagres river. This furnishes water for the section of the canal which runs through land, principally on the Pacific side, as well as for that part which ambles through the Lake and adjoining inlets.

There are locks systems on the canal and all are unique. All locks have dimensions of 1,000 feet length, 110 feet wide, and a depth to accommodate vessels drawing 40 feet in salt water. The time required for passage through the locks depends upon many factors, including size of vessels and its handling features. Generally, lockage intervals are 80 minutes at Gatun, located on the Atlantic side; 40 minutes at Pedro Miguel and 60 minutes at Miraflores, both on the Pacific slope of the canal. It usually requires from seven to eight hours to travel the canal.

The Domestic Side

IN ENGLAND, A Roman Catholic woman doctor who set up a birth control clinic has been refused sacraments when she attended church. Dr. Anne Biezanek, mother of seven children, said she had been told that she would be refused the sacraments before she went to church. The Most Rev. Eric Grasar, bishop of Shrewsbury, has told Dr. Biezanek in a letter that the sacraments would be restored when she showed "true repentance." . . .

IN CONGRESS, two southern foes of the civil rights bill which is backed by President Johnson have lashed out at the proposal. Rep. Edwin E. Willis of Louisiana termed the bill the biggest "grab for power" in U.S. history. He said the bill should be sent back to the House Judiciary Committee for "calm and deliberate" consideration. Rep. William M. Colmer of Mississippi called the public accommodations section of the bill "one of the worst, most vicious, objectionable features of this monstrous proposal." This provision would ban racial descrimination in hotels, motels, restaurants, theaters and other places generally serving the public . . .

REP. EDWIN E. WILLIS

STATE LEGISLATURES seeking pay raises were given a pat on the back the past week by Benson Ford, vice president of the Ford Motor Company. Speaking in Jackson, Miss., he said state legislatures throughout the country generally are underpaid and inadequately staffed. He said the situation merits attention of all citizens. . . .

MEANWHILE, a leading Republican supporter of the civil rights bill has vowed never to take part in any deal to strip it of major provisions. Rep. William McCulloch of Ohio, ranking Republican member of the House Judiciary Committee, was led into a discussion of rumored deals when he testified for the bill before the committee. . .

THE INTERNAL Revenue Service reports the number of tax returns that showed incomes over $10,000 increased 18 per cent last year and now number more than seven million. The report also showed that the total of tax returns filed by individuals last year as 62.7 million, an increase of 1.2 million over the previous year. . .

REPUBLICAN politics continued to thunder across the American scene the past week. Senator Barry Goldwater lashed out at President Johnson's proposal to war on poverty, saying that "America, for most of its years, has waged a war on poverty. I say that when we work our way to wealth we win that war. I say that when the government tries to spend its way to wealth we lose the war." Goldwater, an announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, has suggested that all able bodied men on relief be put to work to earn their welfare benefits, saying "there are community projects aplenty that could be powered this way." Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, another candidate for the nomination, disagreed with Goldwater and called him a southerner, saying that Goldwater did not represent the Republican Party. At Harrisburg, Pa., Gov. William W. Scranton, who is also considered a potential candidate, said the presidency should stand for a very strong foreign policy, including brinkmanship . . .

HELP CONTINUED for the Soviet Union as the Commerce Department authorized the first sale of rice — $7.5 million worth — to the Reds. The department also issued a new export license for the sale of additional $13 million worth of wheat to the USSR. There is no doubt but what Russia is in trouble foodwise, and will be in more serious plight unless the U.S. bails it out. A lot of experts figure we should not aid the Soviets . . .

FOR TWO DAYS the past week, President Antonio Segni of Italy and President Johnson conferred in Washington. As the conference ended, both issued a joint statement saying that neither country would tolerate French or German domination of Western Europe — nor a combination of the two. At the same time Italian foreign minister, Giuseppe Saragat told a news conference that the Paris-Bonn axis failed because it was an attempt to dominate Western Europe . . .

IN A SURPRISE move, six Republican senators have offered legislation to provide a public-private health care plan for the aged that they described as the most comprehensive yet presented to Congress. One part would provide 45 days of hospital care, up to 180 days of skilled nursing home care, or more than 200 days of home health care following treatment in a hospital for all persons 65 or over. This would be financed by an increase of ½ to 1 per cent in the social security payroll tax to be deposited in a separate health fund. The other part of the program would create a national, federally chartered association of private insurance and group service companies which would authorize a standard medical-surgical policy for those over 65. This would allow a standard policy of about $2 per week. . .

MEANWHILE, President Johnson, seemingly continuing his policy of economy — although there's much doubt that it will be really effective -- is asking Congress to cut spending on missiles and ships by more than a billion dollars and to increase spending on planes by $300 million . . .

THE SMOKING scare continued also, but apparently the fear was not great enough to drastically reduce the sale of cigarettes. Earlier the U.S. Health Service had released an extensive research report which claimed cigarette smoking was the primary cause of cancer, particularly of the lungs and that it was a health hazard in many other ways. Then various other reports hits the news. In Germany, a scientist, Prof. Reinhard Poche, said a detailed study soon to be published will prove that air pollution — not smoking — is the chief cause of lung cancer. And in Boston, two Harvard researchers, Drs. Edward P. Radford and Vilma R. Hunt, said they have found a radioactive element in cigarette smoke which may be the cause of lung cancer . . .

On The Political Front

Politics made the big headlines in Louisiana and Ohio the past week.

In our own state, John J. McKeithen of Columbia, an attorney and Public Service Commissioner in the Fifth District, surprised a lot of dopesters and armchair experts in the Second Democratic Primary by defeating deLesseps Morrison of New Orleans for the Democratic nominee for governor of Louisiana.

As late as Friday before the Saturday election, McKeithen wasn't conceded much chance for the nomination in most quarters. But in beating Morrison by more than 40,000 votes, McKeithen showed tremendous vote-getting ability. He swept two thirds of the state and came out of New Orleans with a tremendous vote in comparision to what most of the experts figured he would get.

In analyzing the returns, there seems to be little doubt but what the Negro bloc vote in the First Primary for Morrison, played an important part in the victory for McKeithen. Then, too, the vote seemed a strong warning to the National Democratic organization that Louisiana does not — and rightly so — like the vicious civil rights bill now in Congress.

Many the past week applauded McKeithen's post-election action in calling for all peoples of the state to unite and push for programs that are best for Louisiana and its people.

McKeithen will face Charlton Lyons, the Republican nominee, in the March 3 general election. However, there has been no Republican governor in Louisiana since reconstruction days.

In Columbus, Ohio, John Glenn Jr., the nation's first orbiting astronaut 23 months ago, announced his resignation from the U.S. space program, and tossed his hat into another tough arena. He said he would be a candidate for Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator from Ohio.

Glenn will oppose Stephen M. Young in the May 5 primary. Young, 71, is the present U.S. senator from Ohio.

Most experts feared the Glenn-Young battle would rip apart Ohio Democrats and would give Rep. Robert Taft Jr. of Cincinnati a good chance for the spot in November.

Reports circulated that Attorney General Robert Kennedy got Glenn to seek the nomination back before President Kennedy was assassinated. Kennedy, in running for President in 1960, lost Ohio to Richard Nixon and since that time the Democrats have been working to get the state in the Democrat column in this year's presidential race.

Around The World Briefly

THE POST Office Department won Interstate Commerce Commission approval last week for a substantial increase in parcel post mailing rates. The increase averages 13.1 per cent above the present rates, which have been in effect four years. . .

MAINE'S Legislature has moved the poll tax amendment to the threshold of adoption and South Dakota seems likely to write it into the Constitution in the near future. This 24th amendment would forbid making payment of a poll tax, or any other levy, a condition for voting in elections for federal offices. It must be approved by 38 states to become part of the Constitution. Maine became the 37th state to ratify it . . .

Rustling Goes On

By JACK SCHREIBMAN

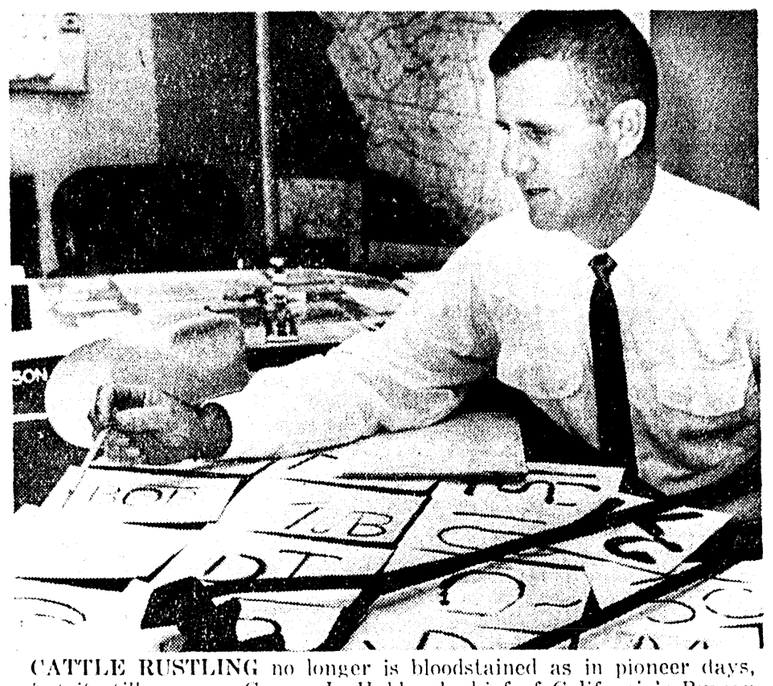

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— Way out West where men are men—who do their wives' shopping in shiny supermarkets and live in ranch (style) houses — some things don't change. Like cattle rustling.

The ancient Egyptians and the Chinese before Confucius worried about cattle stealing, and their Cadillac-owning atomic age counterparts of the mid-20th Century still have the problem.

Back in the 1800s, the American cattleman dealt with the rustler by way of a stout rope dangling over a tree limb, or a neat, 45-caliber hole between the eyes.

Today in California, the rustler doesn't have to worry about "cowman's justice." But he can draw up to 10 years in jail.

Cattle rustling in the Golden State is the concern of a tall, craggy cowman named Carson L. Hubbard, chief of California's Bureau of Livestock Identification.

CATTLE RUSTLING no longer is bloodstained as in pioneer days, but it still goes on. Carson L. Hubbard, chief of California's Bureau of Livestock Identification, looks over a few of the 30,000 brands registered with his department in Sacramento. The two branding irons are the old style still used by most ranchers. In some areas branding is done with electric irons. California had 1,200 rustling cases last year. Conviction can bring up to 10 years' imprisonment. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Steal Them

"Wherever you have cows, people will be trying to steal them," he said. "Last year there were 1,200 cases in the state. I'd call it one of the worst problems we have."

What Hubbard described was nothing like the cattle rustling of gold rush days, when gangs drove hundreds of animals into obscure canyons and prepared to sell them.

"Today," said Hubbard, "it's an individual thing—but serious. A man's hungry so he drives out, spots a lone cow which he butchers on the spot, then hauls home some steaks to his freezer."

Hubbard told of hunters who go out after deer but end up deliberately shooting a cow. The rightful owner thus is robbed of from $150 to $250.

The more organized rustlers work with trucks, which they drive onto ranges and load quickly with as many cattle as they can carry. In an hour they can be 60 miles away.

Some so-called cattle rustling is on paper only, for the benefit of the Internal Revenue Service, Hubbard said.

It's virtually impossible to get proof against a man who takes a loss on a cow he said was stolen or strayed away, he said.

"If we have any doubts, we always check the man's credit to see how he's doing."

The theft of any bovine in California—even a $5 calf—is a felony. Hubbard said this has been a great discouragement to would-be range robbers.

But the greatest discouragement of all to cattle rustling involves the cattle themselves. They are indelibly and permanently marked.

Identification of cattle, who graze on millions of acres of rangeland and are unconcerned about their ownership, is virtually the only way of protection for the men who annually supply Americans with about 1.5 billion pounds of beef.

Down through the centuries, there has been only one simple way to separate the cow from her cousin—the brand, permanently burned by a hot iron directly into the hide of the animal.

Ancient Brands

Evidence has been found in Egyptian tombs that the ancients branded their cattle. The Chinese left records that they have branded animals for untold centuries, with irons wrought into ideographs.

As virtual detective of the rangeland, Hubbard's major weapon is the brand. He would be powerless without it. No one, back to the time of the Bible, has been able to tell one unmarked cow from another.

"We have 30,000 registered brands in the office, and register 200 new brands a month," said Hubbard, explaining that one outfit often will run a dozen brands.

Not long ago a cow was stolen in Southern California. Hubbard used the telephone to tip off police officials over the state and in nearby states. Within a day a truck was stopped in Idaho and the driver arrested. In the back of the truck was the California cow.

Some of the earliest folk-art of the west were branding marks. Even city children, have heard from television westerns references such as the "Running S," the "Bar B," and the "Lazy A"—all brands.

There was one cow story in which the animal ended up the culprit and lived out its life with the strangest brand ever burned on a critter's hide.

Two ranchmen, branding at a roundup, fell to arguing the ownership of a calf. Guns blazed and both men fell dead. A feud started and three or four other men lost their lives over the calf.

One day some cowboys roped the disputed calf and branded it with six huge letters? "M U R D E R."

Oldtimers said the calf grew to become a lean, wild steer—always by itself—a lone pariah of the ranges, like an outlaw aware of what it had caused.

What Are Congressional Whips And The Reasons They Operate

Rep. LESLIE ARENDS
House Republican Whip

Sen. HUBERT HUMPHREY
Senate Democratic Whip

Rep. HALE BOGGS
House Democratic Whip

Sen. ROMAN HRUSKA
Senate Republican Whip

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — When there is an important vote coming up in Congress, party leaders want to know how it's going to come out — in advance.

Each party in the House and Senate names officials who try to find out. They are pretty good at it. They are called whips.

They don't actually scourge recalcitrant party members with a cat o' nine tails. They use the voice of persuasion. The name comes to us from the British Parliament. It is said to derive from fox hunting, in which a red-coated bloke called a whipper-in keeps the hounds in line.

The House Democratic whip is Rep. Hale Boggs, a genial Louisianan. The House Republican whip is Rep. Leslie G. Arends, a genial Illinoisian. The Senate Democratic whip is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, a genial Minnesotan. The Senate Republican whip is Sen. Thomas Kuchel, a genial Californian.

In Common

Did you notice something in common? Yes, they are all genial. It has been found through long trial and error that you catch more flies with honey than with vinegar.

The job of the House whips is much harder because they have so many more members to worry about — 435 to the Senate's 100. They have rather elaborate organizations, which from time to time are galvanized into frantic activity.

The parties each whack up their membership into geographical zones or regions, and assistant whips are named to keep tabs on each section.

Several other categories are included: "undecided," "probably for," "probably against," and "absent."

The whips begin their checks a week or two before an important measure reaches the floor of the House or Senate.

The returns start coming in immediately. By the time the vote rolls around, the whips and the leaders have a fairly accurate idea of how the ball will balance.

Another important function of the whip is to keep members on the House floor during long debate to be counted in votes on amendments. Sometimes both parties lose on important policy issues simply because they can't muster enough members quickly for these votes.

The Week In Focus

The Panama Problem

President Johnson faced a swift curve ball in the Panama issue and so far all he has done is strike out. In fact, Panama has scored all the runs with the exception of the actual fighting that broke out a week ago between students and U. S. troops.

As of now no one seems to actually know how the situation stands. On Wednesday, Panama and the U. S. announced that diplomatic relations would be resumed between the two countries as soon as possible. But several hours later, Panama President Roberto Chiari said no.

The roadblock seems to be over Panama's demand for a new Canal Zone treaty and the U. S. government stand for discussion, not negotiation, of the issues affecting the two countries.

The entire explosive situation is tied in to the upcoming general election set for May 10. Chiari is ineligible to run for reelection, but his Liberal party is backing Marco Robles in a seven-man race for the presidency. The opposition is charging that Chiari has betrayed his country by selling out to the U. S.

ROBERTO CHIARI

Meanwhile, Chiari's government completed its break in relations, calling home Panama's representatives in Washington and and asking the U.S. to withdraw its staff from Panama City.

The current rioting and dispute broke out after a group of Panamanian students crossed into the Canal Zone a week ago to protest the action of U. Some so-called cattle rustling is on paper only, for the benefit of the Internal Revenue Service, Hubbard said.

It's virtually impossible to get proof against a man who takes a loss on a cow he said was stolen or strayed away, he said.

"If we have any doubts, we always check the man's credit to see how he's doing."

The theft of any bovine in California—even a $5 calf—is a felony. Hubbard said this has been a great discouragement to would-be range robbers.

But the greatest discouragement of all to cattle rustling involves the cattle themselves. They are indelibly and permanently marked.

Identification of cattle, who graze on millions of acres of rangeland and are unconcerned about their ownership, is virtually the only way of protection for the men who annually supply Americans with about 1.5 billion pounds of beef.

Down through the centuries, there has been only one simple way to separate the cow from her cousin—the brand, permanently burned by a hot iron directly into the hide of the animal.

Ancient Brands

Evidence has been found in Egyptian tombs that the ancients branded their cattle. The Chinese left records that they have branded animals for untold centuries, with irons wrought into ideographs.

As virtual detective of the rangeland, Hubbard's major weapon is the brand. He would be powerless without it. No one, back to the time of the Bible, has been able to tell one unmarked cow from another.

"We have 30,000 registered brands in the office, and register 200 new brands a month," said Hubbard, explaining that one outfit often will run a dozen brands.

Not long ago a cow was stolen in Southern California. Hubbard used the telephone to tip off police officials over the state and in nearby states. Within a day a truck was stopped in Idaho and the driver arrested. In the back of the truck was the California cow.

Some of the earliest folk-art of the west were branding marks. Even city children, have heard from television westerns references such as the "Running S," the "Bar B," and the "Lazy A"—all brands.

There was one cow story in which the animal ended up the culprit and lived out its life with the strangest brand ever burned on a critter's hide.

Two ranchmen, branding at a roundup, fell to arguing the ownership of a calf. Guns blazed and both men fell dead. A feud started and three or four other men lost their lives over the calf.

One day some cowboys roped the disputed calf and branded it with six huge letters? "M U R D E R."

Oldtimers said the calf grew to become a lean, wild steer—always by itself—a lone pariah of the ranges, like an outlaw aware of what it had caused.

What Are Congressional Whips And The Reasons They Operate

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — When there is an important vote coming up in Congress, party leaders want to know how it's going to come out — in advance.

Each party in the House and Senate names officials who try to find out. They are pretty good at it. They are called whips.

They don't actually scourge recalcitrant party members with a cat o' nine tails. They use the voice of persuasion. The name comes to us from the British Parliament. It is said to derive from fox hunting, in which a red-coated bloke called a whipper-in keeps the hounds in line.

The House Democratic whip is Rep. Hale Boggs, a genial Louisianan. The House Republican whip is Rep. Leslie G. Arends, a genial Illinoisian. The Senate Democratic whip is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, a genial Minnesotan. The Senate Republican whip is Sen. Thomas Kuchel, a genial Californian.

In Common

Did you notice something in common? Yes, they are all genial. It has been found through long trial and error that you catch more flies with honey than with vinegar.

The job of the House whips is much harder because they have so many more members to worry about — 435 to the Senate's 100. They have rather elaborate organizations, which from time to time are galvanized into frantic activity.

The parties each whack up their membership into geographical zones or regions, and assistant whips are named to keep tabs on each section.

Several other categories are included: "undecided," "probably for," "probably against," and "absent."

The whips begin their checks a week or two before an important measure reaches the floor of the House or Senate.

The returns start coming in immediately. By the time the vote rolls around, the whips and the leaders have a fairly accurate idea of how the ball will balance.

Another important function of the whip is to keep members on the House floor during long debate to be counted in votes on amendments. Sometimes both parties lose on important policy issues simply because they can't muster enough members quickly for these votes.

Channel Tunnel Plan

EDITOR'S NOTE: The long cherished dream of a tunnel linking France and Britain beneath the English Channel may be nearing reality. An experienced author of a number of books on tunnels and bridges reports here on the current status of the channel tunnel project, which appears to be approaching a climactic moment of decision.

In the background of this year's election in Britain will loom a momentous issue! A tunnel beneath the English Channel. This fabulous engineering project has plagued British politics for more than 100 years, and 1964 looks very much like the year when it could reach its final crisis.

The once impregnable opposition of Britain's military leaders appears at last to have been overcome. Yet there is still no certainty that this most fascinating of all engineering enterprises will be undertaken with any promptness.

For a pair of American businessmen, Frank Davidson and Cyril Means, the suspense has now lasted seven years.

It was in 1956 that Davidson returned from a European trip to complain about rough channel crossing he had experienced.

Half Joking

"Why don't they dig a tunnel under there?" he asked his friend, Means, half joking. Means thought he remembered reading an article in "Popular Mechanics" as a boy about a tunnel under the English Channel. Davidson and Means were lawyers, not engineers, and knew nothing about tunneling under the ocean. But Means suggested, just for the fun of it, a look into the thing. Davidson agreed, and when he returned to his office called in a girl researcher and told her to go to the public library and look up the facts.

The girl didn't come back for several weeks, and when she did she amazed Means and Davidson with a 45-page report on the incredible history of the channel tunnel.

The idea goes back to Napoleon, who had listened to a French mining engineer's proposal to dig a hole to England. Napoleon was interested, until war broke out with England, when he dropped the scheme. Napoleon's interest in the tunnel was strictly peaceful — it apparently never entered his head to use it as a means to invade England.

A generation later, Thome de Gamond, a Frenchman, worked up such enthusiasm for the tunnel that the scheme emerged from the dreaming stage into that of practical possibility.

The great secret of the channel tunnel lies in the geology of the channel floor. Thome de Gamond went out in the channel every weekend for years on end to take test borings, and he proved pretty effectively that the chalk extended all the way across.

Chalk is an ideal tunneling material. It's soft—you don't have to blast it with dynamite, you can actually dig through it with pickaxe and shovel which is what Napoleon's engineer had figured on doing. It's impermeable—water won't seep down into it while you're digging, and finally, unlike clay, it will hold up the sea above without the aid of compressed air. For these reasons when British and French channel tunnel companies finally got together and started digging in 1880, they made far better, cheaper and easier progress than did either of two big contemporary tunneling projects, the Hudson Tube in New York and the St. Gotthard Tunnel under the Swiss Alps.

A British military engineer, a Col. Beaumont, invented a boring machine that drilled through subchannel chalk at a rate of some 50 feet a day. So beautifully was the Beaumont machine working, and so sound were De Gamond's geological calculations, that promoters in London and Paris entertained high hopes of meeting under the channel in a little more than four years.

Then disaster struck. Nothing went wrong in the tunnel headings, which had already pushed out two miles from Shakespeare Cliff, England, and over a mile from Sangatte, France. Nothing went wrong with the financial side of the operation, either-both promoting companies were looking forward eagerly to handsome profits. But the British War Office suddenly intervened and leading generals warned that the tunnel would end Britain's "perfect insularity" and security against invasion. The tunnelers were ordered to halt where they were and for three quarters of a century, the ingenious and efficient Beaumont machines stood in their tracks at the ends of their respective headings, miles out under the ocean floor, pointed toward each other, waiting for a signal to begin work again.

The Signal

In 1906, and again in 1913, it seemed that the signal would come, but again the generals vetoed the scheme at the eleventh hour.

In World War II, Hitler's V 1 and V 2 bombs introduced the age of missiles in warfare, forever ending Britain's seagirded security and thereby contributing to the tunnel's future. In 1954, a British defense minister, asked in Commons if the old military objection still held in respect to a tunnel under the channel, answered, "hardly at all." That defense minister was Harold Macmillan, who by the time Davidson and Means were reading up on the tunnel's strange history, had become prime minister.

The event that made Macmillan prime minister was the ill starred Franco British Israeli invasion of Egypt. A principal reason for the invasion was the seizure of the Suez Canal by Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. The Nasser takeover deprived the Suez Canal Co. of its principal property, causing the 100 year old firm to look around for something else to do with its capital, its personnel and its experience. What could be more natural than for the company to promote the English Channel tunnel?

In New York, Davidson and Means learned that the two old 1880 tunnel companies were still quoted on the London Paris stock markets, though at about zero. Means undertook a trip abroad to look into them. Meantime the Suez Canal Co. got wind of the New Yorkers' interest in the tunnel, and initiated discussions with Davidson in New York. Means, following up this contact in Paris called on Jacques M. C. Georges Picot, director general of the Suez company. Out of this talk and many others eventually grew a four company consortium called the channel tunnel study group. Its members are the old British and French tunnel companies, the Suez Financial Co. and a brand new American company called Technical Studies, Inc., of which Davidson is president and Means executive vice president. Technical Studies has the financial backing of Morgan Stanley and Co., Dillon Read and Co., Inc., and other leading Wall Street firms, the nationalized British and French railways are big stockholders in the old tunnel companies.

The study group's aim was to carry out intensive research on two fronts: Engineering, to determine once and for all whether the tunnel could be built economically, and traffic expectations, to determine finally whether the thing was worth building.

On the engineering front exhaustive testing of the channel floor was carried out and on the basis of the soundings a 23-mile route was blueprinted, running at a maximum depth of 160 feet.

The combination of findings strongly confirmed the need and practicability of a tunnel. At this point the question arose —what kind of tunnel? Should it be vehicular—one that trucks and cars drive through? Should it be rail only, with passenger autos and trucks carried on railroad cars? Should it be a combination of both, with highway lanes and railroad tracks? The question was argued out inside the study group, and in various commissions established by the French and British governments. The final decision was unanimous: The rail tunnel was most efficient.

Autos And Trucks

Autos and trucks can be rapidly loaded on specially built flat cars and carried through the tunnel faster than they could drive through it. The combination road and highway tunnel, though attractive for some reasons, would be too expensive.

One other major engineering question arises: Why not a bridge? A cross channel bridge was proposed almost as early as the tunnel, and has been feasible almost as long. But a bridge is far more expensive than a tunnel — about double the cost. Where a two track rail-tunnel, consisting of two 22-foot tubes, and a small service tunnel, could be driven for approximately $400 million, a 35-mile-long bridge would cost $800 million.

A tunnel can be built under the channel by two completely different methods, both of which promise excellent results in terms of cost and security against the unexpected. One of these is the technique pioneered by Beaumont 84 years ago — boring through the chalk with a machine. An incredible footnote to the 1880 boring is that modern mining machines, designed to bore through hard rock, are derived from Beaumont's Victorian gadget. Experiments in gray chalk show that a modern machine can bore a big, 22-foot diameter tunnel as fast as the Beaumont machine could tunnel a small 7-foot heading. That rate, almost 1,500 feet a month, would bring completion of a twin tube tunnel in a little more than four years.

The second technique is some thing called "build and sink." This was an ingenious method first used by a U. S. engineer, W. J. Wilgus, under the Detroit River in 1906. Wilgus' idea was to trench across the river bottom, drop a number of big steel tubes into the trench and rivet them together. At first glance, this trick doesn't seem very well suited to the stormy English Channel, but the seagoing Texas Towers, which support themselves on stilts and remain rigid in just about any weather make it possible.

Thus, engineering stands ready to build the tunnel any time the word is given. Eager might be the a better word-many of the biggest engineering firms in America and Europe are strongly interested in bidding. That the word eventually will be given is hardly in doubt. The question is, when?

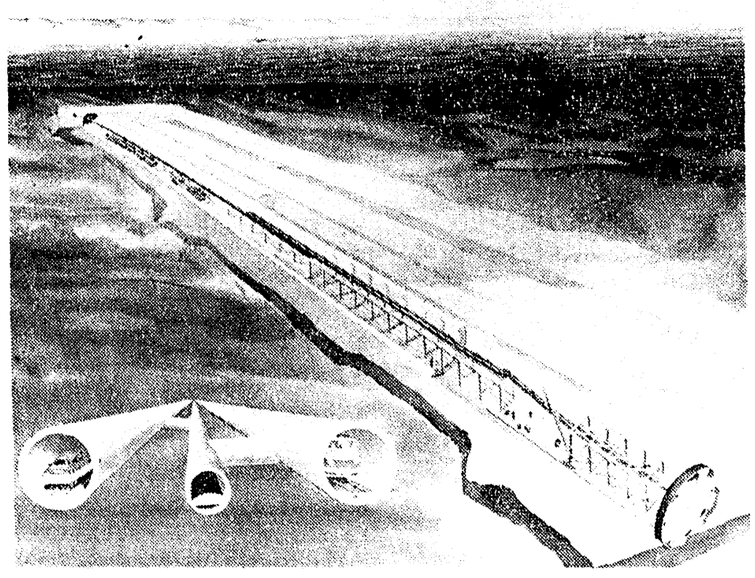

Concerned

As far as France is concerned, the word already has been given. The De Gaulle government is characteristically not even submitting the question to the assembly — it is merely notifying the legislators that the project is approved. France has always favored the tunnel, so President Charles de Gaulle is only following in the footsteps of previous French governments.

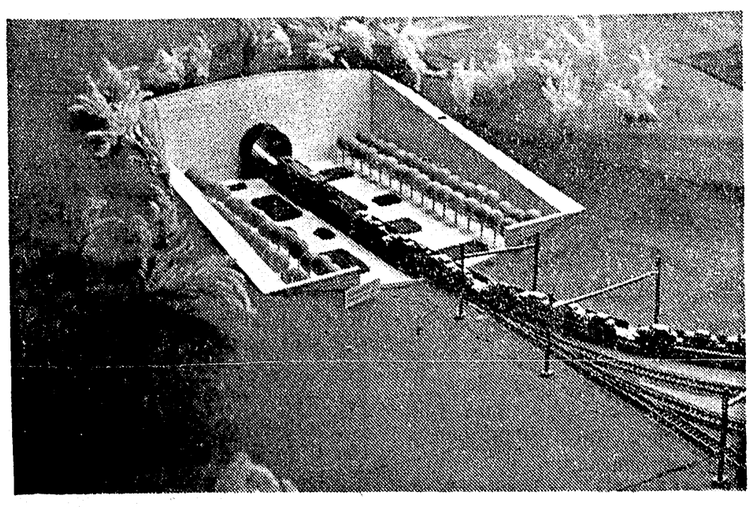

On the other side of the channel, will Sir Alec Douglas Home and his Conservative party follow in the footsteps of previous British governments and hestitate on the brink? Or will it take the plunge? The tunnel promoters, American, British and French, have grounds for hope.

National Opinion Polls, Ltd., reported in 1961 that 87 per cent of Britain's population favored a cross channel link, with the majority believing a tunnel superior to a bridge. This was an even more impressive majority than that reported by a French public opinion survey.

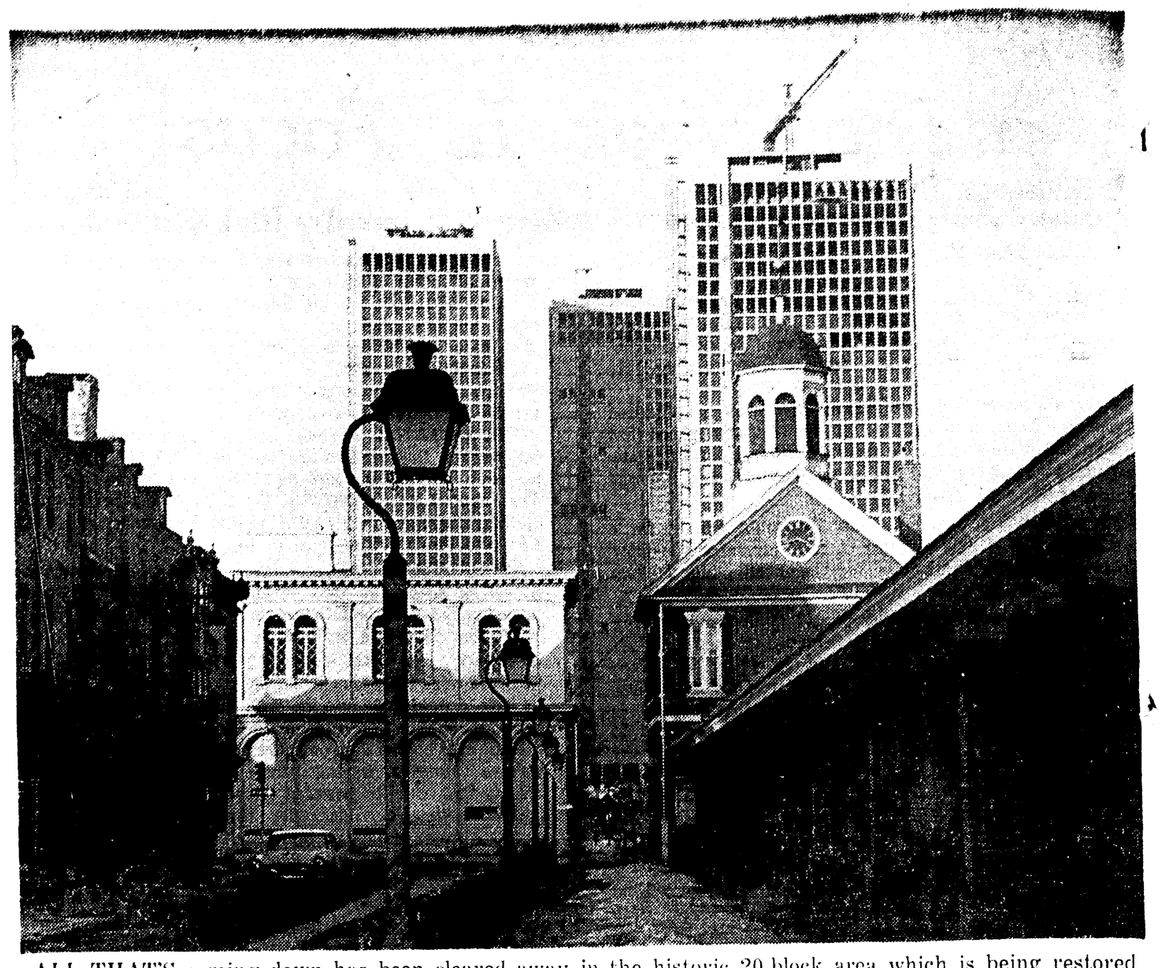

Though only one Briton in 10 objects to the tunnel, no politician likes to offend even one voter out of 10 in an election year. This goes equally for the leaders of the Labor party, which has gone on record in the past in favor of the tunnel.

TWO DIFFERENT methods by which engineers say a tunnel could be built under the English Channel are shown in artists' drawings. Either method would be fast and secure in the channel's chalk, according to the engineers. TOP: The "build and sink" method, by which Texas towers stilt-walk across the channel, cutting trenches and laying prefabricated tubes. BOTTOM: Boring through the chalk by mole, a technique pioneered 84 years ago and now modernized. At left is a section of tunnel showing the plan for two rail tunnels plus a ventilation and service tube in the center.

A FEW YEARS from now, perhaps by 1969, travelers may be going into a hole which looks like this — a scale model of the French entrance to the projected tunnel under the English Channel, on exhibition in Paris. The underwater link between England and France could get the go-ahead signal soon. But it's involved in British politics and might be held up by caution with an election coming up. Old City Gets New Face

By FRANK J. AVATO

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia, the shrine of American independence, is making a deliberate attempt to combine 20-century living with the city's colonial heritage through a redevelopment project called Society Hill.

To preserve the colonial atmosphere, the city has come up with a special treatment for the 20-block project area, often called "America's most historic mile."

The Aim

Officially the aim of the project is to: (1) lure back into the downtown area families that had moved to the suburbs, (2) preserve several hundred old and historic houses, (3) halt the spread of blight in center city, create a strong residential area and (4) create a tourist attraction focused on Independence Hall.

In the past, the city's Redevelopment Authority attacked slums with wholesale removal of blighted areas and construction of entirely new buildings.

Then the authority decided that in order to be really effective, new projects should conserve and rehabilitate neighborhoods.

It was in this area, just south of Independence Hall, that the colonials of William Penn's "green country towne" and the practitioners of the American Revolution lived and worshipped.

Society Hill gets its name not from the socially prominent but rather from a tract of land that once belonged to the Free Society of Traders, organized by Penn. The project rehabilitates homes which are important because of the people who lived in them in colonial days, events that happened in them or simply because they are good examples of the architecture of the period.

The most prominent buildings in the area facing the Delaware River and the site of Penn's landing are the Society Hill Towers, three apartment buildings 31 stories high and containing a total of 720 units. Parking is provided in a three-level underground garage.

Twenty-five air-conditioned town houses are in the shadow of the towers. They have an old-style brick texture and graceful curved doorways with iron terraces. Each sells for $46,000 or $47,000 depending on whether there are three or four bedrooms. Other individual homes in the area sell for around $22,000 to $25,000.

At the opposite end of the area is the Hopkinson House, a privately financed 33-story apartment building containing 536 units, some of which already are occupied. Another 18 town houses are nearby.

Old Houses

There are about 690 old houses in the project area. Originally it was thought the Redevelopment Authority would have to acquire about 600 of them. Increasing support of the community resulted in many voluntary rehabilitations, even before the authority took formal action.

As of Dec. 31, 1962 Society Hill, known formally as Washington Square East, had cost a total of $18,914,729. The federal government contributed $11,874,139. The rest was put up by the city. On private homes, about $4 million has either been spent or committed.

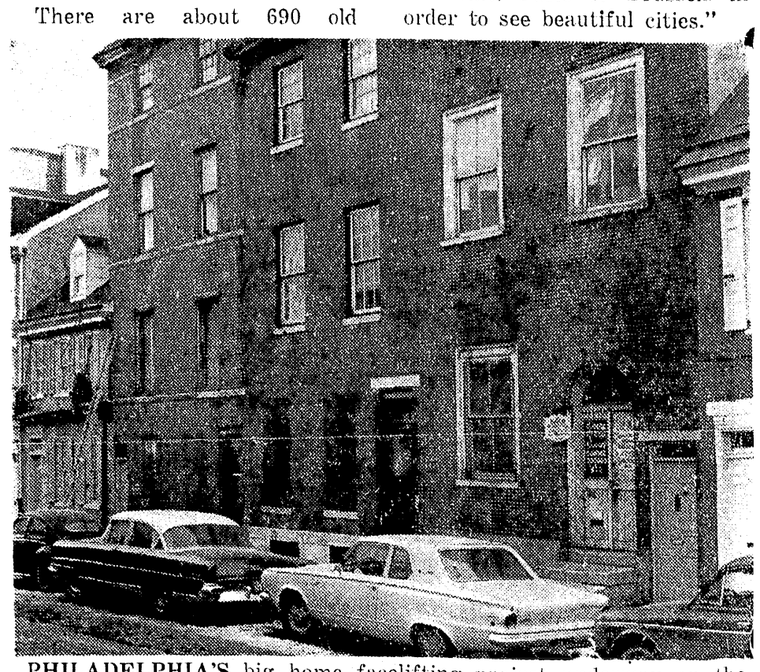

A unique feature in the financing plan is the stipulation that the major builder must spend one per cent of the building costs to create works of arts for the area — sculpture, bas-relief, fountains and mosaics. Plans call for liberal use of trees and open spaces to return to the "green country towne" aspect that Penn envisioned. The total cost to the redeveloper has been estimated at $30 million.

The Redevelopment Authority has purchased all the land in the area, but it will sell houses back to the owner at the same price if the owner agrees to restore the exterior to the original style.

The authority has architects check through plans and drawings, matching each house with copies of known architectural styles of the colonial period.

"Let us not bequeath to our heirs an America so dull that they have to board planes to go to Rome, Paris or Brussels in order to see beautiful cities."

The most prominent buildings in the area facing the Delaware River and the site of Penn's landing are the Society Hill Towers, three apartment buildings 31 stories high and containing a total of 720 units. Parking is provided in a three-level underground garage.

Twenty-five air-conditioned town houses are in the shadow of the towers. They have an old-style brick texture and graceful curved doorways with iron terraces. Each sells for $46,000 or $47,000 depending on whether there are three or four bedrooms. Other individual homes in the area sell for around $22,000 to $25,000.

At the opposite end of the area is the Hopkinson House, a privately financed 33-story apartment building containing 536 units, some of which already are occupied. Another 18 town houses are nearby.

Old Houses

There are about 690 old houses in the project area. Originally it was thought the Redevelopment Authority would have to acquire about 600 of them. Increasing support of the community resulted in many voluntary rehabilitations, even before the authority took formal action.

As of Dec. 31, 1962 Society Hill, known formally as Washington Square East, had cost a total of $18,914,729. The federal government contributed $11,874,439. The rest was put up by the city. On private homes, about $4 million has either been spent or committed.

A unique feature in the financing plan is the stipulation that the major builder must spend one per cent of the building costs to create works of arts for the area — sculpture, bas-relief, fountains and mosaics. Plans call for liberal use of trees and open spaces to return to the "green country towne" aspect that Penn envisioned. The total cost to the redeveloper has been estimated at $30 million.

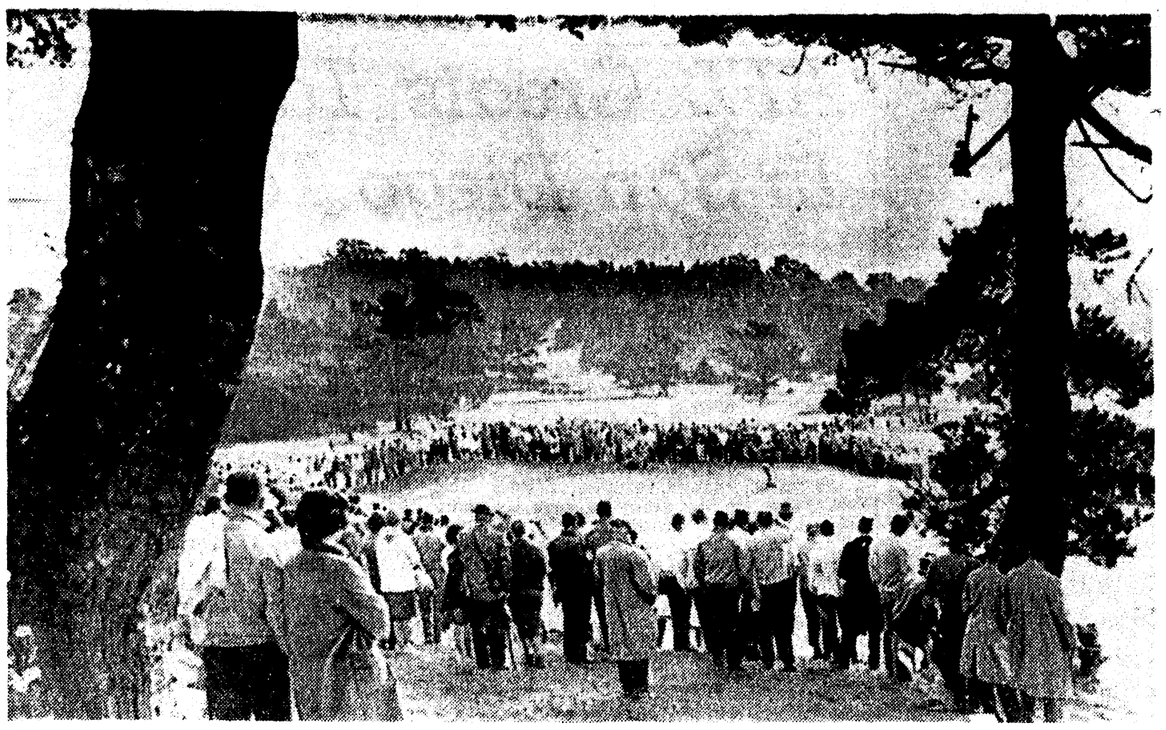

The Redevelopment Authority has purchased all the land in the area, but it will sell houses back to the owner at the same price if the owner agrees to restore the exterior to the original style.

The authority has architects check through plans and drawings, matching each house with copies of known architectural styles of the colonial period.

"Let us not bequeath to our heirs an America so dull that they have to board planes to go to Rome, Paris or Brussels in order to see beautiful cities."

ON TREACHEROUS CROSBY COURSE

Lema And Balding Tie For Lead; Arnie, Jack Dropped

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus failed to qualify Saturday for the finals of Bing Crosby's $60,000 Golf Tournament in a third round that saw Californian Tony Lema tie Canada's Al Balding for the lead at 208.

Lema rallied for a 70. Balding sagged to a 75 as both stumbled to double bogey scores of five on the 17th.

Two strokes back of the leaders came Australia's Bruce Devlin with a 74 and Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., with 72 for 210 totals. At 211 were Englishman Geoffrey Hunt, with a 70, Tommy Aaron, 73, and Jerry Steelsmith, 71.

Leading the pro-amateur competition were Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex. and Dr. Bud Taylor of Glendale, Calif., whose best-ball 63 put them at 188, one stroke ahead of Friday's coleaders, Mike Fetchick-Charley Seaver and Lema-Col. John Durkin.

Palmer was first to feel the curse of the 17th. He hit his tee shot into the edge of the ocean and then knocked around the rocks to put himself out of the individual pro division.

Then came Lema. He hit into a sand trap, came out short and three-putted from 30 feet.

Balding buried in a trap. He blasted out to about the same 30 feet and also three-putted, finishing up with his three-over-par score. This was the first time he had gone over in this event.

Even the weather was inconsistent. It ranged from bright sunshine to wind-whipped rain. It hindered Balding when he three-putted both 10th and 11th with the storm at its height.

He came back with birdies at the 12th and 16th, sinking putts of 35 and 10 feet.

Lema was five under par after 13 holes due to birdie putts ranging from four to 20 feet, but he bogeyed the 14th with a bad wedge shot into a trap and then double bogeyed that 17th.

U.S. Open champion Julius Boros shot a 75 for a 219 total. Not so fortunate was young Mason Rudolph, who saw the PGA's longest in-the-money streak end at 27 straight tournaments. He soared to an 84 at supposedly easy Monterey Peninsula Country Club and missed the cut by nine strokes at 229.

It took a team score of 198 or better to qualify for Sunday's nationally-televised final round. Palmer's partner and business manager, Mark McCormack, helped him stay in that phase of the action. The team had 196.

The winning pro collects $6,400 and the pro on the winning pro-amateur team gets $4,000. Ernie Bossler collected a $1,000 lap prize as he and partner Bill Higgins of Lafayette, Calif. had a best ball 59 for a 191.

Lema could conceivably collect both top prizes Sunday, a total of $10,400. He already has collected one lap prize of $1,000.

Defending champion Billy Casper had a 75 and 214.

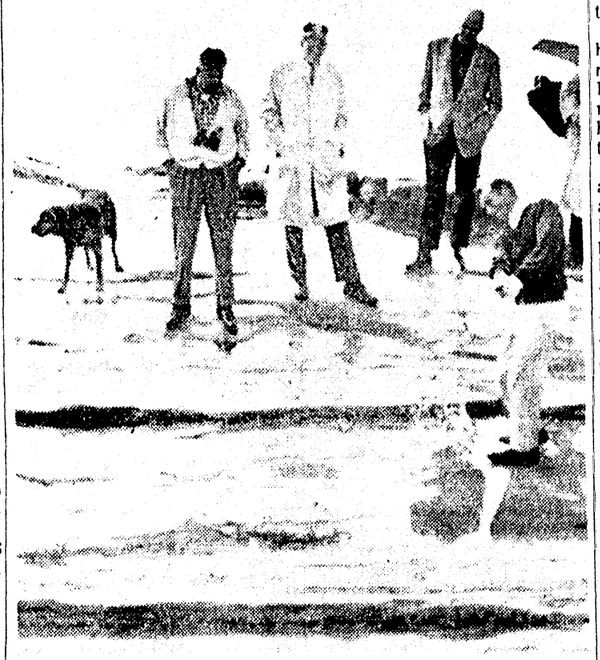

Big names missing the cut to the low 63 pros included former Crosby champion Ken Venturi at 229, Mike Souchak 235, Don Whitt 227, Canada's Stan Leonard 226, Ireland's Christy O'Connor 223 and the veteran Byron Nelson who didn't turn in a third round card.

GOES SIX OVER PAR

17th Hole Has Arnie Jinxed

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A disastrous six-over-par nine at Pebble Beach's treacherous 17th hole knocked Arnold Palmer out of the Crosby Golf Tournament Saturday.

It was a virtual repeat of history for the many consider the world's greatest golfer. Last year trouble at the 17th caused him to be disqualified from the Crosby.

This time the 17th socked his round up to 76 and left him with a three round score of 221—one stroke over the cutoff mark. He hadn't been cut since the 1961 Los Angeles Open.

Palmer came to the 17th Saturday two under par, but then his shots piled up:

1. He belted his three-wood tee shot on the 218-yard hole into the ocean behind the hole.

2. "The ball kept washing up onto the beach, but I couldn't hit it so I finally called it unplayable," said Palmer, and he dropped the ball over his shoulder at the cost of one stroke.

3. The ball dropped into water on the rocks. "I thought it would be called casual water so I could drop out, but they (PGA officials) ruled it was part of the ocean so I had to hit." And he hit into more rocks.

4. He hit the ball back in the ocean.

5. He dropped out for another one-stroke penalty.

6. He pitched up short—but at least up from the beach.

7. He pitched to the green.

8-9. He putted out.

Last year in the third round Palmer came to the 17th and hit a two-iron tee shot into a tide pool on a rock behind the green. Thinking the ball had been lost in the ocean, Palmer hit a provisional ball.

Then when he found his original shot, he chose to play the provisional ball rather than attempt to drop out onto the rocks.

The next day it was determined that such a choice was illegal and Palmer was disqualified from the tournament, ending his in-the-money string of more than two years.

The PGA's rules—different in that case from the U.S. Golf Association—said that a player may not hit and choose to play a provisional ball if he has an unplayable lie. If he determines that the lie is unplayable and he cannot drop out, then he must return to the tee and hit again—thus taking the chance of hitting the unplayable lie once more.

This year the PGA has adopted USGA rules under which Palmer would not have been disqualified last year.

"I'd be better off if I'd been disqualified this time, too," Palmer said after finishing his round with a four-over-par 76 and three-round total of 221.

Saturday's misadventure was not the worst hole of Palmer's professional career. In the 1961 Los Angeles Open he took a 12 at the ninth hole of the Rancho course. He belted four straight drives out of bounds that time.

Demons Edge Tribe 77-75 In Overtime

NATCHITOCHES (Special)—Trailing by as many as 14 points in the first half, the Northwestern State Demons came back strong to tie Northeast, 67-67, in regulation time and win, 79-75, in overtime here Saturday night.

The win gave Northwestern a 2-3 mark in the Gulf States Conference as Northeast fell to a 1-3 conference record.

Northeast ran off with a 13-2 lead in the early minutes as the Demons failed both from he field and the charity line. With less than three minutes left in the half, the Indians enjoyed a 14 point bulge but the Demons trimmed it 39-32 by halftime.

Three straight bukeets at the start of the second period put the Demons within one point, 39-38. The score was tied five times before the NSC quintet finally managed a two point lead with 6:55 showing on the clock.

The Indians tied it up at 62-62 and 64-64, went ahead with a fielder by Jimmy Walker and Irby Gamble added a free throw to make it 65-64 with 1:45 remaining.

Emmett Hendricks hit four charity tosses, Virgil Bray dropped in a pair of fielders, Billy Stokes tallied one and Sam Watson another to win it in the overtime.

It was Bray's bucket which made the score 75-73 and the Indians failed to catch up.

Playing without the services of senior guard and leading scorer Tommy Mathis, the Demons got fine efforts from Hendricks, Watts, Raymond Arthur and McLaurin in point production. McLaruin hit 22 points to lead NSC.

Northeast's Walker was handicapped by personal fouls early in the game and had little chance to score or rebbound.

Northeast will play Louisiana Tech on its own floor Monday while the Demons will be idle until next Saturday when they play Nicholls State at Thibodaux.

Kerwin Tosses In 39 Points In Gents' Win

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Tommy Kerwin, 6 foot 7 sophomore from Long Branch, N.J., scored 39 points as Centenary defeated Tennessee Tech 98-80 Saturday night.

Kerwin's 39 points set a Centenary scoring record. The old record was 37, set in 1959.

Centenary had little trouble in defeating the defending Ohio Valley Conference champions. After a slow start, they ran the score to 52-36 by Halftime.

Tennessee Tech came back to narrow the margin to only nine points midway in the second half. But the Gents, paced by Kerwin, soon pulled away again.

Bobbie Young led Tech with 20 points.

Kerwin grabbed 19 rebounds, a season high for a Gent. Centenary outrebounded the visitors 78-51.

Just Call Idaho Loudmouth Five

SEATTLE (AP) — From now on the University of Idaho basketball team may be known as the "Whispering Vandals." Loud conversation may have cost them an upset victory Friday night over Seattle.

There were 26 seconds left to play, Seattle was leading 71-69 but Idaho had the ball and was taking time out.

"As they came back on the floor there were raised voices and I heard what they wanted to do," said Ralph Heyward of Seattle. He did not keep the secret.

Teammate Charlie Williams stole Idaho's first pass, was fouled and converted two free throws. Seattle won, 75-69, after another steal brought a final basket.

Prep Soph Ups Thomas Record

Thomas, jumping for Rindge Tech of Boston, set the listed record of 6-7⅝ in the National AAU interscholastics here in 1958.

Lothridge, Dill Picked By Club To Get Awards

ATLANTA (AP) — All-America Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech and Kenny Dill of Mississippi have been selected to receive the Atlanta Touchdown Club's anniversary awards.

Quarterback Lothridge will receive the club's H. J. Stegeman trophy as the outstanding back in the Southeastern Conference. Center Dill will get the W. A. Alexander trophy as the SEC's outstanding lineman.

The two, who will receive the awards Jan. 25, were unanimous choices of the club's committee. Featured speaker will be coach Ben Martin of the Air Force Academy.

Lothridge, termed by coach Bobby Dodd of Tech as the most versatile and valuable player he ever coached, called signals, ran, passed, punted, kicked off, kicked extra points and field goals, setting a national career record for three-pointers with 21.

"His duties will have to be divided among at least four players next year," Dodd said.

Lothridge was runner-up to Navy's Roger Staubach for the Heisman Trophy as well as back of the year. He was also on the all-SEC team.

Dill, a second team All-America, was a unanimous choice for first string all-SEC. The 6 foot 4, 215-pound senior was praised highly by coach Charles McClendon of Louisiana State, which lost to Ole Miss 37-3.

"He's a natural linebacker," McClendon said. "He has he ability to diagnose plays and and the speed and strength to do something about it. He is so strong that he stands up straight and invites the opposition to run at him."

Wichita Defeats North Texans In Last Minutes

DENTON, Tex. (AP)—Wichita sank 10 straight free throws in two minutes to pull away from North Texas State for an 86-70 basketball victory Saturday.

A capacity crowd watched the surprising North Texas Eagles stay ahead through much of the game before running it into a steady blast of foul whistles with six minutes to go.

Dave Stallworth hit seven of 10 field goals and nine of 10 free throws to lead the Wheatshockers with 23 points.

North Texas shooting ace John Savage was held scoreless in the first half which ended with his team leading 33-32. He came back with 20 points in the second half, high for his team.

Giants Sign Up Young Pitchers For New Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Five young pitchers have signed contracts with the San Francisco Giants, the National League club said Saturday.

Doyle has been in the Giant organization since 1961 and pitched last year at El Paso, Texas, where he won 11 games and lost 10.

Athletics Owner Retains Nizer For Court Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles O. Finley, stormy owner of the Kansas City Athletics, Saturday retained famed trial lawyer Louis Nizer to represent him in his fight to move his baseball team to Louisville.

Finley, in a prepared statement, announced:

"I have retained Louis Nizer of Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin, Krimm and Ballon of New York to represent me and my firm and protect our interests in the pending dispute with the American League.

"Under instruction of my counsel, I shall make no further comment at this time."

Finley was thwarted by the league in his bid to move the club to Louisville. The league voted 9-1 against the move Thursday and by the same vote ordered Finley to sign a lease in Kansas City by Feb. 1, or face expulsion from the league.

Finley immediately countered with a threat to go to court to determine "if the American League has the power they think they have" in so ordering him.

"I don't enjoy these fights," he said earlier, "but I feel confident everything will turn out well. I don't think there's an owner in the American League who doesn't feel that I'm fighting for what I think is right.

"I am confident I can win. But in some ways even if I beat them I lose because baseball loses and I'm part of baseball. But I'll sacrifice to straighten some of these things out."

Frainey and McGowan play 36 holes Sunday for the championship.

Ole Miss Sinks State Five In 77-75 Thriller

Ole Miss went ahead 8-7 with 5:01 elapsed and stayed in front until the Maroons took a brief lead at 62-61. Kessinger, who had 31 points for the night, put Ole Miss in front again but State's Don Posey tied the score at 75-75. Kessinger then sank his game-winning basket.

Rupp Strategy Confuses Vols; Cats Win, 66-57

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Master strategist Adolph Rupp surprised Tennessee with a 1-3-1 zone defense Saturday night that enabled Kentucky to hand the Volunteers their first Southeastern Conference basketball defeat, 66-57.

This was the first game since Adolph Rupp began coaching at Kentucky in which the Wildcats employed a zone defense throughout the game.

The Wildcats, in winning their third SEC victory against two conference defeats, were paced by all-America candidate Cotton Nash with 23 points. Tennessee got 20 points from junior forward A W. Davis.

Kentucky's zone nullified Tennessee's height advantage and the Wildcats held the Vols to a near-standoff in rebounding, Tennessee getting 33 to 32 for Kentucky. Kentucky, the fourth-ranked team in the nation, now has an overall record of 13 victories and two losses.

The Wildcats dealt Tennessee its third setback in 13 games.

Two More Clubs Admitted To UFL To Make Eight

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — Montreal and Charleston, W. Va. were granted franchises Saturday in the United Football League, boosting the minor grid loop to eight teams.

Addition of Montreal marks the first time in football history that a professional league has boasted both Canadian and American teams.

Sam Etcheverry, former St. Louis Cardinal quarterback in the National Football League who played several years with Montreal, has been signed as coach of the Canadian team. Etcheverry's appointment was announced by Ray Cicia, who represented the Canadian group.

George T. Gareff of Columbus, league commissioner, said three other cities had requested franchises and that action on the applications would be taken later. He declined to identify the cities.

Marion, Tigers Bernice Winners In Cage Windup

BERNICE (Special) — Bobby Regan fired in 26 points to pace Marion to a 74-61 victory over Linville boys and Docia Dalby poured in 46 tallies to lead Winnfield girls to a 74-54 win over Bernice in the Bernice Invitational tournament finals here Saturday night.

Lannie Parker paced Linville boys with 15 points and Dianne Gray had 22 for Bernice.

The girls selections included Regina Phelps, Farmerville; Phyllis Love, Winnfield; Docia Dalby, Winnfield; Alice Poole, Winnfield; Nancy Green, Bernice, and Dixie Hollis, Linville.

ON TREACHEROUS CROSBY COURSE

Lema And Balding Tie For Lead; Arnie, Jack Dropped

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus failed to qualify Saturday for the finals of Bing Crosby's $60,000 Golf Tournament in a third round that saw Californian Tony Lema tie Canada's Al Balding for the lead at 208.

Lema rallied for a 70. Balding sagged to a 75 as both stumbled to double bogey scores of five on the 17th.

Two strokes back of the leaders came Australia's Bruce Devlin with a 74 and Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., with 72 for 210 totals. At 211 were Englishman Geoffrey Hunt, with a 70, Tommy Aaron, 73, and Jerry Steelsmith, 71.

Leading the pro-amateur competition were Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex. and Dr. Bud Taylor of Glendale, Calif., whose best-ball 63 put them at 188, one stroke ahead of Friday's coleaders, Mike Fetchick-Charley Seaver and Lema-Col. John Durkin.

Palmer was first to feel the curse of the 17th. He hit his tee shot into the edge of the ocean and then knocked around the rocks to put himself out of the individual pro division.

Then came Lema. He hit into a sand trap, came out short and three-putted from 30 feet.

Balding buried in a trap. He blasted out to about the same 30 feet and also three-putted, finishing up with his three-over-par score. This was the first time he had gone over in this event.

Even the weather was inconsistent. It ranged from bright sunshine to wind-whipped rain. It hindered Balding when he three-putted both 10th and 11th with the storm at its height.

He came back with birdies at the 12th and 16th, sinking putts of 35 and 10 feet.

Lema was five under par after 13 holes due to birdie putts ranging from four to 20 feet, but he bogeyed the 14th with a bad wedge shot into a trap and then double bogeyed that 17th.

U.S. Open champion Julius Boros shot a 75 for a 219 total. Not so fortunate was young Mason Rudolph, who saw the PGA's longest in-the-money streak end at 27 straight tournaments. He soared to an 84 at supposedly easy Monterey Peninsula Country Club and missed the cut by nine strokes at 229.

It took a team score of 198 or better to qualify for Sunday's nationally-televised final round. Palmer's partner and business manager, Mark McCormack, helped him stay in that phase of the action. The team had 196.

The winning pro collects $6,400 and the pro on the winning pro-amateur team gets $4,000. Ernie Bossler collected a $1,000 lap prize as he and partner Bill Higgins of Lafayette, Calif. had a best ball 59 for a 191.

Lema could conceivably collect both top prizes Sunday, a total of $10,400. He already has collected one lap prize of $1,000.

Defending champion Billy Casper had a 75 and 214.

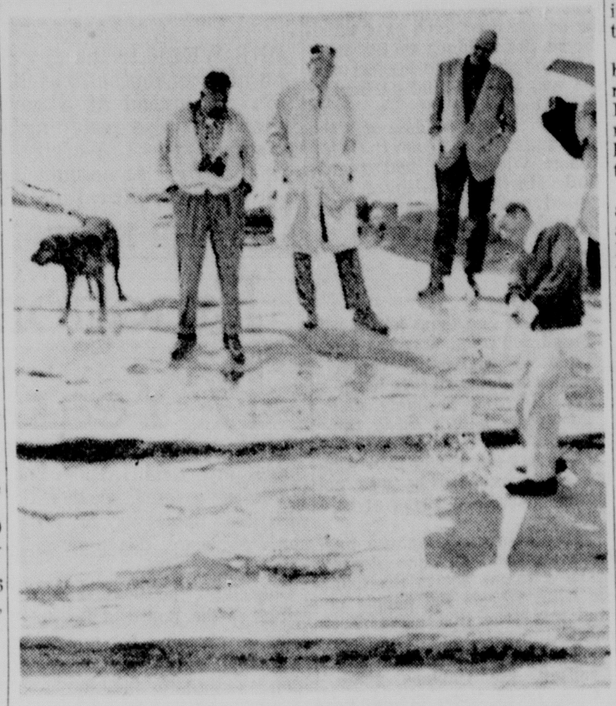

Big names missing the cut to the low 63 pros included former Crosby champion Ken Venturi at 229, Mike Souchak 235, Don Whitt 227, Canada's Stan Leonard 226, Ireland's Christy O'Connor 223 and the veteran Byron Nelson who didn't turn in a third round card.

17th Hole Has Arnie Jinxed

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) —A disastrous six-over-par nine at Pebble Beach's treacherous 17th hole knocked Arnold Palmer out of the Crosby Golf Tournament Saturday.

It was a virtual repeat of history for the many consider the world's greatest golfer. Last year trouble at the 17th caused him to be disqualified from the Crosby.

This time the 17th socked his round up to 76 and left him with a three round score of 221—one stroke over the cutoff mark. He hadn't been cut since the 1961 Los Angeles Open.

Palmer came to the 17th Saturday two under par, but then his shots piled up:

1. He belted his three-wood tee shot on the 218-yard hole into the ocean behind the hole.

2. "The ball kept washing up onto the beach, but I couldn't hit it so I finally called it unplayable," said Palmer, and he dropped the ball over his shoulder at the cost of one stroke.

3. The ball dropped into water on the rocks. "I thought it would be called casual water so I could drop out, but they (PGA officials) ruled it was part of the ocean so I had to hit." And he hit into more rocks.

4. He hit the ball back in the ocean.

5. He dropped out for another one-stroke penalty.

6. He pitched up short—but at least up from the beach.

7. He pitched to the green.

8-9. He putted out.

Last year in the third round Palmer came to the 17th and hit a two-iron tee shot into a tide pool on a rock behind the green. Thinking the ball had been lost in the ocean, Palmer hit a provisional ball.

Then when he found his original shot, he chose to play the provisional ball rather than attempt to drop out onto the rocks.

The next day it was determined that such a choice was illegal and Palmer was disqualified from the tournament, ending his in-the-money string of more than two years.

The PGA's rules—different in that case from the U.S. Golf Association—said that a player may not hit and choose to play a provisional ball if he has an unplayable lie. If he determines that the lie is unplayable and he cannot drop out, then he must return to the tee and hit again—thus taking the chance of hitting the unplayable lie once more.

This year the PGA has adopted USGA rules under which Palmer would not have been disqualified last year.

"I'd be better off if I'd been disqualified this time, too," Palmer said after finishing his round with a four-over-par 76 and three-round total of 221.

Saturday's misadventure was not the worst hole of Palmer's professional career. In the 1961 Los Angeles Open he took a 12 at the ninth hole of the Rancho course. He belted four straight drives out of bounds that time.

Demons Edge Tribe 77-75 In Overtime

NATCHITOCHES (Special)—Trailing by as many as 14 points in the first half, the Northwestern State Demons came back strong to tie Northeast, 67-67, in regulation time and win, 79-75, in overtime here Saturday night.

The win gave Northwestern a 2-3 mark in the Gulf States Conference as Northeast fell to a 1-3 conference record.

Northeast ran off with a 13-2 lead in the early minutes as the Demons failed both from he field and the charity line. With less than three minutes left in the half, the Indians enjoyed a 14 point bulge but the Demons trimmed it 39-32 by halftime.

Three straight bukcets at the start of the second period put the Demons within one point, 39-38. The score was tied five times before the NSC quintet finally managed a two point lead with 6:55 showing on the clock.

The Indians tied it up at 62-62 and 64-64, went ahead with a fielder by Jimmy Walker and Irby Gamble added a free throw to make it 65-64 with 1:45 remaining.

Emmett Hendricks hit four charity tosses, Virgil Bray dropped in a pair of fielders, Billy Stokes tallied one and Sam Watson another to win it in the overtime.

It was Bray's bucket which made the score 75-73 and the Indians failed to catch up.

Playing without the services of senior guard and leading scorer Tommy Mathis, the Demons got fine efforts from Hendricks, Watts, Raymond Arthur and McLaurin in point production. McLaruin hit 22 points to lead NSC.

Northeast's Walker was handicapped by personal fouls early in the game and had little chance to score or rebbound.

Northeast will play Louisiana Tech on its own floor Monday while the Demons will be idle until next Saturday when they play Nicholls State at Thibodaux.

Kerwin Tosses In 39 Points In Gents' Win

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Tommy Kerwin, 6 foot 7 sophomore from Long Branch, N.J., scored 39 points as Centenary defeated Tennessee Tech 98-80 Saturday night.

Kerwin's 39 points set a Centenary scoring record. The old record was 37, set in 1959.

Centenary had little trouble in defeating the defending Ohio Valley Conference champions. After a slow start, they ran the score to 52-36 by Halftime.

Tennessee Tech came back to narrow the margin to only nine points midway in the second half. But the Gents, paced by Kerwin, soon pulled away again.

Bobbie Young led Tech with 20 points.

Kerwin grabbed 19 rebounds, a season high for a Gent. Centenary outrebounded the visitors 78-51.

Just Call Idaho Loudmouth Five

SEATTLE (AP) — From now on the University of Idaho basketball team may be known as the "Whispering Vandals." Loud conversation may have cost them an upset victory Friday night over Seattle.

There were 26 seconds left to play. Seattle was leading 71-69 but Idaho had the ball and was taking time out.

"As they came back on the floor there were raised voices and I heard what they wanted to do," said Ralph Heyward of Seattle. He did not keep the secret.

Teammate Charlie Williams stole Idaho's first pass, was fouled and converted two free throws. Seattle won, 75-69, after another steal brought a final basket.

Prep Soph Ups Thomas Record

Thomas, jumping for Rindge Tech of Boston, set the listed record of 6-7⅝ in the National AAU interscholastics here in 1958.

Wichita Defeats North Texans In Last Minutes

DENTON, Tex. (AP)—Wichita sank 10 straight free throws in two minutes to pull away from North Texas State for an 86-70 basketball victory Saturday.

A capacity crowd watched the surprising North Texas Eagles stay ahead through much of the game before running it into a steady blast of foul whistles with six minutes to go.

Dave Stallworth hit seven of 10 field goals and nine of 10 free throws to lead the Wheatshockers with 23 points.

Lothridge, Dill Picked By Club To Get Awards

ATLANTA (AP) — All-America Billy Lothridge of Georgia Tech and Kenny Dill of Mississippi have been selected to receive the Atlanta Touchdown Club's anniversary awards.

Quarterback Lothridge will receive the club's H. J. Stegeman trophy as the outstanding back in the Southeastern Conference. Center Dill will get the W. A. Alexander trophy as the SEC's outstanding lineman.

The two, who will receive the awards Jan. 25, were unanimous choices of the club's committee. Featured speaker will be coach Ben Martin of the Air Force Academy.

Lothridge, termed by coach Bobby Dodd of Tech as the most versatile and valuable player he ever coached, called signals, ran, passed, punted, kicked off, kicked extra points and field goals, setting a national career record for three-pointers with 21.

"His duties will have to be divided among at least four players next year," Dodd said.

Lothridge was runner-up to Navy's Roger Staubach for the Heisman Trophy as well as back of the year. He was also on the all-SEC team.

Dill, a second team All-America, was a unanimous choice for first string all-SEC. The 6 foot 4, 215-pound senior was praised highly by coach Charles Mc Clendon of Louisiana State, which lost to Ole Miss 37-3.

"He's a natural linebacker," McClendon said. "He has he ability to diagnose plays and and the speed and strength to do something about it. He is so strong that he stands up straight and invites the opposition to run at him."

Giants Sign Up Young Pitchers For New Season

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Five young pitchers have signed contracts with the San Francisco Giants, the National League club said Saturday.

Doyle has been in the Giant organization since 1961 and pitched last year at El Paso, Texas, where he won 11 games and lost 10.

Athletics Owner Retains Nizer For Court Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles O. Finley, stormy owner of the Kansas City Athletics, Saturday retained famed trial lawyer Louis Nizer to represent him in his fight to move his baseball team to Louisville.

Finley, in a prepared statement, announced:

"I have retained Louis Nizer of Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin, Krimm and Ballon of New York to represent me and my firm and protect our interests in the pending dispute with the American League.

"Under instruction of my counsel, I shall make no further comment at this time."

Finley was thwarted by the league in his bid to move the club to Louisville. The league voted 9-1 against the move Thursday and by the same vote ordered Finley to sign a lease in Kansas City by Feb. 1, or face expulsion from the league.

Finley immediately countered with a threat to go to court to determine "if the American League has the power they think they have" in so ordering him.

"I don't enjoy these fights," he said earlier, "but I feel confident everything will turn out well. I don't think there's an owner in the American League who doesn't feel that I'm fighting for what I think is right.

"I am confident I can win. But in some ways even if I beat them I lose because baseball loses and I'm part of baseball. But I'll sacrifice to straighten some of these things out."

Ole Miss Sinks State Five In 77-75 Thriller

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) —Donnie Kessinger's fielder with 30 seconds left gave Mississippi a 77-75 Southeastern Conference victory over Mississippi State Saturday night.

Ole Miss went ahead 8-7 with 5:01 elapsed and stayed in front until the Maroons took a brief lead at 62-61. Kessinger, who had 31 points for the night, put Ole Miss in front again but State's Don Posey tied the score at 75-75. Kessinger then sank his game-winning basket.

Rupp Strategy Confuses Vols; Cats Win, 66-57

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Master strategist Adolph Rupp surprised Tennessee with a 1-3-1 zone defense Saturday night that enabled Kentucky to hand the Volunteers their first Southeastern Conference basketball defeat, 66-57.

This was the first game since Adolph Rupp began coaching at Kentucky in which the Wildcats employed a zone defense throughout the game.

The Wildcats, in winning their third SEC victory against two conference defeats, were paced by all-America candidate Cotton Nash with 23 points. Tennessee got 20 points from junior forward A.W. Davis.

Kentucky's zone nullified Tennessee's height advantage and the Wildcats held the Vols to a near-standoff in rebounding, Tennessee getting 33 to 32 for Kentucky. Kentucky, the fourth-ranked team in the nation, now has an overall record of 13 victories and two losses.

The Wildcats dealt Tennessee its third setback in 13 games.

Two More Clubs Admitted To UFL To Make Eight

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — Montreal and Charleston, W. Va. were granted franchises Saturday in the United Football League, boosting the minor grid loop to eight teams.

Addition of Montreal marks the first time in football history that a professional league has boasted both Canadian and American teams.

Sam Etcheverry, former St. Louis Cardinal quarterback in the National Football League who played several years with Montreal, has been signed as coach of the Canadian team. Etcheverry's appointment was announced by Ray Cicia, who represented the Canadian group.

George T. Gareff of Columbus, league commissioner, said three other cities had requested franchises and that action on the applications would be taken later. He declined to identify the cities.

In semifinal games, Bernice stopped Northlett, Ark., 42 - 35, and Winnfield clipped Linville, 42-35, in girls game.

The girls selections included Regina Phelps, Farmerville; Phyllis Love, Winnfield; Docia Dalby, Winnfield; Alice Poole, Winnfield; Nancy Green, Bernice, and Dixie Hollis, Linville.

The Bulldog Wasn't Dead

Only a short year ago, they buried the Louisiana Tech football team. "Old Joe ain't got it any more," people said. "Tech will never be able to stay on the same football field with Southern Mississippi again, their recruiting is so bad only one or two of their freshmen will ever play before they're seniors."

In Ruston Monday night they'll honor the 1963 Tech team which won six and lost three, defeated Southern Mississippi and used over a half dozen freshmen on its first two teams.

It was a paradoxical team, this 1963 bunch.

A lot of people thought the record, best for Tech since 1960, came solely on the strong right arm of quarterback Billy Laird. And Laird may quite well be the most talented quarterback in the state, regardless of the size school considered. What his predecessor did in one year of pro football indicates that this caliber of passing, leadership and play calling is of a quality that makes the "big" boys wince.

But the season was not made on the artistry of Billy Laird alone. Far from it.

Of the other factors, the most important may have been a greatly improved defense. Tech, which hadn't blanked anybody since the Southwestern game in 1961, shutout two opponents and let only two teams score more than two touchdowns.

One reason behind this was a faster and more experienced secondary which prevented long runs and the "throw it just as far as you can" type pass which jinxed the Canines in the past.

But obviously the biggest reason was the line and particularly the hard core interior. Three seniors in the middle of the Blue team line, center John Robert Williamson and guards Wally Martin and Richard Enis, caused most opponents to run the ends or pass.

Meanest By Far

Of the three, Enis remained the most under-rated and for his size probably the best. If Head Coach Joe Aillet ever casts a mold of the type football player he has always sought and always will, he'll come up with Richard Enis. Not overly big, Enis, who weighs 215, is an engineering student and a bright one. He played football, not because he had to, but because he loved it. Called the "quiet man" by his teammates, Enis seldom spoke and smiled even less.

A back, so the story goes, made a mistake in practice. One of the coaches asked him what was wrong. "I'm all shook, Coach," he said. "I just saw Richard Enis smile."

On the field Enis communicated physically.

Against one team he diagnosed a sweep, moved over from his defensive center post, cut down all four blockers. He was probably disgusted he hadn't made the tackle.

Enis was not easily provoked, but once arroused he was not a man you threw rocks at in a dark alley.

Three men don't make a line, however, and one line doesn't make a team, not in the tough ole GSC. It was the people behind this trio that gave Tech depth.

At the beginning of the season, the Canines knew they faced two problems. One was depth behind Laird at quarterback. The other was depth behind Enis, Williamson and Martin.

Blake Is The Answer

The Bulldogs were more than lucky in both respects. Laird played well and a boy from Jonesboro named John Blake solved the other problem. Next to Williamson (230), Blake at 185 is a midget. One person commented he was a third string center on anybody's ball club. At Tech last fall he started six deep.

A highly reguarded freshman was headed for the number two spot behind Williamson. Blake didn't say anything, but the coaches found he hit a little harder each week. And every week he moved up another notch. By the time the season started he was right behind Williamson and that's where he stayed.

What Blake did may have inspired some other people, but particularly senior Jerry Arledge. At any rate opponents didn't notice any appreciable weakness up the middle when the Blue Team took a rest.

Another factor of course was the kicking of end David Lee. The lanky youngster, plus Tech's defense, gave Aillet field position that was hard to beat.

In the intangible department was the contribution of Billy Keever. A senior at flexed end who was slated to see first team duty, Keever went back to his old high school position when quarterback Jim Stringer was injured. As a result, Keever saw practically no playing time. But his sacrifice was appreciated.

Lots Of Points

Then there was the offense. Although the Canines improved their running attack a lot and it provided invaluable versatility, they seldom outgained their opponents on the ground. Yet, the 1963 squad in nine games scored more points than any Tech team since the last really great club in 1959 (The 1959 team scored three more points in 10 games).

The '59 team overpowered people. Linemen like the Hintons, Jim Campbell and Charlie Garris ripped gapping holes in the defense, a herd of red-shirted blockers poured through and finally the big, fast boys like Paul Hynes, J. W. Slack and Max Rudd rambled around with the ball. It was a team that ground out real estate at five, ten and sixty yards a lick.

The 1963 team didn't compare in strength, but the pro offense with an improving line, speedy backs like Gerald McDowell, Tommy Linder, Jack Odom and Alden Reeves, lightning at either side of the field in split ends like Wayne Davis and Lee and flankerbacks like Corky Corkern and Kenny Tidwell, and the whole thing run by a master like Laird, puts maximum pressure on a defense. You have only eleven people, they are spread, and you realize you can't defense the whole field. It presents problems.

What the pro-T has meant to Tech is hard to say, they are just getting the personnel and the know how to make it go. But it has been a lifesaver for two years. It's hard to beat a team you can't outscore, no matter how weak they are. And this is one writer who wonders if the Bulldogs would have won a single game in

ONE WEEK to the day from the time he quit as football coach, Bud Wilkinson announced at a news conference that he is also resigning as athletic director of the University of Oklahoma. In the surprise announcement, Wilkinson blamed political motivations by the University's Board of Regents for the refusal to name his long-time assistant, Gomer Jones, as his successor. Wilkinson said Saturday Jones should be named athletic director as well as coach. (AP Wirephoto)

A BITTER NOTE

Emotional Wilkinson Ends 17 Year Location With OU

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Bud Wilkinson severed another tie with the University of Oklahoma Saturday, this time on a note of bitterness.

Charging "political maneuvering" in the Board of Regents' delay in choosing his successor as football coach, Wilkinson resigned as athletic director.

The move came exactly one week after he ended a fabulous 17-season career as Sooner football coach in a big step toward furthering incipient political ambitions.

Wilkinson, who has backed his friend and long-time assistant, Gomer Jones, for the football job, displayed annoyance when he said, "It has become increasingly apparent that political maneuvering on the part of some regents has taken precedence over the early choice of a new coach."

The emotional announcement at a news conference in his office was a departure from the famed 47-year-old former coach's usual calm manner. He arrived for the news conference several minutes late, explaining that he needed time "to compose myself."

Wilkinson turned aside questions about his future. He has said he is frankly considering running for the U. S. Senate but insists he has not yet made a decision.

At one time during his session with newsmen, Wilkinson asked that one of his replies be stricken because he said the information came in executive session of the university's Board of Regents and he didn't feel he should reveal it.

"That's one of the reasons I wanted to compose myself before I came in here so I'd be sure not to say anything wrong" he said.

Although he is a registered Democrat, Wilkinson would be expected to run for the Senate as a Republican—and this is believed to be the source of the reported friction with regents.

Six of the seven regents reportedly are loyal to two probable Democratic candidates for the Senate—a former governor, Raymond Gary, and the incumbent Senator, J. Howard Edmondson.

There have been numerous reports that four regents considered friendly to Edmonson have blocked Jones' appointment.

Wilkinson said he had expected when he resigned as coach that his recommendation of Jones, 49-year - old line coach and associate athletic director, would be approved immediately.

But the regents have refused to move.

"At last Wednesday's meeting, I told the Board of Regents I would submit my resignation as athletic director if this would simplify their responsibilities and aid them in making a quick decision." Wilkinson said. "At that time I gave my whole - hearted endorsement to Gomer Jones.

"Since then, it has become increasingly apparent that political maneuvering on the part of some regents has taken precedence over the early choice of a new coach. So that these considerations can no longer play a part in the delay, I am resigning as athletic director. This action will free the regents from any further political involvement related to this selection.

"I repeat again, with all possible emphasis, that Gomer Jones is unequivocally my recommendation to be the head football coach and the athletic director. Any discussion by me with the regents concerning other candidates resulted from the regents telling the athletic council and me that they would give no further consideration to the man most deserving of the job, Gomer Jones."

But Glenn Northcutt, president of the regents, said he was for Jones and indicated the 49-year - old assistant coach probably would get the job.

Northcutt said it had been Jones' age and not politics that had caused the delay.

"As far as I know, that is the only stumbling block in his path and I think that has just about been removed," he said.

Jones came to Oklahoma with Wilkinson in 1947 and has been in charge of coaching the line. The veteran aide has been given a large measure of credit in the development of teams that have compiled a 145-29-4 record and won three national titles.

At Wednesday's meeting, regents appeared close to naming Jones, then decided to ask outside candidates to come to the campus Sunday for interviews.

So far, only three outsiders—Sam Boghosian, line coach at UCLA, Mike Corgan, backfield coach at Nebraska, and Buck McPhail, a former Oklahoma fullback who is now backfield coach at Illinois—have responded to invitations sent to about 20 men.

Dr. George L. Cross, university president, said he was "very surprised and very sorry" to hear that Wilkinson had resigned.

"To me, the situation is confused and tragic," Cross said. "Faculty morale is hurt . . . the faculty is confused and wondering what this will lead to.

"We have been blessed by a long period of smooth operation of our athletic program. I regret greatly it has ceased."

AT ANNUAL MEETING

SEC Will Argue Recruiting Dispute

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Conference holds its annual meeting in Atlanta beginning next Wednesday, with controversy centering around the 140-scholarship limit and a proposed new one-year grant-in-aid.

Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech is on record as saying he is in favor of pulling out of the SEC unless the 140 limit on football and basketball scholarships is scrapped.

One substitute for the 140 limit would propose that football scholarships permitted each year be reduced from 45 to 40 with 6 new basketball scholarships to be allowed each year. The total limit would be removed entirely, allowing for a maximum number of recruits to stay in school and graduate.

The proposal of six basketball scholarships per season would allow for a maximum of 24. Most conference schools give only 20.

Member institutions have on occasion had to exceed the 140 limit during recruiting season and allow for flunk outs and drop outs to get them below the ceiling. Dodd said he believes schools cannot handle the scholarship total fairly under the circumstances.

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution said it had learned many SEC coaches favor a new one-year scholarship.

"Under the present four-year set-up an athlete can decide that he just doesn't want to play anymore and still keep his four-year grant-in-aid under NCAA regulations," said one spokesman.

Under the new proposal athletics would have to pass all their work and be eligible to play, obey all the rules and regulations of the SEC and obey all rules and regulations of the athletic department.

"A coach could not deprive a player of a grant just because he was not good enough, but only if he didn't live up to the rules," said the spokesman, who added he doubted the rule would pass because it would be too difficult to enforce.

Florida plans to recommend that the league be expanded to 13 teams, including Florida State. FSU is interested in becoming a member.

Auburn is expected to recommend a hardship rule giving an athlete another year of eligibility if he is injured in the first minutes of his varsity career.

Federal Purse At Bowie Won By Space Skates

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Space Skates won the $10,000 Federal purse at Bowie Saturday, outrunning favored Coppahaunk by a neck and giving jockey Ronnie Ferraro his third straight winner.

Ferraro also finished first with Anthony Scarfo in the sixth race and War Council in the seventh.

The victory in the eighth race was declared official only after the stewards rejected a foul claim against Space Skates. Nick Shuk, who finished fourth aboard Kings Song, lodged complaints against Space Skates and Colonel Bingo, who was third.

WEST TO DEFEND

AFL Greats Tangle In San Diego Today

SAN DIEGO (AP)—American Football League greats of the Western and Eastern divisions meet today in the third annual All-Star game at Balboa Stadium.

Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m. EST, and the game will be televised nationally. A crowd of 27,000 is expected.

The West All-Stars will be out to extend their perfect 2-0 mark in the series. They blitzed the East 49-27 in the first game and last year put on a second half rally to win 21-14.

Leading the Western squad at quarterback again will be Tobin Rote, the AFL's leading passer and field general. Rote led San Diego to the Western Division crown and had a near-perfect day Jan. 5 as the Chargers routed Boston 51-10 in the championship tilt.

If Rote falters, West Coach Sid Gillman of San Diego will call on Oakland's Cotton Davidson. It was Davidson who threw for five touchdowns to clinch a win for the West in the first All-Star game. He was voted the game's outstanding player.

Besides Rote, Gillman will have his entire Charger backfield available, including flanker Lance Alworth, halfback Paul Dowe and fullback Keith Lincoln.

Lincoln put on a spectacular display in the San Diego-Boston championship game when he gained 329 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Another major threat in the West backfield will be Oakland's Clem Daniels, the league's leading rusher with 1,098 yards.

Kemp, although ranked third in AFL passing, was the top passing gainer with 2,914 yards in 1963.

The East ground game will rely mostly on fullback Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo, fullback Larry Garron of Boston and halfback Dick Mathis of New York. Gilchrist gained 979 yards during regular season play and was the AFL's second-ranked ball carrier.

In the air, the East's main threats will be Houston's Charlie Hennigan, Bake Turner of New York and Gino Capelletti of Boston.

Hayes Equals World Mark In 60 Dash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hayes, the flash from Florida A&M, tied the indoor 60-yard dash record Saturday night at the fifth annual Los Angeles Invitational Indoor track and field meet.

Hayes, who holds the world record of 9.1 in the 100 - yard dash, covered the 60 yards in six seconds flat. That tied the record shared by Herb Carper of the Santa Barbara Athletic Club, Roscoe Cook of Oregon and Frank Budd of Villanova.

Carper finished third Saturday night, behind Darel Newman of Fresno State. Both were timed in 6.1.

This was Hayes' first indoor 60.

Jones won the 60-yard event in seven seconds flat, one-tenth of a second off the indoor record he established at Chicago in March of 1962.

Dee Andrews of Long Beach State was second in the final in 7.2. Blaine Lindgren of the Utah Track Club was third. He also was timed in 7.2.

The Bulldog Wasn't Dead

Only a short year ago, they buried the Louisiana Tech football team. "Old Joe ain't got it any more," people said. "Tech will never be able to stay on the same football field with Southern Mississippi again, their recruiting is so bad only one or two of their freshmen will ever play before they're seniors."

In Ruston Monday night, they'll honor the 1963 Tech team which won six and lost three, defeated Southern Mississippi and used over a half dozen freshmen on its first two teams.

It was a paradoxical team, this 1963 bunch.

A lot of people thought the record, best for Tech since 1960, came solely on the strong right arm of quarterback Billy Laird. And Laird may quite well be the most talented quarterback in the state, regardless of the size school considered. What his predecessor did in one year of pro football indicates that this calibre of passing, leadership and play calling is of a quality that makes the "big" boys wince.

But the season was not made on the artistry of Billy Laird alone. Far from it.

Of the other factors, the most important may have been a greatly improved defense. Tech, which hadn't blanked anybody since the Southwestern game in 1961, shutout two opponents and let only two teams score more than two touchdowns.

One reason behind this was a faster and more experienced secondary which prevented long runs and the "throw it just as far as you can" type pass which jinxed the Canines in the past.

But obviously the biggest reason was the line and particularly the hard core interior. Three seniors in the middle of the Blue team line, center John Robert Williamson and guards Wally Martin and Richard Enis, caused most opponents to run the ends or pass.

Meanest By Far

Of the three, Enis remained the most under-rated and for his size probably the best. If Head Coach Joe Aillet ever casts a mold of the type football player he has always sought and always will, he'll come up with Richard Enis. Not overly big, Enis, who weighs 215, is an engineering student and a bright one. He played football, not because he had to, but because he loved it. Called the "quiet man" by his teammates, Enis seldom spoke and smiled even less.

A back, so the story goes, made a mistake in practice. One of the coaches asked him what was wrong. "I'm all shook, Coach," he said, "I just saw Richard Enis smile."

On the field Enis communicated phyiscally.

Against one team he diagnosed a sweep, moved over from his defensive center post, cut down all four blockers. He was probably disgusted he hadn't made the tackle.

Enis was not easily provoked, but once arroused he was not a man you threw rocks at in a dark alley.

Three men don't make a line, however, and one line doesn't make a team, not in the tough ole GSC. It was the people behind this trio that gave Tech depth.

At the beginning of the season, the Canines knew they faced two problems. One was depth behind Laird at quarterback. The other was depth behind Enis, Williamson and Martin.

Blake Is The Answer

The Bulldogs were more than lucky in both respects. Laird stayed well and a boy from Jonesboro named John Blake solved the other problem. Next to Williamson (230), Blake at 185 is a midget. One person commented he was a third string center on anybody's ballclub. At Tech last fall he started six deep.

A highly reguarded freshman was headed for the number two spot behind Williamson. Blake didn't say anything, but the coaches found he hit a little harder each week. And every week he moved up another notch. By the time the season started he was right behind Williamson and that's where he stayed.

What Blake did may have inspired some other people, but particularly senior Jerry Arledge. At any rate opponents didn't notice any appreciable weakness up the middle when the Blue Team took a rest.

Another factor of course was the kicking of end David Lee. The lanky youngster, plus Tech's defense, gave Aillet field position that was hard to beat.

In the intangible department was the contribution of Billy Keever. A senior at flexed end who was slated to see first team duty, Keever went back to his old high school position when quarterback Jim Stringer was injured. As a result, Keever saw practically no playing time. But his sacrifice was appreciated.

Lots Of Points

Then there was the offense. Although the Canines improved their running attack a lot and it provided invaluable versatility, they seldom outgained their opponents on the ground. Yet, the 1963 squad in nine games scored more points than any Tech team since the last really great club in 1959 (The 1959 team scored three more points in 10 games).

The '59 team overpowered people. Linemen like the Hintons, Jim Campbell and Charlie Garris ripped gapping holes in the defense, a herd of redshirted blockers poured through and finally the big, fast boys like Paul Hynes, J. W. Slack and Max Rudd rambled around with the ball. It was a team that ground out real estate at five, ten and sixty yards a lick.

The 1963 team didn't compare in strength, but the pro offense with an improving line, speedy backs like Gerald McDowell, Tommy Linder, Jack Odom and Alden Reeves, lightning at either side of the field in split ends like Wayne Davis and Lee and flankerbacks like Corky Corkern and Kenny Tidwell, and the whole thing run by a master like Laird, puts maximum pressure on a defense. You have only eleven people, they are spread, and you realize you can't defense the whole field. It presents problems.

What the pro-T has meant to Tech is hard to say, they are just getting the personnel and the know how to make it go. But it has been a lifesaver for two years. It's hard to beat a team you can't outscore, no matter how weak they are. And this is one writer who wonders if the Bulldogs would have won a single game in

ONE WEEK to the day from the time he quit as football coach, Bud Wilkinson announced at a news conference that he is also resigning as athletic director of the University of Oklahoma. In the surprise announcement, Wilkinson blamed political motivations by the University's Board of Regents for the refusal to name his long-time assistant, Gomer Jones, as his successor. Wilkinson said Saturday Jones should be named athletic director as well as coach. (AP Wirephoto)

A BITTER NOTE

Emotional Wilkinson Ends 17 Year Location With OU

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Bud Wilkinson severed another tie with the University of Oklahoma Saturday, this time on a note of bitterness.

Charging "political maneuvering" in the Board of Regents' delay in choosing his successor as football coach, Wilkinson resigned as athletic director.

The move came exactly one week after he ended a fabulous 17-season career as Sooner football coach in a big step toward furthering incipient political ambitions.

Wilkinson, who has backed his friend and long-time assistant, Gomer Jones, for the football job, displayed annoyance when he said, "It has become increasingly apparent that political maneuvering on the part of some regents has taken precedence over the early choice of a new coach."

The emotional announcement at a news conference in his office was a departure from the famed 47-year-old former coach's usual calm manner. He arrived for the news conference several minutes late, explaining that he needed time "to compose myself."

Wilkinson turned aside questions about his future. He has said he is frankly considering running for the U. S. Senate but insists he has not yet made a decision.

At one time during his session with newsmen, Wilkinson asked that one of his replies be stricken because he said the information came in executive session of the university's Board of Regents and he didn't feel he should reveal it.

"That's one of the reasons I wanted to compose myself before I came in here so I'd be sure not to say anything wrong" he said.

Although he is a registered Democrat, Wilkinson would be expected to run for the Senate as a Republican—and this is believed to be the source of the reported friction with regents.

Six of the seven regents reportedly are loyal to two probable Democratic candidates for the Senate—a former governor, Raymond Gary, and the incumbent Senator, J. Howard Edmondson.

There have been numerous reports that four regents considered friendly to Edmonson have blocked Jones' appointment.

Wilkinson said he had expected when he resigned as coach that his recommendation of Jones, 49-year-old line coach and associate athletic director, would be approved immediately.

But the reegnts have refused to move.

"At last Wednesday's meeting, I told the Board of Regents I would submit my resignation as athletic director if this would simplify their responsibilities and aid them in making a quick decision," Wilkinson said. "At that time I gave my whole-hearted endorsement to Gomer Jones.

"Since then, it has become increasingly apparent that political maneuvering on the part of some regents has taken precedence over the early choice of a new coach. So that these considerations can no longer play a part in the delay, I am resigning as athletic director. This action will free the regents from any further political involvement related to this selection.

"I repeat again, with all possible emphasis, that Gomer Jones is unequivocally my recommendation to be the head football coach and the athletic director. Any discussion by me with the regents concerning other candidates resulted from the regents telling the athletic council and me that they would give no further consideration to the man most deserving of the job, Gomer Jones."

But Glenn Northcutt, president of the regents, said he was for Jones and indicated the 49-year-old assistant coach probably would get the job.

Northcutt said it had been Jones' age and not politics that had caused the delay.

"As far as I know, that is the only stumbling block in his path and I think that has just about been removed," he said.

Jones came to Oklahoma with Wilkinson in 1947 and has been in charge of coaching the line. The veteran aide has been given a large measure of credit in the development of teams that have compiled a 145-29-4 record and won three national titles.

At Wednesday's meeting, regents appeared close to naming Jones, then decided to ask outside candidates to come to the campus Sunday for interviews.

So far, only three outsiders—Sam Boghosian, line coach at UCLA, Mike Corgan, backfield coach at Nebraska, and Buck McPhail, a former Oklahoma fullback who is now backfield coach at Illinois—have responded to invitations sent to about 20 men.

Dr. George L. Cross, university president, said he was "very surprised and very sorry" to hear that Wilkinson had resigned.

"To me, the situation is confused and tragic," Cross said. "Faculty morale is hurt . . . the faculty is confused and wondering what this will lead to.

"We have been blessed by a long period of smooth operation of our athletic program. I regret greatly it has ceased."

AT ANNUAL MEETING

SEC Will Argue Recruiting Dispute

ATLANTA (AP) — The Southeastern Conference holds its annual meeting in Atlanta beginning next Wednesday, with controversy centering around the 140-scholarship limit and a proposed new one-year grant-in-aid.

Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech is on record as saying he is in favor of pulling out of the SEC unless the 140 limit on football and basketball scholarships is scrapped.

One substitute for the 140 limit would propose that football scholarships permitted each year be reduced from 45 to 40 with 6 new basketball scholarships to be allowed each year. The total limit would be removed entirely, allowing for a maximum number of recruits to stay in school and graduate.

The proposal of six basketball scholarships per season would allow for a maximum of 24. Most conference schools give only 20.

Member institutions have on occasion had to exceed the 140 limit during recruiting season and allow for flunk outs and drop outs to get them below the ceiling. Dodd said he believes schools cannot handle the scholarship total fairly under the circumstances.

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution said it had learned many SEC coaches favor a new one-year scholarship.

"Under the present four-year set-up an athlete can decide that he just doesn't want to play anymore and still keep his four-year grant-in-aid under NCAA regulations," said one spokesman.

Under the new proposal athletics would have to pass all their work and be eligible to play, obey all the rules and regulations of the SEC and obey all rules and regulations of the ahtletic department.

"A coach could not deprive a player of a grant just because he was not good enough, but only if he didn't live up to the rules," said the spokesman, who added he doubted the rule would pass because it would be too difficult to enforce.

Florida plans to recommend that the league be expanded to 13 teams, including Florida State. FSU is interested in becoming a member.

4 Dodgers Get 'Handsome' Pay; Eleven Signed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers announced Saturday they have signed 11 more players to 1964 contracts and given "handsome salary increases" to four of them.

Salaries were not announced, but it was understood these raises were granted:

Catcher John Roseboro, from $23,000 to $32,000; pitcher Bob Miller, from $13,500 to $20,000; outfielder Willie Davis, from $12,000 to $18,000, and outfielder-first baseman Ron Fairly, from $18,000 to $21,000.

Also signed were pitchers Larry Sherry, Pete Richert, Joe Moeller and Charles Bohling, catcher Jeff Torborg and infielders Bart Shirley and John Werhas.

Federal Purse At Bowie Won By Space Skates

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Space Skates won the $10,000 Federal purse at Bowie Saturday, outrunning favored Coppahaunk by a neck and giving jockey Ronnie Ferraro his third straight winner.

Ferraro also finished first with Anthony Scarfo in the sixth race and War Council in the seventh.

The victory in the eighth race was declared official only after the stewards rejected a foul claim against Space Skates. Nick Shuk, who finished fourth aboard Kings Song, lodged complaints against Space Skates and Colonel Bingo, who was third.

AFL Greats Tangle In San Diego Today

SAN DIEGO (AP)—American Football League greats of the Western and Eastern divisions meet today in the third annual All-Star game at Balboa Stadium.

Kickoff is at 1:30 p.m. EST, and the game will be televised nationally. A crowd of 27,000 is expected.

The West All-Stars will be out to extend their perfect 2-0 mark in the series. They blitzed the East 49-27 in the first game and last year put on a second half rally to win 21-14.

Leading the Western squad at quarterback again will be Tobin Rote, the AFL's leading passer and field general. Rote led San Diego to the Western Division crown and had a near-perfect day Jan. 5 as the Chargers routed Boston 51-10 in the championship tilt.

If Rote falters, West Coach Sid Gillman of San Diego will call on Oakland's Cotton Davidson. It was Davidson who threw for five touchdowns to clinch a win for the West in the first All-Star game. He was voted the game's outstanding player.

Besides Rote, Gillman will have his entire Charger backfield available, including flanker Lance Alworth, halfback Paul Dowe and fullback Keith Lincoln.

Lincoln put on a spectacular display in the San Diego-Boston championship game when he gained 329 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Another major threat in the West backfield will be Oakland's Clem Daniels, the league's leading rusher with 1,098 yards.

Kemp, although ranked third in AFL passing, was the top passing gainer with 2,914 yards in 1963.

The East ground game will rely mostly on fullback Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo, fullback Larry Garron of Boston and halfback Dick Mathis of New York. Gilchrist gained 979 yards during regular season play and was the AFL's second-ranked ball carrier.

In the air, the East's main threats will be Houston's Charlie Hennigan, Bake Turner of New York and Gino Capelletti of Boston.

Hayes Equals World Mark In 60 Dash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hayes, the flash from Florida A&M, tied the indoor 60-yard dash record Saturday night at the fifth annual Los Angeles Invitational Indoor track and field meet.

Hayes, who holds the world record of 9.1 in the 100-yard dash, covered the 60 yards in six seconds flat. That tied the record shared by Herb Carper of the Santa Barbara Athletic Club, Roscoe Cook of Oregon and Frank Budd of Villanova.

Carper finished third Saturday night, behind Darel Newman of Fresno State. Both were timed in 6.1.

This was Hayes' first indoor 60.

Jones won the 60-yard event in seven seconds flat, one-tenth of a second off the indoor record he established at Chicago in March of 1962.

Dee Andrews of Long Beach State was second in the final in 7.2. Blaine Lindgren of the Utah Track Club was third. He also was timed in 7.2.

River Basin May Be Lost

With Sam Hanna

Commission Protesting

With the Atchafalaya River basin at stake, the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission and the U.S. Corps of Engineers are at it again.

Army engineers have drafted a recommendation for a drainage program in the Atchafalaya area near Baton Rouge, submitting it to the Chief of Engineers in Washington, D.C.

But according to Director L. D. Young, the engineers' proposed program does not include "sufficient measures to protect fish and wildlife resources within the floodway."

It offers practically everything for the sportsman, especially for fishing and duck hunting. Back waters from the Atchafalaya River spread out over miles and miles of swampland, offering ideal fishing and hunting conditions.

But Louisiana's biologists contend that if the Army engineers convert this prime wildlife area into a drainage chute to move water out of South Louisiana to the Gulf, then the wildlife interests will be destroyed.

This is an issue much like the Jonesville lock and dam matter was in that it affects the outdoor interest of all the state, not just an area.

In a letter January 15th to the Louisiana congressional delegation, Young said, "I am at a loss to understand the action and position taken by both the New Orleans District and the Vicksburg Division Engineers, and, in consequence, I have no alternative but to conclude that their action reveals a lack of all consideration to both the resources need and the Senate Concurrent Resolution of the Louisiana Legislature on this matter."

Young noted that the Senate adopted a resolution stating that the Legislature "expects and insists that the U.S. Corps of Engineers accept and implement the findings of the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission and the U.S. Department of the Interior as how to alleviate damage (to fish and wildlife) in the area."

Young charged that "appropriate coordination of our interest" was not accomplished as he called on the Louisiana delegation to have the report returned to the District Engineer "so that measures necessary to protect this important resource can be included in the final plan submitted for approval of the Chief of Engineers."

If the Louisiana sportsmen can impress upon the congressional delegation the importance of saving the Atchafalaya, then the Army engineers will have to take another look.

Quail, Rabbit Seasons

Louisiana hunters are out of business for the time being unless they quail hunt or rabbit hunt, because all of the seasons are closed except those for this area of the state.

Bird hunters have until February 23rd while the rabbit season closes February 15th.

Rabbit hunting, for sportsmen in this area, is overlooked most of the time, although we have the best rabbit hunting available. There's never been a shortage of rabbits up here.

But for some reason, most of us just don't rabbit hunt. On the other hand, the Cajuns from down south drive to North Louisiana to hunt rabbits. They make as much out of a rabbit hunt as we do out of a deer hunt.

Quail hunting, meantime, is for the trueblue. The bonafide bird hunter is a gentleman of his own breeding.

The season so far has been good for those hunters who have stuck with it. We have a good quail population, but the birds are found in the toughest of places.

At any rate, there's a hunting opportunity available, although most of the hunters have put their guns away for the

Arkansas Deer Kill

According to the Arkansas Game & Fish Commission, Arkansas hunters harvested 2,894 deer, all bucks, during the December 9-14 hunting period. That is a drop of 580 from the same period in 1962 when the takes was 3,474.

The lower kill this year was probably due to a decline in the number of hunters, the commission reported, since most observers agree that bad weather and a later "either sex" season kept many hunters out of the woods that second of three hunting periods.

Ashley County, located above Morehouse Parish, ran third in Arkansas with a kill of 124 bucks. A tabulation on the third period in Arkansas will be out later.

Locally, we sat down Friday afternoon with Jack Bell, president of the Tupawek Bowman Archery Club, and compiled a list of hunters who killed deer this past season in our area with bow and arrow.

Our figure came to 29—just from the names that Jack and this corner were able to jot down during the season. Certainly, there are many more.

Last year the Louisiana commission estimated that between 10 and 15 deer were killed with bow and arrow over the entire state. So it seems that the bow hunter is finding greater success.

Incidentially, the Tupawek Club will meet February 3rd at 7:30 p.m. at the First National Bank building in West Monroe. Jack says Clyde Duchesne of Monroe won the club's award for bagging the biggest deer, a 5-point buck, with bow and arrow.

Jack Bell got two.

Little Man's Corner

There was too much winter for most of the little men and they had trouble making news by the fireside.

Fishing dropped off during the week, since a lot of the places had ice. White perch are biting, however, and Lake Bruin has been good for bass fishing.

Deer reports are still coming in. From Monroe, Fred Beckett, the DeSiard Street sportsman, killed two bucks during the season — both in Madison Parish.

And they were the first deer for Fred.

Jimmy Perry, another local sportsman, killed a 9-point buck in Madison. It was the biggest buck killed at Jack Smith's camp for the season.

In Tensas Parish, Jim St. Julien, a new citizen of Newellton, killed a 3-pointer. Perhaps the natives will show the Saint where the big ones are for next season.

In the Natchez area in Adams County, the Buena Vista Hunting Club ended the season a few days ago with a total kill of 176 deer. Quite a few women belong to the club and account for 10 per cent of the kill.

From Ferriday, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Wall landed the limit of white perch in the Blue Hole. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Broadman of Monroe also got the limit of white perch in Lake St. John.

Rudy Case and John Morgan of Vidalia got the limit of white perch in Old River. White perch have been biting in Cross Bayou and Horseshoe Lake too.

And, the other afternoon, we drove over to St. Joseph for a bird hunt with Harvey Lee Spruill. Late in the afternoon, as we drove on the Mississippi River levee back of Lake Bruin, a big buck slipped out of the willows to the top of the levee.

When we glassed him, we could see that he had just one of his antlers — a big antler with five points. Apparently he had already shed the other half of his rack.

It was quite a sight to see the big buck standing there with just one half of his antlers. In the background was the Mississippi River and Lake Bruin.

Quite a sight!

Caldwell Teams Eligible To Play In Title Games

COLUMBIA (Special) — Caldwell Parish High School, opened last September as a consolidation of Columbia, Grayson and Kelly high schools, is eligible to compete in championship sports playoffs under new ruling by the Louisiana High School Athletic Association.

The Caldwell Spartans compete in District 2-A with Delhi, Farmerville, Ferriday, Lake Providence, LaSalle, Oak Grove, Rayville, Tallulah Winnsboro and St. Matthew's of Monroe.

The rule states "In cases where two or more schools are consolidated, if the schools are members of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association in good standing, then the new school formed, upon meeting the membership requirements will be eligible to play for championship honors during its first year as a new school."

Richard said that his school had met the necessary requirements.

Bulldogs Seek End To Trend

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's basketballers need a victory over Northeast State in Monroe Monday night to go into the second half of the league race with a perfect mark, but the Canines also have other reasons to want to scalp the Indians.

Captain Ron McNabb, Butch Miller, Joe Abendroth and David Hruska are Tech seniors and in their careers they have been able to beat the Tribe only once in seven meetings. In each of the last two years, they have seen victory slip from their grasp in the last seconds in Monroe tilts.

In addition, the Indians cut Tech down with a 77-73 victory on the Bulldogs' own court in the first annual Gulf States Classic this winter.

While defense has been the key to recent Tech victories, Junior Ray Penny has been the individual standout in the last two games by adding scoring punch up front. Penny got 15 points in a win over Northwestern and 17 in the 54-52 win over McNeese at Lake Charles Friday night. Penny hit eight of eight from the field against the Pokes. Tech's forte so far has been the ability of a player to pick up the slack when another falls off. Senior Joe Abendroth has been off on both his scoring and rebounding in the recent games. For a time, it was the guards, McNabb, Miller and Hruska, who provided the scoring punch.

USL and Tech both sport 4-0 records in GSC play. All other teams in the league have lost at least twice. Two of the Bulldog victories have been on the road and win at Monroe Monday night would put the Canines in the driver's seat starting the final half of the loop campaign.

Despite a slump, Abendroth still paces Tech in scoring with a 16.4 average for 11 games. Jerry Hood, who also has been important with his rebounding and improved defensive work, has pumped in 16 points per game and has been the most consistent Techman.

Penny's outburst upped his average to 10.5 points per game. Guards McNabb and Miller are right behind with 9.2, and 9.0 averages respectively. Hruska has averaged 5.0 and Joey Barron 4.7.

The Bulldog Wasn't Dead

1962 without the pro philosophy or whether they could have won more than three last year.

The Best One

Of all the games in '63, the Mississippi Southern game was probably the one. The Southerners' record is no mystery. They tied Florida State which gave Georgia Tech fits. North Carolina State, which stayed on the same field with Mississippi State for 60 minutes, beat Southern only 14-0. Tech won 10-0.

But there was more. It was the first time in many years the Bulldogs have come anywhere close to stopping Southern's offense. The Hattiesburg people gained exactly 48 yards rushing in that one.

And it was also the first time in several years that the Ruston team has beaten anybody on the ground. Tech, which had been averaging 25 passes per game, threw only seven that night.

What it meant more than anything else is that in the future, the Bulldogs will probably move either way, depending on the defense. They may pass against you. They may run. Or they may do both. It's the type thing that makes defensive coaches yearn for spring.

What lies ahead for the Bulldogs this fall is hard to say. They have some problems. Depth may be non-existent at some spots. Inexperience will abound at others. The problems may be beyond solving.

One thing is certain, however. Joe Ailet, who has been molding fine teams at Tech for 24 years, is not quite convinced that he doesn't have it anymore.

Coaches of boys baseball teams have also been invited to attend the clinic and receive helpful tips on coaching baseball.

Clinic instruction will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, at Legion Stadium with the first session lasting until 12:30. One group of instructors will work with boys aged 8 to 13 and another group will work with boys 14 and over.

An afternoon session from 1:30 to 3:30 Sunday, Feb. 2, will end the clinic, which drew hundreds of north Louisiana youngsters last year.

Clinic chairman Bobby Bruce, in announcing the complete clinic staff of instructors, said it was possible a few more instructors might be added to the staff later.

"However, we have enough instructors now and we should have an outstanding clinic," Bruce said. "We belive that any boy who misses this clinic will miss the thrill of a lifetime. It won't cost a cent, just bring a glove."

Wayne Causey, the Kansas City shortstop who led the American League in batting for several weeks last spring.

Ed Head, who pitched a no-hitter for the old Brooklyn Dodgers.

Gene Freese, slugging third baseman of the Pittsburg Pirates. He helped Cincinnati win the National League pennant three years ago, traded to the Pirates this winter.

Jack Reed, a former quarterback at Ole Miss who has patrolled the Yankee outfield for several seasons.

Tony John, Louisiana scout for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Bob Carter, ex-Ouachita High baseball coach and co-chairman of the Optimist clinic last year. He is now Istrouma of Baton Rouge baseball coach and still a Dodger scout, covering Mississippi and Arkansas.

Fred McAlister, St. Louis Cardinal scout.

Dalton Jones, Red Sox bonus baby who is now playing second base for Seattle, considered a sure-fire major league prospect.

Harry Strohm, Washington Senators scout.

Connie Ryan, second baseman on the 1948 National League champion Boston Braves.

For a time, it was the guards, McNabb, Miller and Hruska, who provided the scoring punch.

USL and Tech both sport 4-0 records in GSC play. All other teams in the league have lost at least twice. Two of the Bulldog victories have been on the road and win at Monroe Monday night would put the Canines in the driver's seat starting the final half of the loop campaign.

Despite a slump, Abendroth still paces Tech in scoring with a 16.4 average for 11 games. Jerry Hood, who also has been important with his rebounding and improved defensive work, has pumped in 16 points per game and has been the most consistent Techman.

Penny's outburst upped his average to 10.5 points per game. Guards McNabb and Miller are right behind with 9.2, and 9.0 averages respectively. Hruska has averaged 5.0 and Joey Barron 4.7.

The Bulldog Wasn't Dead

1962 without the pro philosophy or whether they could have won more than three last year.

The Best One

Of all the games in '63, the Mississippi Southern game was probably the one. The Southerners' record is no mystery. They tied Florida State which gave Georgia Tech fits. North Carolina State, which stayed on the same field with Mississippi State for 60 minutes, beat Southern only 14-0. Tech won 10-0.

But there was more. It was the first time in many years the Bulldogs have come anywhere close to stopping Southern's offense. The Hattiesburg people gained exactly 48 yards rushing in that one.

And it was also the first time in several years that the Ruston team has beaten anybody on the ground. Tech, which had been averaging 25 passes per game, threw only seven that night.

What it meant more than anything else is that in the future, the Bulldogs will probably move either way, depending on the defense. They may pass against you. They may run. Or they may do both. It's the type thing that makes defensive coaches yearn for spring.

What lies ahead for the Bulldogs this fall is hard to say. They have some problems. Depth may be non-existent at some spots. Inexperience will abound at others. The problems may be beyond solving.

One thing is certain, however, Joe Ailet, who has been molding fine teams at Tech for 24 years, is not quite convinced that he doesn't have it anymore.

It includes such major league stars as Pittsburg third baseman Gene Freese, outfielder Jack Reed of the New York Yankees, former American League catching star Matt Batts and many others, a total of 28 players, scouts, managers, coaches and former stars.

Previously Kansas City star Wayne Causey, former Boston Red Six pitching hero Mel Parnell, ex-Brooklyn no-hit pitcher Ed Head and former Yankee pitcher Billy Muffett were announced as members of the clinic staff.

The Boys Baseball Clinic will be held Feb. 1-2 at Legion Stadium in Monroe with boys of all ages invited to attend, meet great baseball playes and learn the finer points of the game. Coaches of boys baseball teams have also been invited to attend the clinic and receive helpful tips on coaching baseball.

Clinic instruction will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1, at Legion Stadium with the first session lasting until 12:30. One group of instructors will work with boys aged 8 to 13 and another group will work with boys 14 and over.

An afternoon session from 1:30 to 3:30 Sunday, Feb. 2, will end the clinic, which drew hundreds of north Louisiana youngsters last year.

Clinic chairman Bobby Bruce, in announcing the complete clinic staff of instructors, said it was possible a few more instructors might be added to the staff later.

"However, we have enough instructors now and we should have an outstanding clinic," Bruce said. "We belive that any boy who misses this clinic will miss the thrill of a lifetime. It won't cost a cent, just bring a glove."

Wayne Causey, the Kansas City shortstop who led the American League in batting for several weeks last spring.

Ed Head, who pitched a no-hitter for the old Brooklyn Dodgers.

Gene Freese, slugging third baseman of the Pittsburg Pirates. He helped Cincinnati win the National League pennant three years ago, traded to the Pirates this winter.

Jack Reed, a former quarterback at Ole Miss who has patrolled the Yankee outfield for several seasons.

Tony John, Louisiana scout for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Bob Carter, ex-Ouachita High baseball coach and co-chairman of the Optimist clinic last year. He is now Istrouma of Baton Rouge baseball coach and still a Dodger scout, covering Mississippi and Arkansas.

Captured Colonel Hits Axis

VON RYAN'S EXPRESS. By David Westheimer. Doubleday. $4.95.

There is a rattling good suspense story in the latter part of this novel, building up from an interesting prelude.

Joseph Ryan, shot down in aerial warfare, arrives at a prisoner of war camp in Italy. Because he is a full colonel, he becomes the senior officer of the encampment, responsible for the conduct of the shavetails, captains, majors and a light colonel.

He is a hard taskmaster, a martinet, a demon for discipline. When he finds the officer - prisoners slovenly, he shakes them up. He makes them clean their quarters and themselves. With salutes, too.

Of course some of his fellow prisoners resent his iron tactics, and jeeringly call him "Von Ryan," as though he were a Nazi bully. But by stiff military means he maneuvers the Italians into giving the prisoners the proper amount of Red Cross packages and clothing.

Then when the Allies advance toward the camp Ryan is tricked by the Nazis and all the prisoners — a thousand of them — are loaded into a train for shipment to German captivity.

So begins the real suspense element. It is Ryan's objective to take over control of the train and detour it to safety, a matter of hand-to-hand combat and cunning.

The author has made this Ryan a real character. You have to hate him for being a hardshell, military autocrat; but you also have to admire him for the way he outsmarts both the Italians and the Germans.

It is a tense adventure store, with a fine ring of plausibility. The result is that you have some sharp, interesting reading.

An Optimist Discusses 3 Big Problems

INVENTING THE FUTURE. By Dennis Gabor. Knopf. $4.95.

For a physicist, Gabor seems to have a remarkable first-hand grasp of the problems of civilization and humanity. And he has a knack of making you think about them.

His chief concerns in this book are three of the foremost dilemmas of the late 20th century. The first, naturally, is the danger of nuclear disaster. Then comes the population explosion all over the world, and finally the paradoxical stew over what to do with human beings in the age of automation and so-called leisure.

He is no prophet of doom. He is hopeful about the nuclear problem because its sheer ghastliness and finality as a weapon presumably will make it an impossible and rejected solution to man's problems.

He has some staggering things to say about overpopulation, but here again he is an optimist in believing that overbearing necessarily will make the human race set some limitation on its proliferation.

As for the age of leisure and shorter work weeks, he finds that under Parkinson's Law ("Work automatically expands so as to fill up the available time") we already have substituted paper-shuffling and desk work for much useful endeavor. He thinks that within 40 years we can educate ourselves to withstand the horrors of progress."

Gabor has some interesting things to say about the climate of our thinking. He notes that the 19th Century was a time when many thinkers optimistically were constructing utopias, but that this ended with the publication of Aldous Huxley's anti-utopian novel "Brave New World."

The author strongly contends that "We are still masters of our fate," not just by rational, computer-assisted thinking, but from the imaginative, inventive processes of the mind.

"It was man's ability to invent which has made human society what it is," he says, and stakes his hopes for the future on that ability.

Give Gabor's book a chance to illuminate your mind, and you will feel the reward of catching a forward look into the future.

Moment Of Truth In Poker

THE CINCINNATI KID. By Richard Jessup. Little, Brown. $3.95.

He had been playing cards since he was 13, and at 21 he was a full fledged professional gambler roaming the Mississippi, the Ohio and the Missouri. Stud poker was his game.

Now he was 26, and generally considered among the professionals as the brightest prospect in many a year. And The Kid felt it was time to find out how he would fare against The Man. For The Man was the king of the stud players. He was Lancey Hodges, a gray-eyed old sharpshooter from Savannah, with a stomach ulcer, a mind like a steel trap and a quiet tenacity that was unmatched.

So the Big Game was set up. The Kid went into training. He slipped down to the Ozark hills to see his woman, who had gone home in order to be out of the way. Then he came back to St. Louis to sit opposite The Man. A Big Game goes on for days. The pros came to town, placed their side bets. Lancey was the favorite, seven to two.

After many wearying hours, the moment came. The Kid had a pair of 10s showing, and Lancey the seven and eight of hearts. It proved to be the moment of truth, the last hand.

Migration Is Told In This Poetic Prose

Nature writing often brings out the sensitivity of an author in the sort of poetic prose that you will find in Murphy's narrative.

There are perils en route. She is captured by a falconer and for a time is swept into the hunting pattern of her captor. She escapes from him, narrowly misses being killed by a hunter, and on the Sea Islands is given a friendly release from her dangling leashes, so that she can follow the instinctual pattern toward the warm Florida sun.

Into Varda's story is woven, unobtrusively, a great deal of information and sympathetic understanding of the natural life of birds of prey in their own habitat, the wild, free air. And the book is enhanced by Teco Slagboom's drawings.

The writing has a fine cadence, as perhaps this small passage — from the early part of the book — will illustrate:

"The weather stayed sunless and chill, with gray days and fiery sunsets, and the land turned its face toward winter. The Barrens, which had been so filled with life, so bright with low-growing flowers and the song and the flicker of wings, retreated toward sun-colored silence and snow, a stillness broken only by the disembodied march of the northern lights across the sky and the long howls of the wolves."

It is a fine song of nature, a welcome litany.

IN CALDWELL PARISH

March 3 Election Interest Is High

COLUMBIA (Special) — The March 3 general election, is taking on interest in Caldwell Parish with races developing for governor, senator, representative, sheriff, two police jurors and one constable.

Of top interest in the parish is the governor's race. The parish gave over 95 percent of the second primary election votes to its native son, John McKeithen, who won the Democratic nomination. He will face Charlton Lyons of Shreveport in the general election.

W. L. Rambo, Democratic nominee from the 31st Senatorial District including Caldwell Parish, will meet William S. Walker, Republican nominee from Winnfield, to decide the next state senator.

In the Caldwell Parish representative, sheriff and ward races, States Rights candidates face Democratic nominees for the first time since the days of reconstruction.

W. J. "Edge" Richardson, Democratic nominee for state representative from Caldwell Parish, will be pitted against Blake Harveston, States Righter. Both are residents and businessmen of Grayson.

In the sheriff race, Floyd "Slim" Hodges, who missed the second primary race because the second high man in the sheriff race conceeded, will face Billy Ray Reitzell of Clarks in the general election. Hodges is Columbia city marshal and former deputy sheriff. Reitzell is running on the States Rights ticket.

In police jury races, Democratic nominee Bobby J. Mercer of Ward Four will face Bill Fitzgerald and in Ward Five, W. H. Lay, Democratic nominee, will face Herman Hall. Both opposing candidates are States Righter's.

Albert Jack Brown, democratic nominee for constable of District II, Wards Four, Five and Nine, will meet N. A. McKinney in the general election.

Voters in the parish, whether Democratic, Republican or States Rights, can vote for any of the candidates they choose in the general election.

McKeithen Bids Roy Theriot Well For Re-Election

COLUMBIA, La. (AP) —Gov.-nominee John J. McKeithen said Saturday he wanted "to congraduate comptroller Roy Theriot on his re-election."

In a statement from his home, the Democratic nominee said, "naturally I am sorry that Andrew Falcon, who ran on my ticket and who gave me such loyal supports, was not successful.

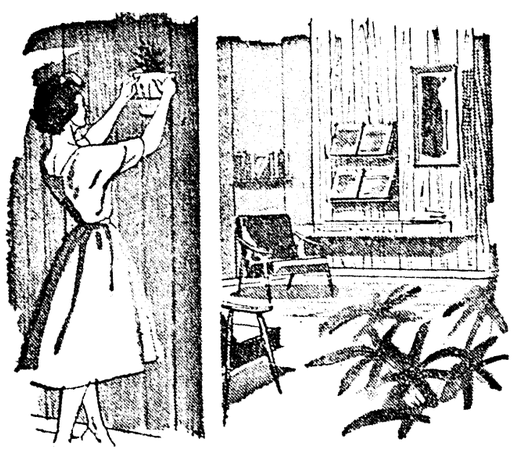

"I am highly appreciative," he said, "of Mr. Falcon's efforts in my behalf, and look forward to his help in the days ahead. Certainly, I predict a bright future for Mr. Falcon in any endeavors he may pursue."

There are perils en route. She is captured by a falconer and for a time is swept into the hunting pattern of her captor. She escapes from him, narrowly misses being killed by a hunter, and on the Sea Islands is given a friendly release from her dangling leashes, so that she can follow the instinctual pattern toward the warm Florida sun.

Into Varda's story is woven, unobtrusively, a great deal of information and sympathetic understanding of the natural life of birds of prey in their own habitat, the wild, free air. And the book is enhanced by Teco Slagboom's drawings.

The writing has a fine cadence, as perhaps this small passage — from the early part of the book — will illustrate:

"The weather stayed sunless and chill, with gray days and fiery sunsets; and the land turned its face toward winter. The Barrens, which had been so filled with life, so bright with low-growing flowers and the song and the flicker of wings, retreated toward sun-colored silence and snow, a stillness broken only by the disembodied march of the northern lights across the sky and the long howls of the wolves."

It is a fine song of nature, a welcome litany.

IN CALDWELL PARISH

March 3 Election Interest Is High

COLUMBIA (Special) — The March 3 general election, is taking on interest in Caldwell Parish with races developing for governor, senator, representative, sheriff, two police jurors and one constable.

Of top interest in the parish is the governor's race. The parish gave over 95 percent of the second primary election votes to its native son, John McKeithen, who won the Democratic nomination. He will face Charlton Lyons of Shreveport in the general election.

W. L. Rambo, Democratic nominee from the 31st Senatorial District including Caldwell Parish, will meet William S. Walker, Republican nominee from Winnfield, to decide the next state senator.

In the Caldwell Parish representative, sheriff and ward races, States Rights candidates face Democratic nominees for the first time since the days of reconstruction.

W. J. "Edge" Richardson, Democratic nominee for state representative from Caldwell Parish, will be pitted against Blake Harveston, States Righter. Both are residents and businessmen of Grayson.

In the sheriff race, Floyd "Slim" Hodges, who missed the second primary race because the second high man in the sheriff race conceded, will face Billy Ray Reitzell of Clarks in the general election. Hodges is Columbia city marshal and former deputy sheriff. Reitzell is running on the States Rights ticket.

In police jury races, Democratic nominee Bobby J. Mercer of Ward Four will face Bill Fitzgerald and in Ward Five, W. H. Lay, Democratic nominee, will face Herman Hall. Both opposing candidates are States Righter's.

Albert Jack Brown, democratic nominee for constable of District II, Wards Four, Five and Nine, will meet N. A. McKinney in the general election.

Voters in the parish, whether Democratic, Republican or States Rights, can vote for any of the candidates they choose in the general election.

McKeithen Bids Roy Theriot Well For Re-Election

In a statement from his home, the Democratic nominee said, "naturally I am sorry that Andrew Falcon, who ran on my ticket and who gave me such loyal supports, was not successful.

"I am highly appreciative," he said, "of Mr. Falcon's efforts in my behalf, and look forward to his help in the days ahead. Certainly, I predict a bright future for Mr. Falcon in any endeavors he may pursue."

Southern Architecture Traced For Garden Club

Monroe Garden Club members turned out en masse to hear Theodore E. Landry of Port Allen, La., lecture on "Southern Plantation Homes and Gardens" Monday, January 13 at Bayou DeSiard Country Club for the first meeting of the year. Mrs. Landry, landscape architect as well as her husband, showed slides while Mr. Landry narrated.

He traced in graphic and entertaining style the history of Louisiana architecture, beginning with old New Orleans. He showed pictures of Ursuline convent, a typical Renaissance building, the Cabildo; St. Louis Cathedral and old homes of the eighteenth century indicating the influence of French and Spanish occupation in their architecture. Also included were pictures of the Royal Orleans hotel, a new building conforming to the architecture of the Vieux Carre' and a modern swimming pool in an old French garden.

Mr. Landry then proceeded to explain and illustrate other influences in Louisiana architecture: the urban influence; 18th Century French colonial homes with living quarters above and cellar below; plantation homes with hip roofs and dormer windows; the Acadian influence with flower gardens in front of the homes, picket fences and formal gardens; the Spanish influence and ending with the Greek and Roman revival of the use of columns in building homes.

Conclusion of his commentary depicted the Acadian country and River roads, coming up through Louisiana to Natchez, Miss., and forming an impressive picture of Southern heritage.

NIGHTTIME STRIPES

The pin-striped suit doesn't sound very nighty-night, but in soft cotton dacron and frilled with eyelet it's a knee-length nightie all right. It's termed a suit because it has its own ruffled over blouse.

All The Shades Of Spring Win New Popularity

The spectrum sparkles from light to bright, with both pale pastels and bold, striking shades sharing attention. Since this is a season when nature springs into new life, the colors, appropriately, are plucked from land, sea and sky.

Bursting into bloom are such fashion colors as lilac, pink, poppy, marigold, iris, carnation, crocus, azalea. There's a veritable salad of greens, while blues show shades of sea and sky in everything from cloud-touched lights to deep-sea brights — including aquamarine and other green influenced hues.

From the sea, too, comes coral to influence many fashionable colorings.

In the midst of color, neutrals are both eye-resting and arresting. To lead the way are whites and not-quite-whites — rice and flax, for instance. Beiges grown from the inspiration of bamboo and sandalwood, then darken into pecan and cocoa.

With fashion going to sea for spring colors, navy is a must. Black casts a long, cool shadow, looking impressive alone or as an accent to white.

Father Martinez performed the ceremony at 9 a.m. on January 4. Altar boys were Charles Michael Elias, brother of the groom and Donnie Elias, his cousin. Nuptial music was provided by the organist, Mrs. Della Williamson.

Escorted to the altar by Bill Mathieu, the bride wore a white brocade two-piece ensemble with tunic coat, white satin shoes and white pillbox. Her corsage was of white orchids and she carried a white missal with a rosary.

Miss Karen Donaldson attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a two-piece wool suit of powder blue with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Abdalla Elias, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The dinner table, covered with an ecru lace cloth, was centered with a bowl of pink roses arranged around the statue of the Blessed Mother.

Following a wedding trip the couple is at home at 505 Erin. Mr. Elias attended Louisiana Business College and Northeast Louisiana State College where he will enroll again for the second semester. The bride is a graduate of Louisiana Business college.

NIGHTTIME STRIPES

The pin-striped suit doesn't sound very nighty-night, but in soft cotton dacron and frilled with eyelet it's a knee-length nightie all right. It's termed a suit because it has its own ruffled over blouse.

All The Shades Of Spring Win New Popularity

The spectrum sparkles from light to bright, with both pale pastels and bold, striking shades sharing attention. Since this is a season when nature springs into new life, the colors, appropriately, are plucked from land, sea and sky.

Bursting into bloom are such fashion colors as lilac, pink, poppy, marigold, iris, carnation, crocus, azalea. There's a veritable salad of greens, while blues show shades of sea and sky in everything from cloud-touched lights to deep-sea brights — including aquamarine and other green influenced hues.

From the sea, too, comes coral to influence many fashionable colorings.

In the midst of color, neutrals are both eye-resting and arresting. To lead the way are whites and not-quite-whites — rice and flax, for instance. Beiges grown from the inspiration of bamboo and sandalwood, then darken into pecan and cocoa.

With fashion going to sea for spring colors, navy is a must. Black casts a long, cool shadow, looking impressive alone or as an accent to white.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH D. CERNIGLIARO

Janice Fontana Is Bride Of Joseph D. Cernigliaro

White gladioli and stock decorated the altar of Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church, Monroe for the wedding of Miss Janice Fontana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fontana and Joseph D. Cernigliaro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete D. Cernigliaro, all of this city.

The double ring ceremony was solemnized January 11 at 10 a.m. Nuptial Mass performed by Father George Martinez. Serving as altar boys were Pete A. Cernigliaro and Joe Cernigliaro, brother and cousin of the groom, respectively.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Della Williamson, organist and Mrs. Jo Marie Etier, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie fashioned with fitted bodice appliqued with antique lace and seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered to petal points over her hands. Her veil of imported silk illusion fell from a headdress of pearls and rhinestones complemented with silk flower petals. She carried a bouquet of feathered carnations and white double violets encircling a yellow-throated white orchid.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Lucille Cernigliaro, sister of the groom. She wore an iridescent green dress with matching open crown pillbox hat and mitts and carried a bouquet comprised of a large white mum, encircled with white pompons and leaves of matching dress fabric.

Bridesmaids were Miss Linda Tasson of Fort Campbell, Kentucky; Mrs. Veta Jean Maxwell of Monroe and Miss Kathy Jolissaint of West Monroe. They wore short emerald green gowns, styled identical to that of the maid of honor, with floating back panels, matching shoes, gloves and headpieces. Each carried a bouquet of white pompons with leaves to match their gowns. The flower girl, Cheryl Sampognaro, was dressed identically to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of white pompons.

Victor P. Zagone Jr. served the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Michael J. Cernigliaro, his brother; Travis A. Maxwell, both of Monroe; and Murphy E. Westbrook of Houma, uncle of the bride. Serving as ushers were A3-C Steve Manganello, New York City, N.Y., Salvadore J. Fontana, George Cernigliaro, both of Monroe and A2-C. J. V. Leach of Alexandria. Ringbearer was Dennis Westbrook of Houma, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Fontana, mother of the bride, wore a mint green dress and matching duster of embossed cotton sateen with matching accessories and hat of winter white. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cernigliaro, wore a blue lace sheath with matching accessories and white sequin hat. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The bride's table, covered with a crocheted cloth over green, was centered with an arrangement of white pompons and magnolia leaves. The tiered wedding cake, separated by columns and white swans, was crested with wedding bells and love birds carrying wedding rings. Opposite the cake was a crystal bowl of green punch.

Assisting at the reception courtesies were Mrs. Ethel Greer, Mrs. Annette Bivens, Miss Nancy Dispenza, Miss Mary Jo Zagone, Miss Jo Marie Fontana. Miss Vita Rose Costanza presided over the bride's book, at a table which held a lighted memory candle, encircled by foliage.

For the wedding trip to Natchez and New Orleans the bride changed into a cranberry knit suit with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will reside at 46 B Meyer Street in Alexandria.

Mrs. Cernigliaro graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and Louisiana Business College. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Westbrook of Ferriday and Mrs. Frances Fontana of Monroe. The bridegroom, grandson of Mrs. Joe Cernigliaro and Mrs. Mike Dispenza, both of Monroe, was also graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and is now serving in the United States Air Force.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Westbrook, Ferriday; Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Westbrook, Dennis and Tana, Houma; Mrs. James Lee Jones, Carol and Beverly, Ferriday; Mrs. David Doles, Bonita; Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Fontana, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fontana and Tommie of Port Allen, and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marino, Baton Rouge.

MRS. LERA B. HENNESSY, West Monroe, announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Lera, above, to Bill M. Harris, Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Harris of Corpus Christi, Texas. The wedding will be solemnized February 8 at 10 a. m. in the First Methodist Church, Monroe.

Bride Moves Ring For Vows

But it isn't bad luck for the bride to move her diamond engagement ring from her left to her right hand a day before the ceremony. It's just a practicality, leaving her left hand free for the wedding band.

Wearing both rings on the fourth finger of the left hand stems from an early Greek belief that the vena amoris, or the vein of love, ran directly from that particular finger to the heart. The Greeks called a white diamond a constant flame of love.

MAD ABOUT TRUNKS

Girls who just naturally love anything made for men and boys are wild about male surfing trunks, especially when they have flat figures.

The girl versions are hip-hung in stretch denim or madras check string tied and with watch pockets. The really big difference is that the girl types have bras.

Young, Bright Look Seen In Spring Coats

Bright - toned spring coats with multiple pockets and buttons inspire the thought that designers have discovered "a fashion elixir of youth."

Nothing is fashioned for shock effect — but the soft silhouettes are highly flattering, and the great variety assures individuality. There are slim coats as well as those that feature more width, in soft, wider shoulders, with raglan and set-in types sharing honors in skirt movements that include subtle flares or pleats.

Referring to the fashion picture of gentle femininity, the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry notes that "easy softness is young, flattering and appropriate for the American way of life."

NECKLINES RELAXED

This relaxed look is in necklines, too. They are sometimes lowered, following the lead of plunged necklines on dresses—they have shirtwaist ease — or they adapt Chanelisms such as the cardigan or small collar frequently edged with braid.

Waistlines wander from high-rising Empire to low-torso effects and are beltless, belted, sashed or tied.

Colors make a great splash, indeed. A great snow of white is everywhere. A tinge of yellow gives everything a golden glow. There are yellows into kelly through dark jade green. Amber goes through orange into red; pinks are the great contender for spring '64 leadership. Tones of iris and lilac, blues beginning with baby blue through sapphire and into navy show up importantly. When greys or beige appear, they are pale and almost no-color in tone.

MOOD IS MILITARY

In a season of femininity, we have rediscovered "the military look," even to epaulets and "dispatch" pockets. It is dashing in fabrics with flattened surfaces such as men's wear worsteds, coverts, cavalry twill and gabardines.

Under a military classification, the many varied capes might be included. Newest looking is the full-length cape with slits for arms in lieu of sleeves. Cape effects are also fashionable and promise to flutter graceully in the Easter parade.

THE 'GOING COAT'

Other fabrics include classics and novelties in wools and blends — meltons and pin stripes; mohairs, especially in new multi-tones; glen plaids and bright, striking plaids; all kinds of tweeds, monochromatic, combining tones of one color or mixtures of many different yarns and colors; diagonals as well as ribs; and the linen look in worsted, wool or synthetic blends.

A word about the new "going" coat. This little overcoat, generally about finger-tip length, matches or contrasts with dresses or skirts and fills a need for active women. In town, whites look elegant over navy dresses. For travel or driving, in tones that will not easily soil, they go, go, go.

Gay Closet Accessories Organize Space

No woman who loves clothes likes to see a disorderly jumble when she opens her closet door, and fashion accessories can do much to organize even inadequate closet space.

The newest trend is to see-through garment bags, and shelves that hang, hold shoes or handbags, sometimes a combination of both. These, with the see-through hat box, can be had in many prints and solid colors for tops and bottoms.

Garment bags come in so many sizes that it's possible to have one for suits, one for day dresses, and one for the long evening dresses that are worn less often than other clothes. Gay prints or quilted solid shades allow the sized sets to be coordinated with bedroom decoration schemes.

Shelf boxes help organize small items like jewelry, evening bags and gloves. These are oblong, have drop-down front openings, clear plastic fronts for visibility of contents. They come in the white and gold colors which are new favorites for closet accessories. Umbrella caddies also come in these colors, with four pockets and a hangar to go over the closet pole.

In clothes hangers, look for styrene foam molded hangers in every color, and as wide as padded coat shoulders need, the in-between older children's sizes, and the hanger which is hollow for filling with moth crystals.

ROTATE PLANTS

To keep your plants growing straight and to encourage them to branch out evenly all around, give the clay pot a quarter turn in the same direction every day. Since plants lean toward the greatest source of light, they'll look like the leaning tower of Pisa unless turned.

REMOVE RING

Style Briefs

The biggest overalls you've ever seen, starting thin under the bosom and widening to the ankles like clown's trousers into huge center pleated culottes, is designer Lori Till's idea of a wonderful at-home look.

The Tom-boyish denim floor length skirt has suspenders. The wide-open necked shirt worn underneath is a bandana print.

Still another fresh flare is a slightly shaped skirt buttoning from the shoulder down the side to the floor. At the hemline the dress bursts into black and white checked gingham ruffles, each tier a small, smaller, smallest set of checks.

DOUBLE DECKER

MAD ABOUT TRUNKS

Girls who just naturally love anything made for men and boys are wild about male surfing trunks, especially when they have flat figures.

The girl versions are hip-hung in stretch denim or madras check string tied and with watch pockets. The really big difference is that the girl types have bras.

CORDUROY STADIUM COAT

Velvety corduroy designs this seven-eighth length coat with three huge dyed-to-match buttons and two jumbo pockets. Smart yoke with welt seam detail and ragland sleeves. The perfect coat to top all your casual spring outfits with style. Select from gold, bone or willow green, sizes 8 to 16.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Janis Marie Gore to James Alton Dennis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dennis of Sicily Island, is made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gore of Kenner. The wedding will take place March 7 at the First Baptist Church of Kenner.

Young, Bright Look Seen In Spring Coats

Bright - toned spring coats with multiple pockets and buttons inspire the thought that designers have discovered "a fashion elixir of youth."

Nothing is fashioned for shock effect — but the soft silhouettes are highly flattering, and the great variety assures individuality. There are slim coats as well as those that feature more width, in soft, wider shoulders, with raglan and set-in types sharing honors in skirt movements that include subtle flares or pleats.

Referring to the fashion picture of gentle femininity, the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry notes that "easy softness is young, flattering and appropriate for the American way of life."

NECKLINES RELAXED

This relaxed look is in necklines, too. They are sometimes lowered, following the lead of plunged necklines on dresses—they have shirtwaist ease — or they adapt Chanelisms such as the cardigan or small collar frequently edged with braid.

Waistlines wander from high-rising Empire to low-torso effects and are beltless, belted, sashed or tied.

Colors make a great splash, indeed. A great snow of white is everywhere. A tinge of yellow gives everything a golden glow. There are yellows into kelly through dark jade green. Amber goes through orange into red; pinks are the great contender for spring '64 leadership. Tones of iris and lilac, blues beginning with baby blue through sapphire and into navy show up importantly. When greys or beige appear, they are pale and almost no-color in tone.

MOOD IS MILITARY

In a season of femininity, we have rediscovered "the military look," even to epaulets and "dispatch" pockets. It is dashing in fabrics with flattened surfaces such as men's wear worsteds, coverts, cavalry twill and gabardines.

Under a military classification, the many varied capes might be included. Newest looking is the full-length cape with slits for arms in lieu of sleeves. Cape effects are also fashionable and promise to flutter graceully in the Easter parade.

THE 'GOING COAT'

Other fabrics include classics and novelties in wools and blends — meltons and pin stripes; mohairs, especially in new multi-tones; glen plaids and bright, striking plaids; all kinds of tweeds, monochromatic, combining tones of one color or mixtures of many different yarns and colors; diagonals as well as ribs; and the linen look in worsted, wool or synthetic blends.

A word about the new "going" coat. This little overcoat, generally about finger-tip length, matches or contrasts with dresses or skirts and fills a need for active women. In town, whites look elegant over navy dresses. For travel or driving, in tones that will not easily soil, they go, go, go.

Gay Closet Accessories Organize Space

No woman who loves clothes likes to see a disorderly jumble when she opens her closet door, and fashion accessories can do much to organize even inadequate closet space.

The newest trend is to see-through garment bags, and shelves that hang, hold shoes or handbags, sometimes a combination of both. These, with the see-through hat box, can be had in many prints and solid colors for tops and bottoms.

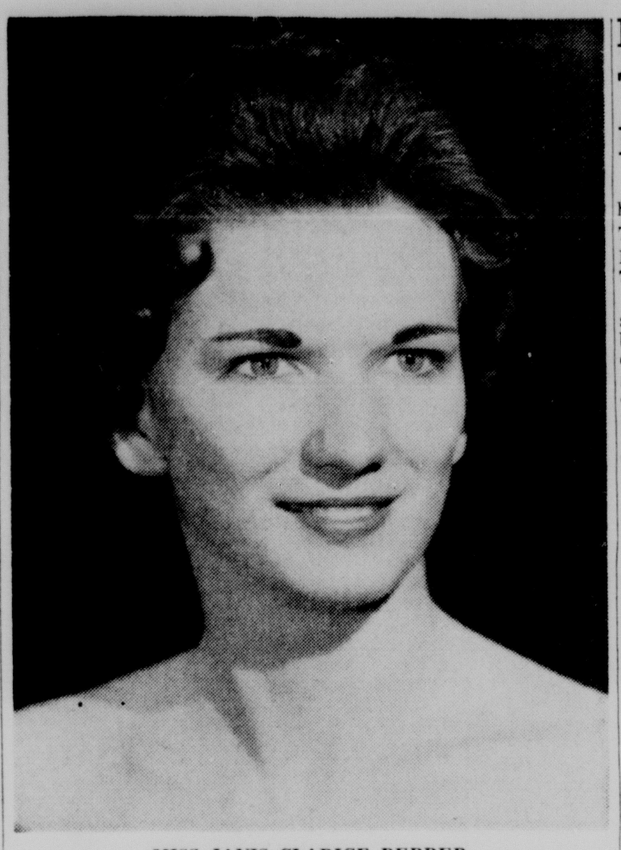

Garment bags come in so many sizes that it's possible to have one for suits, one for day dresses, and one for the long evening dresses that are worn less often than other clothes. Gay prints or quilted solid shades allow the sized sets to be coordinated with bedroom decoration schemes.

Shelf boxes help organize small items like jewelry, evening bags and gloves. These are oblong, have drop-down front openings, clear plastic fronts for visibility of contents. They come in the white and gold colors which are new favorites for closet accessories. Umbrella caddies also come in these colors, with four pockets and a hangar to go over the closet pole.

In clothes hangers, look for styrene foam molded hangers in every color, and as wide as padded coat shoulders need, the in-between older children's sizes, and the hanger which is hollow for filling with moth crystals.

ROTATE PLANTS

To keep your plants growing straight and to encourage them to branch out evenly all around, give the clay pot a quarter turn in the same direction every day. Since plants lean toward the greatest source of light, they'll look like the leaning tower of Pisa unless turned.

MRS. GARY G. LAWSON

YOUR PROBLEMS

Profanity Is Crutch For Speaking Cripple

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our son graduated from high school last Spring at 16. He was an honor student, somewhat shy, and slow to make friends. We were hopeful that college would bring him out a little.

A few days ago Richard came home for the first time since he left for Oberlin in September. My husband and I were dumbfounded. Now every other sentence has a hell or a damn in it. Richard never used language like that and we were pretty upset.

My husband and I decided to ignore his cussing although it was not easy. No one talks that way around our home. The question is: If Richard is still cussing when he comes for Easter what should we do? — R.W.T.

Dear R. W. T.: Poor Richard is trying awfully hard to show you he has grown up. He thinks sprinkling his conversation generously with cuss words will do it.

If he's still helling and damning by Easter have a frank talk with him. Tell him profanity is a crutch for conversational cripples.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of four lively boys. The eldest is eight, the youngest is two. Anyone who has boys knows it is normal for at least one out of four to be bandaged at all times.

My husband's sister makes her home with us. Nellie is a little old-maidish and she has a tendency to stir up trouble now and then.

Whenever one of the boys bangs or bumps himself Nellie brings up the injury at the supper table then says to my husband, "Where was their mother when it happened?"

My husband then begins to question me, as if I had not done my duty. This is very irritating. I'd like your advice on what to say the next time it happens — which will probably be tomorrow. — NOT UBIQUITOUS

Dear Not: You need not defend yourself whenever one of the boys scabs his knee, so please don't try.

The next time Nellie asks your husband where you were when "it happened" tell her you were playing poker in the back of the poolhall—as usual. That should clear her sinuses.

Dear Ann: If I'm square, stuffy or old-fashioned please tell me.

I came here from a small town eight months ago. I was lucky and got a job as a stenographer. Three of the girls I work with have an apartment. When I was invited there for dinner last week I was surprised to find they have dishes, silverware, table linens, hand towels, bath towels, bath mats, ash trays, and even a waste basket from some well-known hotels.

All these articles are clearly labeled so I asked the girls how they managed to get the items out. "One piece at a time" was the answer.

When I said I didn't think this was honest they really let me have it. I was told that hotel prices are pegged to absorb that sort of shrinkage because "everyone does it." What about this? — DUMMY

Dear Dummy: That sort of "shrinkage" is called stealing. And everybody doesn't do it.

These girls may think they are sophisticated or cute, but when guests see hotel property in their apartment it simply advertises the fact that they are thieves.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

After a short wedding trip the couple has established a home in Vidalia.

During the social hour a sandwich course was served by the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. A. R. Robinson, to Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cobb, Mrs. and Mrs. C. R. Clay, C. M. Eaker, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Let Color Of Carpet Echo Decor Of Room

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. I need a color suggestion for two new chairs for the living room in our new apartment. Walls are a light mint green, carpet is beige, draperies and one chair are in a white background print with red, greens, beige and aquamarine predominating in the design. A Colonial sofa is in a toast colored tweed. What colors would be best for the two chairs. Would gold be suitable? Lamps are white milk glass, ironstone and brass.

A: Since there is no gold color in the print, I suggest covering the two chairs in a green picked from the pattern.

Q: My early American sofa is covered in a toast background print with red, green, gold and brown. One chair and draperies are in gold, carpet is sandalwood. What color for walls and two chairs?

A: Sometime this spring, I plan to paint our living room walls. Will you please suggest a color other than brown or beige. Furniture is covered in a medium green. Curtains are in blues, green and gold on a white background. Also, please suggest a color for the carpet. One wall is wood paneled.

A: Paint walls and woodwork white and have the carpet in a medium, clear green.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Profanity Is Crutch For Speaking Cripple

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our son graduated from high school last Spring at 16. He was an honor student, somewhat shy, and slow to make friends. We were hopeful that college would bring him out a little.

A few days ago Richard came home for the first time since he left for Oberlin in September. My husband and I were dumbfounded. Now every other sentence has a hell or a damn in it. Richard never used language like that and we were pretty upset.

My husband and I decided to ignore his cussing although it was not easy. No one talks that way around our home. The question is: If Richard is still cussing when he comes for Easter what should we do? — R.W.T.

Dear R. W. T.: Poor Richard is trying awfully hard to show you he has grown up. He thinks sprinkling his conversation generously with cuss words will do it.

If he's still helling and damning by Easter have a frank talk with him. Tell him profanity is a crutch for conversational cripples.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of four lively boys. The eldest is eight, the youngest is two. Anyone who has boys knows it is normal for at least one out of four to be bandaged at all times.

My husband's sister makes her home with us. Nellie is a little old-maidish and she has a tendency to stir up trouble now and then.

Whenever one of the boys bangs or bumps himself Nellie brings up the injury at the supper table then says to my husband, "Where was their mother when it happened?"

My husband then begins to question me, as if I had not done my duty. This is very irritating. I'd like your advice on what to say the next time it happens — which will probably be tomorrow. — NOT UBIQUITOUS

Dear Not: You need not defend yourself whenever one of the boys scabs his knee, so please don't try.

The next time Nellie asks your husband where you were when "it happened" tell her you were playing poker in the back of the poolhall—as usual. That should clear her sinuses.

Dear Ann: If I'm square, stuffy or old-fashioned please tell me.

I came here from a small town eight months ago. I was lucky and got a job as a stenographer. Three of the girls I work with have an apartment. When I was invited there for dinner last week I was surprised to find they have dishes, silverware, table linens, hand towels, bath towels, bath mats, ash trays, and even a waste basket from some well-known hotels.

All these articles are clearly labeled so I asked the girls how they managed to get the items out. "One piece at a time" was the answer.

When I said I didn't think this was honest they really let me have it. I was told that hotel prices are pegged to absorb that sort of shrinkage because "everyone does it." What about this? — DUMMY

Dear Dummy: That sort of "shrinkage" is called stealing. And everybody doesn't do it.

These girls may think they are sophisticated or cute, but when guests see hotel property in their apartment it simply advertises the fact that they are thieves.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Let Color Of Carpet Echo Decor Of Room

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. I need a color suggestion for two new chairs for the living room in our new apartment. Walls are a light mint green, carpet is beige, draperies and one chair are in a white background print with red, greens, beige and aquamarine predominating in the design. A Colonial sofa is in a toast colored tweed. What colors would be best for the two chairs. Would gold be suitable? Lamps are white milk glass, ironstone and brass.

A: Since there is no gold color in the print, I suggest covering the two chairs in a green picked from the pattern.

Q: My early American sofa is covered in a toast background print with red, green, gold and brown. One chair and draperies are in gold, carpet is sandalwood. What color for walls and two chairs?

A: Sometime this spring, I plan to paint our living room walls. Will you please suggest a color other than brown or beige. Furniture is covered in a medium green. Curtains are in blues, green and gold on a white background. Also, please suggest a color for the carpet. One wall is wood paneled.

A: Paint walls and woodwork white and have the carpet in a medium, clear green.

One of the loveliest parties of the season for the younger teen set was a dance honoring TRUE GUERRIERO on her fourteenth birthday last Friday night. True's parents, the GEORGE GUERRIEROS, were hosts for the party in the main ballroom of Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

True chose for the party a dancing dress of sky blue silk organza over taffeta, the bodice overlaid with white lace. Her slippers were dyed-to-match blue satin. Her birthday gift was a drop necklace in the shape of a tiny gold buttercup centered with a single diamond. Wilma, the honoree's mother, was wearing an after-five dress of royal blue peau de soie with bodice of black Chantilly lace reembroidered with black sequins and spangles.

Refreshments were served from a table on the porch adjoining the ballroom. A Grecian urn holding a spring arrangement of white stock, pink and yellow carnations, blue Dutch iris, yellow Fuji mums, and acacia formed the centerpiece. A silver punch bowl was placed at each end of the table, with trays of petit fours.

Special guest in town for the party was True's cousin, SHEILA HARKEY, daughter of PEGGY and GILBERT HARKEY of Shreveport. Sheila was wearing a full-skirted turquoise chiffon with gold slippers . . . Others noted among the young dancers were SUANNE MAYO in blue chiffon with glittered bodice . . . SALLY HOWELL in dusty pink brocade styled with tunic over a straight skirt . . . and EVELYN JONES in blue, blue crepe cut on Empire lines . . . SHARYN MARCOVITZ was in flame chiffon . . . and SADIE HADDAD in a shift of gold brocade . . . JENNIFER JACKSON chose gold pumps with her Kelly green peau de soie . . . and red velvet was the choice of CARLA FISHMAN and MARY KOKINOS.

Assisting the Guerrieros as chaperones were the WELZIE GARRETTS and HERBERT MAYOS. The Abstracts provided music from eight until eleven.

A REAL MILESTONE was celebrated Wednesday night when BESSIE and FRED FUDICKAR marked their fiftieth wedding anniversary. A reception was held in their honor in the Paragon ballroom hosted by their children, the FRED FUDICKARS JR.; JOHN BENNETT FUDICKARS of Ferriday; and BEN PACES of Westfield, New Jersey. As they greeted friends, the honorees stood in an alcove formed by white columns topped with pyramids of yellow roses. Bessie was wearing heaven blue chiffon with dyed-to-match lace bodice, and a gold-enthroated white orchid.

Two refreshment tables were set up on the ballroom floor. One, centered with the white and gold anniversary cake, held branched candelabra with burning gold tapers. The silver punch bowl on the second table was flanked with pyramids of yellow roses in silver urns. Several hundred friends called to congratulate the Fudickars.

Home on leave from the foreign service are the H. FILHIOL BEARDS JR., who are visiting relatives here. Pat and Buddy have completed three years in Calcutta, where he served as vice-consul. Last Saturday night, VANCE and BEN BREARD entertained at home honoring the visitors. Members of the young married set, former friends of Buddy's, were invited to call between seven and nine. Pat wore for the party a cocktail suit made to her measure on their recent trip to Hong Kong. 'Twas of wool and silk in muted shades of dark blues.

Magnificent hot house camellias were used in Vance's decorations in the living room and throughout the reception area. Candelabra-epergnes were used on table and buffet in the dining room, with tall candles and camellias in various colors. Pat and Buddy are in New Orleans this weekend; will return this week to be here until the end of the month, when they depart for a new post in Colombo, Ceylon.

Election night offers an excellent time for at-home parties, with ready-made entertainment possibilities in listening returns. Several such parties were planned about town Saturday night. JUANITA and CLAY WILSON, AURELINE and CHARLES SLADE were hosts at the Wilson home. Guests found a voting booth set up in the living room, providing opportunities for each to express his preference. Pictures of candidates, each with a caption lettered on the poster, covered the walls. Music for the party was provided by a do-it-yourself band consisting of violin, guitar, piano, and drum, brought and played by guests.

On the table, Juanita and Aureline used white gladioli and chrysanthemums in a silver bowl. The buffet menu included lobster mousse, sliced turkey, chili con queso, a tray of raw vegetables, cake and coffee. Thirty-five guests attended this party, including MARGIE LEE, here visiting from Atlanta.

Another election party was held in the home of RUTH and ROY LIUZZA on Beechwood drive. Ruth covered her table with a pink cloth overlaid with white lace. Large pink candles encircled with pink blossoms at the base formed the centerpiece. A standing buffet consisting of chicken salad sandwiches, barbecued cocktail sausages, and assorted dips was served throughout the evening. Eight couples were invited to await the returns.

Three tables of players started out with bridge games and ended listening to the election when BETTY and JIM SCHONLAU entertained Saturday night. When the games broke up, Betty served Saratoga torte, a divine concoction of whipped cream, English walnuts, and bitter chocolate.

JUDY and GENE WORTHEN invited six couples for dinner and return-listening last Saturday night. The living room of the Worthen home on Pargoud Boulevard was election center, with radio, television, telephones, and tally sheets going at a great rate. In the family room, guests served themselves at will from the buffet table. The menu included barbecued ham, green salad, baked beans, and mocha cream torte. Individual tables, each centered with candles, were laid with hand-painted china "placemats."

Over at the AYLMER MONTGOMERYS, JR., another party was in progress, this honoring out of town visitors, MARY LEE and RALPH KING JR. were cohosts for this, while honorees were JUNE and SCOTT MIZE of San Antonio, Texas, guests of JO and BILL MATTISON. Twenty guests attended.

Earlier Saturday, BROOKSIE HAMACKER was hostess at luncheon, honoring June, at her home on Park Avenue. Six guests were seated at a table centered with a horizontal arrangement of palest pink chrysanthemums in a long silver bowl. Chicken and broccoli casserole was served, with avocado and grapefruit salad, and for dessert, grasshopper pie.

Rumors of things-to-come foreshadow one of the busiest winters in several seasons hereabouts. This coming Saturday night, January 25, Bayou DeSiard Country Club has scheduled another of its popular oyster roast parties. These events feature raw and roasted oysters, boiled shrimp, potato salad, baked beans, and draught beer on an all-you-can-eat basis. Music will be provided for dancing by Phraes Corder and his combo.

And speaking of Bayou DeSiard, plans are in the works for Mardi Gras, traditionally the biggest single event of the club's social calendar. This year the theme "Under the Big Top" foretells a return to gay costuming of the past. Club members are already working on costume ideas for the big night, February 8.

This coming Tuesday night, January 21, "Ballet Folklorico de Mexico" is scheduled in Howard Auditorium, Ruston, for members of Louisiana Tech Concert Association. This group of nearly one hundred performers is internationally acclaimed as one of the finest troupes of its kind in the world.

One of the most charming affairs on the coming events calendar will surely be the children's style show to be sponsored by PI BETA PHI alumnae in early March. MARTHA UPSHAW is to be chairman of the affair; with models to be children of Pi Phi alums, and clothes to be furnished by DeeDee's. Moneys raised go to the mountain school maintained by the sorority at Gatlingburg, Tenn. More details later on this.

Today is the birthday of the South's gentleman non pareil, Robert E. Lee, the Virginian's Virginian. Here are lines about him from Rosemary and Stephen Vincent Benet's "Book of Americans":

This is Lee of the battles, Virginia's bright star.
The sword of the South through the long Civil War.
The pride of the armies who strove for the grey,
He was never defeated till Gettysburg's day.
But Meade was the horseshoe he didn't quite bend—
And then came Ulysses S. Grant —and the end.
The end of the war and the fall of the South.
And wild, bitter counsels from many a mouth.
They looked to Marse Robert to see what he'd say.
He looked at his sword and he put it away.
He said, "We have fought. We have lost. Let it stand.
Forget the old rancors and work for your land.
Put your heart to the task and your hand to the plow.
The war days are over. We're one country, now."
And he spent the last years of his life as the head
Of Washington College and taught for his bread.
While all through the South the quick whispering ran,
"If Marse Robert does it, I reck on we can."

MISS TRUE GUERRIERO was honored on her fourteenth birthday Friday evening with a dance at Bayou DeSiard country club. Mr. and Mrs. George Guerriero entertained at the party in the main ballroom between eight and eleven in the evening.

Others noted among the young dancers were SUANNE MAYO in blue chiffon with glittered bodice . . . SALLY HOWELL in dusty pink brocade styled with tunic over a straight skirt . . . and EVELYN JONES in blue, blue crepe cut on Empire lines . . . SHARYN MARCOVITZ was in flame chiffon . . . and SADIE HADDAD in a shift of gold brocade . . . JENNIFER JACKSON chose gold pumps with her Kelly green peau de soie . . . and red velvet was the choice of CARLA FISHMAN and MARY KOKINOS.

Assisting the Guerrieros as chaperones were the WELZIE GARRETTS and HERBERT MAYOS. The Abstracts provided music from eight until eleven.

menu included lobster mousse, sliced turkey, chili con queso, a tray of raw vegetables, cake and coffee. Thirty-five guests attended this party, including MARGIE LEE, here visiting from Atlanta.

Another election party was held in the home of RUTH and ROY LIUZZA on Beechwood drive. Ruth covered her table with a pink cloth overlaid with white lace. Large pink candles encircled with pink blossoms at the base formed the centerpiece. A standing buffet consisting of chicken salad sandwiches, barbecued cocktail sausages, and assorted dips was served throughout the evening. Eight couples were invited to await the returns.

Three tables of players started out with bridge games and ended listening to the election when BETTY and JIM SCHONLAU entertained Saturday night. When the games broke up, Betty served Saratoga torte, a divine concoction of whipped cream, English walnuts, and bitter chocolate.

JUDY and GENE WORTHEN invited six couples for dinner and return-listening last Saturday night. The living room of the Worthen home on Pargoud Boulevard was election center, with radio, television, telephones, and tally sheets going at a great rate. In the family room, guests served themselves at will from the buffet table. The menu included barbecued ham, green salad, baked beans, and mocha cream torte. Individual tables, each centered with candles, were laid with hand-painted china "placemats."

Over at the AYLMER MONTGOMERYS, JR., another party was in progress, this honoring out of town visitors. MARY LEE and RALPH KING JR. were cohosts for this, while honorees were JUNE and SCOTT MIZE of San Antonio, Texas, guests of JO and BILL MATTISON. Twenty guests attended.

Earlier Saturday, BROOKSIE HAMACKER was hostess at luncheon, honoring June, at her home on Park Avenue. Six guests were seated at a table centered with a horizontal arrangement of palest pink chrysanthemums in a long silver bowl. Chicken and broccoli casserole was served, with avacado and grapefruit salad, and for dessert, grasshopper pie.

A REAL MILESTONE was celebrated Wednesday night when BESSIE and FRED FUDICKAR marked their fiftieth wedding anniversary. A reception was held in their honor in the Paragon ballroom hosted by their children, the FRED FUDICKARS JR.; JOHN BENNETT FUDICKARS of Ferriday; and BEN PACES of Westfield, New Jersey. As they greeted friends, the honorees stood in an alcove formed by white columns topped with pyramids of yellow roses. Bessie was wearing heaven blue chiffon with dyed-to-match lace bodice, and a gold-enthroated white orchid.

Two refreshment tables were set up on the ballroom floor. One, centered with the white and gold anniversary cake, held branched candelabra with burning gold tapers. The silver punch bowl on the second table was flanked with pyramids of yellow roses in silver urns. Several hundred friends called to congratulate the Fudickars.

Home on leave from the foreign service are the H. FILHIOL BEARDS JR., who are visiting relatives here. Pat and Buddy have completed three years in Calcutta, where he served as vice-consul. Last Saturday night, VANCE and BEN BREARD entertained at home honoring the visitors. Members of the young married set, former friends of Buddy's, were invited to call between seven and nine. Pat wore for the party a cocktail suit made to her measure on their recent trip to Hong Kong. 'Twas of wool and silk in muted shades of dark blues.

Magnificent hot house camellias were used in Vance's decorations in the living room and throughout the reception area. Candelabra-epergnes were used on table and buffet in the dining room, with tall candles and camellias in various colors. Pat and Buddy are in New Orleans this weekend; will return this week to be here until the end of the month, when they depart for a new post in Colombo, Ceylon.

Election night offers an excellent time for at-home parties, with ready-made entertainment possibilities in listening returns. Several such parties were planned about town Saturday night. JUANITA and CLAY WILSON, AURELINE and CHARLES SLADE were hosts at the Wilson home. Guests found a voting booth set up in the living room, providing opportunities for each to express his preference. Pictures of candidates, each with a caption lettered on the poster, covered the walls. Music for the party was provided by a do-it-yourself band consisting of violin, guitar, piano, and drum, brought and played by guests.

On the table, Juanita and Aureline used white gladioli and chrysanthemums in a silver bowl. The buffet

MISS TRUE GUERRIERO was honored on her fourteenth birthday Friday evening with a dance at Bayou DeSiard country club. Mr. and Mrs. George Guerriero entertained at the party in the main ballroom between eight and eleven in the evening.

Rumors of things-to-come foreshadow one of the busiest winters in several seasons hereabouts. This coming Saturday night, January 25, Bayou DeSiard Country Club has scheduled another of its popular oyster roast parties. These events feature raw and roasted oysters, boiled shrimp, potato salad, baked beans, and draught beer on an all-you-can-eat basis. Music will be provided for dancing by Phraes Corder and his combo.

And speaking of Bayou DeSiard, plans are in the works for Mardi Gras, traditionally the biggest single event of the club's social calendar. This year the theme "Under the Big Top" foretells a return to gay costuming of the past. Club members are already working on costume ideas for the big night, February 8.

This coming Tuesday night, January 21, "Ballet Folklorico de Mexico" is scheduled in Howard Auditorium, Ruston, for members of Louisiana Tech Concert Association. This group of nearly one hundred performers is internationally acclaimed as one of the finest troupes of its kind in the world.

One of the most charming affairs on the coming events calendar will surely be the children's style show to be sponsored by PI BETA PHI alumnae in early March. MARTHA UPSHAW is to be chairman of the affair; with models to be children of Pi Phi alums, and clothes to be furnished by DeeDee's. Moneys raised go to the mountain school maintained by the sorority at Gatlingburg, Tenn. More details later on this.

Today is the birthday of the South's gentleman non pareil, Robert E. Lee, the Virginian's Virginian. Here are lines about him from Rosemary and Stephen Vincent Benet's "Book of Americans":

This is Lee of the battles, Virginia's bright star,
The sword of the South through the long Civil War.
The pride of the armies who strove for the grey,
He was never defeated till Gettysburg's day.
But Meade was the horseshoe he didn't quite bend—
And then came Ulysses S. Grant —and the end.
The end of the war and the fall of the South.
They looked to Marse Robert to see what he'd say.
He looked at his sword and he put it away.
He said, "We have fought. We have lost. Let it stand.
Forget the old rancors and work for your land.
Put your heart to the task and your hand to the plow.
The war days are over. We're one country, now."
And he spent the last years of his life as the head
Of Washington College and taught for his bread.
While all through the South the quick whispering ran,
"If Marse Robert does it, I reck on we can."

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

According to producer-director Stanley Donen, some of the screen's most romantic stars are bashful in real life. He said, "In general, the popular male movie stars are very retiring when you meet them at a party. Very few of the leading movie heroes have the glib personalities they are given in their scripts."

Mr. Donen does not feel that this is due to the fact that these men are egotistical and do not care about others. It is more that their interests are limited to the entertainment field and they just have no point of contact with those in other walks of life. They are very much caught up in their careers. He said that some of these stars are very difficult to be married to, because when they retreat from strangers they resent it if their wives are more outgoing.

Stanley Donen is a pleasantly extroverted type himself and one of Hollywood's most successful young producer - directors. He recently produced and directed the new Audrey Hepburn - Cary Grant film, "Charade." He emphasized that the above is a generality and that there are some large exceptions.

Of Mr. Grant he said, "Cary Grant is a very urbane man and gets along beautifully in any group. He is cosmopolitan, has lived all over the world, and has good friends in many business fields.

He indicated that Kirk Douglas is another exception to the shy type, saying, "Kirk is interested in being more than just an actor. He is interested in the whole world. He impresses you the same way off screen and on, just brimming over with energy and brashness."

It is interesting to us women to know what men find attractive in a woman, what type appeals to them. Naturally this differs, depending on the man. Stanley Donen said, "Cary likes to be informal. The women who impress him do not have to be young and glamorous. He likes the candid, forthright, but smoothly charming type."

About Kirk Douglas he said, "He is very happily married. Any woman hoping to marry someone like Kirk would have to be an easy mixer with all types of people and would have to have a wide cultural background."

Top Stylists Favor Ruffles In Fashions

When three high fashion collections seen in a row include ruffles, a trend is in the making. The mass fashion market may be going sportive, but top stylists are turning to ruffles for spring.

Often they are combined with strictly tailored suits, whose jackets are worn open to disclose ruffle-front blouses. But ruffled jackets are seen, too, and many dresses have softly ruffled necklines and sleeve edgings.

The ruffled trend is strong in evening dresses, particularly on those with revealing necklines. The shock of many a plunge neckline is softened by a ruffle all around, as launched by Dior in Paris. Ruffled hemlines are also much used.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Camellias Featured

By MRS. LESLIE CLARK
Guest Writer

There was the usual stampede at the Garden Center Wednesday afternoon after Dr. John Wright's outstanding TV show. Aren't we lucky to have him so near!

Dr. Wright featured the camellia in four of his designs and these exquisite blossoms were grown by Mrs. T. J. McKinney and Nick Medica of Ruston in their plastic houses. The varieties used were Gen. Patton, Dr. John D. Bell, A. Auduson, Jesse Katz, Irene Coker, Morning Glow, Winifred Womack, Coral Pink Lotus, Miss Biloxi, Drama Girl, and Betty Sheffield.

Two designs featured Dr. Wright's gorgeous chrysanthemums — and he is much too modest about these. Few people can compare with what he produces in horticulture and design with these flowers. Thank you, Dr. Wright for being so generous with your time and talents. We all look forward to your shows.

'SIMPLE SECRET'

To plant a tree with enthusiasm is one simple secret of successful living. He who plants a tree gives a bit of himself to future generations. In early days it was a usual thing, especially among the Romans, to plant a tree at the birth of a son, and from it's vigor to forecast the prosperity of the child.

Such a tree was believed to be so bound up with the fate of the family that they watched over it with great anxiety. What a horrible thought! The Atomic Age does have it's blessings. We can plant a tree and watch over it with just loving care. As new is the time to plant a tree, perhaps you will share my enthusiasm for one tree dear to my heart, the Maple. Nowhere else in the world are trees so much worth while as in the South. Shade is always welcome especially in summer. These trees bud early and need ample space to develop their natural symmetry to be most effective.

Nursery grown trees are best. In making a selection look for one that is straight in the trunk and is evenly branched on all sides. The size to buy depends upon how much you want to pay. One that is between eight and 12 feet high is best. Keep it heavily watered during dry times the first year and longer if a drought develops. Fertilizers for shade trees should be rich in nitrogen. Two of the loveliest of the species are the red maple and the sugar maple. These two trees grow from Florida to Texas, Missouri, Georgia, Tennessee and Indiana.

The red maple is sometimes called the swamp maple and water maple. In earliest spring its buds begin to turn from dull maroon winter color to a brighter, lighter hue that grows more and more intense until when the blossoms actually open, the whole tree seems to glow in the sunlight. The leaves, stems and winged seeds are red all summer and in the autumn the tree is brilliant. This one reaches a height of from 40 to 50 feet. The southern sugar maple is a larger tree growing 90 to 120 feet high with gray furrowed bark and likes rich soil. Only another tree of the genus can compete with its beauty in the Fall. The maples are such rewarding trees they deserve more recognition in our lovely Louisiana.

CAMELLIA SHOW

The Ruston's Men's Camellia Society in cooperation with The Lincoln Garden Council is presenting their second annual camellia show at the Baptist Student Center Chapel on Saturday, February 8 from 1 to 9 p.m. and Sunday, February 9 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Exhibitors are wanted and entries will be received from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Late entries will not be eligible for competition, but will be displayed. Entries and ribbons must remain in place until close of show at 4 p.m. There is no limit to the number of entries an exhibitor may make: However, only one entry may be made in each class. Honorable mention may be given at the discretion of the judges.

The next T.V. program will be presented by the Epps Garden Club, of which Mrs. Eulah B. Gregsby is president.

Give Plants Ample Water For Growth

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northwest Louisiana Camellia Club on various phases of the growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. The articles discuss the different problems and aspects of camellia propagation. Todays' article is a completion of an article begun in last Sunday's edition dealing with jobs to be done this time of year.)

There are several most important duties that should be attended to during this period. First and foremost, the old chore of watering. This may seem a little far-fetched now, but actually we frequently have dry periods during the winter when camellias will suffer unless they receive artificial watering. Again, the grower is cautioned to water deeply and thoroughly, rather than lightly and too frequently.

Many have found that freezes do less damage to plants and foliage that do not thaw too quickly. For this reason it is a good idea to erect a light, temporary shelter of some kind in front of or over plants growing in exposed locations where early morning sun reaches them. Quick thawing injures the foliage, while slower thawing results in less damage. The Camellia japonica is actually an extremely hardy shrub.

COVER ISSUE

This brings up another controversial subject — to cover or not to cover. For gentle freezes a light covering sometimes saves opening buds, but for more than a few degrees of frost this effort is generally wasted. However, a light framework can be set up over a plant and covered with some tight material or one of the wonderful new plastics. If one can extend an electric line to such an enclosure and burn a 100-watt bulb overnight, he might even save the opening Alba Plenas.

Blooms protected in this manner, if entered in a camellia show, could bring about an argument as to whether or not they would be eligible for competition in the class for flowers grown in the open.

On the other hand, one may do more damage than good if he lets the covering rest directly on the plant or if he leaves the cover on in succeeding days when the temperatures climb. In the first case, rain or ice may increase the weight of the covering and break or damage the plant. In the second, the plant will scald as it thaws without a chance for a movement of air around to help it. If one goes to the trouble to cover the plant, it is certainly worthwhile to make the small additional effort required of removing the covering.

PRICE FOR BLOOMS

However, if one has good-sized plants with quite a few buds, one should resign to the loss of a certain percentage as part of the price one pays for enjoying gorgeous flowers during the dead of winter. After a freeze, remove the dead flowers to improve the appearance of the plant, and it will not be long before other buds will begin opening. (Twist the old blooms off. If one breaks or cuts the twigs, he will remove the growth buds for next year's new foliage and flowers.)

One often thinks of fertilizing as a duty connected with the growing season, not with the blooming season. Actually, one should begin to think about fertilizing during the winter months. Some authorities seem to agree that a feeding should be applied shortly before the plants finish blooming, so that the nutritive elements may be ready for assimilation just as soon as nature urges the plant into the root stimulation following the flowering period. It is the opinion of many that the early blooming varieties should be fertilized in the midst of winter; the later varieties a little later. Slow acting fertilizers like cottonseed meal and dairy manure are indicated for winter feeding.

USE CAREFULLY

Commercial mixtures are faster-acting, and if applied too early might stimulate growth just in time for it to be killed by a late freeze. Be sure to remember that commercial fertilizers are concentrated and should be used sparingly.

In closing, there are two more suggestions. As the flowers fade, they should be picked either from the plants or from the ground where they have fallen. These blooms should be disposed of by wrapping them in newspapers or bags before putting them in the trash can. Better still, burn them if the facilities are available. This may help prevent the spread of disease and it is certainly desirable so that yards may be kept neat and clean.

PROTECTING FLOWERS

Finally, opening buds may be protected from contact damage if one will fasten back overhanging leaves or branches with ordinary clothes pins. This is especially good in protecting fine specimens for exhibitions or flower shows.

Even during the climax of the camellia year, the blooming season, the true enthusiast will not relax his interest in the health and well - being of his prized plants and will do all he can to keep them in first-class condition. The enjoyment of the fine blooms the plants produce is heightened by the satisfaction one feels in having done his best to improve the quality of his plants and blooms.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

By the time a home workshop enthusiast gets around to buying a drill press, he has had considerable experience with a portable electric drill. This stands him in good stead in the operation of the stationary power tool. Many of the basic rules governing the use of the drill press are the same as those which must be followed in handling the portable drill.

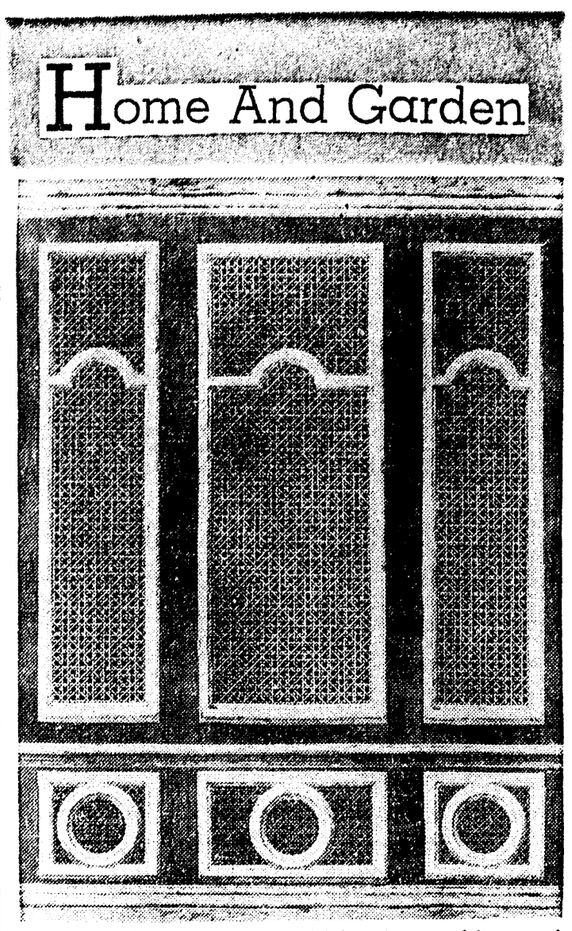

When the material can be brought to the machine, nothing equals the drill press for precision drilling. In addition, the drill press has a surprising versatility, being capable of such other operations as mortising, routing, shaping, planing, sanding, grinding, sawing and polishing. New attachments for this machine are constantly being introduced, enabling it to be used on virtually any type of material in contrast to its original job of drilling holes in metal.

DRILL PRESSES

You can get drill presses in floor and bench models. The floor model is complete in the sense that it can be placed anywhere in the workshop and put immediately to work. The bench model, suitable for the average home shop, must be attached to a bench or stand. The size rating of a press is indicated in inches — 12 inches, 15 inches, 18 inches and so on. That means the machine will work to the center of a 12-inch circle, a 15-inch circle or whatever the rating is. The depth of hole that can be bored in one stroke on most home machines is about four inches. Greater depths are possible by using longer bits and either raising the table or lowering the machine head.

Most presses are made so that several speeds can be utilized. It is a fundamental of drilling operations that slower speeds are required for more difficult drilling jobs, especially when using large-size bits.

It is important to use lubricants for certain kinds of drilling. For example, although brass and cast iron are drilled when dry, steel usually should be lubricated with kerosene or sperm oil, aluminum and soft alloys with kerosene or soda water. The manufacturer's instruction booklet will make other suggestions along that line.

Ideal Time For Planting

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Some of our severest cold days come in January and February. However, between cold snaps, you, Mrs. Homemaker, can find opportunities to take care of major planting problems.

This month is an ideal time to plant or transplant shrubs and trees in the landscape. No group of plants can add more interest to the landscape than the holly family.

There are many varieties which will grow in this area. The native American holly is excellent. Two other native hollies, the deciduous holly and youpon, are worthwhile choices. They do not grow as large as the American holly, but they may be used for specimen accent or for grouping. Many hybrids such as the Chinese holly are fine evergreens with berries that can play an important role. Other berrying plants which you may want to consider include pyracantha with its orange and red berries or the nandina with its clusters of red berries and colorful foliage.

Another job for January or February in the garden is pruning. It is a good idea to prune evergreens and deciduous shrubs other than those which flower during early spring. Pruning most spring flowering shrubs will remove the flower buds that have already formed.

Trees also can be pruned. Remove damaged branches by cutting back to sound wood on a primary limb. Do not leave stubbs and make all cuts flush with the branch. All wounds larger than two inches in diameter should be painted with a tree wound compound available at nurseries or garden centers.

BATTER ON CHICKEN

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have trouble making batter stick to fried chicken, our food scientists of USDA have good news for you. To give the chicken a nice crispy crust and prevent the coating from coming off during frying they recommend you make a change in procedure. The new method calls for cooking the chicken before rolling it in batter. Then the fried pieces are dipped and cooked in deep fat just long enough to brown and cook the coating. The reasons given why batter tends to come off when it is applied before the chicken is cooked is that chicken parts lose about one fourth of their weight during frying, from evaporation of moisture. When raw pieces, dipped in batter, are cooked the batter coagulates before the meat shrinks. Then the shrinkage and pressure from steam cause a loose fitting coating that peels readily. It was found too, that dredging the chicken in flour or some other thickener before dipping it in batter does not reduce this peeling.

SOMETHING NEW

Men's wear manufacturers, increasing their use of very lightweight fabrics, have been making slacks and trousers with black inner pockets to eliminate any possible show through. In addition to this, one company has added black renew pockets to their line. Replacement pockets made of sturdy black cotton with a band of black Irontex sewn to the top. No sewing is required. The user simply irons the new pocket in place then cuts away the old worn pocket.

A companion product to saran wrap in roll form, the new squares are pre-cut sheets of the same film, interleaved with tissue paper for easy handling. The new product is packaged in a flat envelope style package. The squares are a size designed to fill most household wrapping needs. The package of squares is said to cost about the same as a comparable wrap in roll form.

H. D. COUNCIL MEETING

Mrs. Fred Riser, president of the Ouachita Parish Council, asked me to remind you council members of the meeting Friday at 10 a.m. at the Agricultural Auditorium. There are several important matters that need your help in making a decision.

Mrs. Grubbs, your vice president, has secured Dr. Carroll Summer to bring you important information on "Birth certificates."

SUEDE GARMENTS

Retaining the loveliness of suede garments requires that you give them proper care, Mrs. Homemaker. If they become spotted with grease or oil don't try to spot clean with a cleaning solvent. Solvents will leave an ugly ring and remove the color wherever the fluid touches the suede. The spot must be removed by an expert who has the chemicals and tools to remove them. Brush suede often with a good rubber brush. Brush briskly and hard when the garment shows the least bit of soil. Never brush suede with a steel or brass brush as it will cut the suede.

A THOUGHT

Wallpaper Panels Add An Illusion

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

One of the 20 winning designs selected by the American Institute of Interior Designers, it can give a room new identity.

"The idea is to enable decorators to change the architecture of a room to some extent, giving the illusion of architectural interest with wallpaper. Everyone is interested in new architectural developments because they are necessary in giving a room distinctive quality," he says.

VARIOUS SIZES

The paper panels were designed to achieve a series of panels that would be as useful as possible over the largest variety of sizes, he says. From a selection of sizes, the panels should be able to fit into any room.

This involved quite a few technical problems, Semonin says, but he finally hit on something that "was reasonably simple."

The paper walls come in a three-part plan — a background paper in plain woodgrain; cane panels which can be used with it in a choice of sizes — 18 or 28 inch widths and 6 feet in height; a dado that is 28 inches high. The same dado molding is used inverted at the ceiling.

The woodgrain paper looks like random - width aged oak. Besides a natural look it is available in a variety of colors including red and blue. The aim was to achieve the look of old paneling that had been painted and antiqued, says Semonin.

Cane panels have a darker value behind caning to give greater depth to side walls. Though the cane panels are basically Louis XVI design, they may be used with any furniture because the design has been simplified.

IDEA EXPANDED

The idea of an entire room of wood paneling on paper already has been expanded since its inception, says Semonin, because it opens up whole new avenues of thinking. Additional architectural elements are being added to the dado, and they are working on a companion paper for the ceiling, he says.

The effect of trompe l'oeil was achieved by the very realistic design based on an original cane paneling in the library of Louis W. Bowen, from whose wallpaper studios the paper envolved. It can be used in dining rooms, living rooms, bedrooms, doors, screens and in other imaginative ways.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Red Berries Add Color

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

One of the most striking and beautiful pictures in our winter landscape here in the South is that of the bright red berries of our deciduous hollies in front of cedars. Male cedars, at this time of the year, begin to turn slightly golden as the tiny cones on them begin to ripen and turn yellow with the pollen they contain.

Females are covered with bright blue berries, and it is this combination of yellow and blue conifers with masses of holly berries in front that makes up such a striking combination during January and February.

In order to have this composition on your home grounds, you will have to find a cedar (Virginia redcedar, which is really Juniperus virginiana) that has berries on it and move it from a nursery or from the woods into a group of males and then set out a non-evergreen holly or several of these bushes in front of your cedars.

SEVERAL TYPES

There are several of the bushy, non - evergreen hollies. Any one of them is beautiful with red berries. The commonest one in Southern woods and fields is Ilex decidua. The main stalk of this species is beautiful in itself in winter because of its light silvery color in the sunlight. These hollies are upright shrubs or small trees that, when cultivated, cover themselves with tiny red berries in thick cloud of red. Birds do not bother the berries until winter has nearly passed, so your picture will not be eaten as bird food until spring and daffodils are on the way with a new picture.

Since the hollies as well as the red-cedars are male and female on separate bushes or trees, you will have to find a young deciduous holly that has just begun to have berries. Cut it back and move it with no dirt at all, but with all the roots you can leave on it. In a year or so, new shoots will have arisen from the bottom, and the old wood you moved will produce berries with the new. Not much pruning is ever needed for these big shrubby hollies, but they are amenable to any trimming you may need to do in order to fit them to your space.

BRILLIANT HEDGES

All the different kinds of non-evergreen hollies make a brilliant flaming hedge in winter. The main stems are covered with short stubby little side branches a few inches long that look almost as if they were long prickles. Not many animals will try to get through these sharpened stubs.

In wet places, the chokeberries, another group of native red - berried shrubs can take the place of the deciduous hollies though the hollies like very moist sites, too. Choke - berries are lower growing.

By the time a home workshop enthusiast gets around to buying a drill press, he has had considerable experience with a portable electric drill. This stands him in good stead in the operation of the stationary power tool. Many of the basic rules governing the use of the drill press are the same as those which must be followed in handling the portable drill.

When the material can be brought to the machine, nothing equals the drill press for precision drilling. In addition, the drill press has a surprising versatility, being capable of such other operations as mortising, routing, shaping, planing, sanding, grinding, sawing and polishing. New attachments for this machine are constantly being introduced, enabling it to be used on virtually any type of material in contrast to its original job of drilling holes in metal.

DRILL PRESSES

You can get drill presses in floor and bench models. The floor model is complete in the sense that it can be placed anywhere in the workshop and put immediately to work. The bench model, suitable for the average home shop, must be attached to a bench or stand. The size rating of a press is indicated in inches — 12 inches, 15 inches, 18 inches and so on. That means the machine will work to the center of a 12-inch circle, a 15-inch circle or whatever the rating is. The depth of hole that can be bored in one stroke on most home machines is about four inches. Greater depths are possible by using longer bits and either raising the table or lowering the machine head.

Most presses are made so that several speeds can be utilized. It is a fundamental of drilling operations that slower speeds are required for more difficult drilling jobs, especially when using large-size bits.

It is important to use lubricants for certain kinds of drilling. For example, although brass and cast iron are drilled when dry, steel usually should be lubricated with kerosene or sperm oil, aluminum and soft alloys with kerosene or soda water. The manufacturer's instruction booklet will make other suggestions along that line.

Give Plants Ample Water For Growth

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northwest Louisiana Camellia Club on various phases of the growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. The articles discuss the different problems and aspects of camellia propagation. Todays' article is a completion of an article begun in last Sunday's edition dealing with jobs to be done this time of year.)

There are several most important duties that should be attended to during this period. First and foremost, the old chore of watering. This may seem a little farfetched now, but actually we frequently have dry periods during the winter when camellias will suffer unless they receive artificial watering. Again, the grower is cautioned to water deeply and thoroughly, rather than lightly and too frequently.

Watering is particularly important at the onset of cold spells; the root and plants withstand low temperatures much better if they have sufficient moisture.

Many have found that freezes do less damage to plants and foliage that do not thaw too quickly. For this reason it is a good idea to erect a light, temporary shelter of some kind in front of or over plants growing in exposed locations where early morning sun reaches them. Quick thawing injures the foliage, while slower thawing results in less damage. The Camellia japonica is actually an extremely hardy shrub.

COVER ISSUE

This brings up another controversial subject — to cover or not to cover. For gentle freezes a light covering sometimes saves opening buds, but for more than a few degrees of frost this effort is generally wasted. However, a light framework can be set up over a plant and covered with some tight material or one of the wonderful new plastics. If one can extend an electric line to such an enclosure and burn a 100-watt bulb overnight, he might even save the opening Alba Plenas.

Blooms protected in this manner, if entered in a camellia show, could bring about an argument as to whether or not they would be eligible for competition in the class for flowers grown in the open.

On the other hand, one may do more damage than good if he lets the covering rest directly on the plant or if he leaves the cover on in succeeding days when the temperatures climb. In the first case, rain or ice may increase the weight of the covering and break or damage the plant. In the second, the plant will scald as it thaws without a chance for a movement of air around to help it. If one goes to the trouble to cover the plant, it is certainly worthwhile to make the small additional effort required of removing the covering.

PRICE FOR BLOOMS

However, if one has good-sized plants with quite a few buds, one should resign to the loss of a certain percentage as part of the price one pays for enjoying gorgeous flowers during the dead of winter. After a freeze, remove the dead flowers to improve the appearance of the plant, and it will not be long before other buds will begin opening. (Twist the old blooms off. If one breaks or cuts the twigs, he will remove the growth buds for next year's new foliage and flowers.)

One often thinks of fertilizing as a duty connected with the growing season, not with the blooming season. Actually, one should begin to think about fertilizing during the winter months. Some authorities seem to agree that a feeding should be applied shortly before the plants finish blooming, so that the nutritive elements may be ready for assimilation just as soon as nature urges the plant into the root stimulation following the flowering period. It is the opinion of many that the early blooming varieties should be fertilized in the midst of winter; the later varieties a little later. Slow acting fertilizers like cottonseed meal and dairy manure are indicated for winter feeding.

USE CAREFULLY

Commercial mixtures are faster-acting, and if applied too early might stimulate growth just in time for it to be killed by a late freeze. Be sure to remember that commercial fertilizers are concentrated and should be used sparingly.

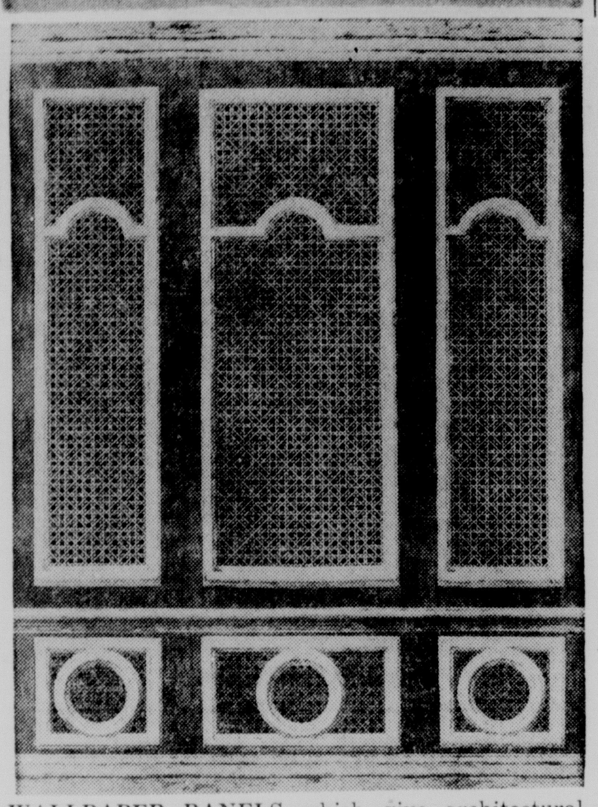

In closing, there are two more suggestions. As the flowers fade, they should be picked either from the plants or from the ground where they have fallen. These blooms should be disposed of by wrapping them in newspapers or bags before putting them in the trash can. Better still, burn them if the facilities are available. This may help prevent the spread of disease and it is certainly desirable so that yards may be kept neat and clean.

PROTECTING FLOWERS

Finally, opening buds may be protected from contact damage if one will fasten back overhanging leaves or branches with ordinary clothes pins. This is especially good in protecting fine specimens for exhibitions or flower shows.

Even during the climax of the camellia year, the blooming season, the true enthusiast will not relax his interest in the health and well - being of his prized plants and will do all he can to keep them in first-class condition. The enjoyment of the fine blooms the plants produce is heightened by the satisfaction one feels in having done his best to improve the quality of his plants and blooms.

Ideal Time For Planting

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Some of our severest cold days come in January and February. However, between cold snaps, you, Mrs. Homemaker, can find opportunities to take care of major planting problems.

This month is an ideal time to plant or transplant shrubs and trees in the landscape. No group of plants can add more interest to the landscape than the holly family.

There are many varieties which will grow in this area. The native American holly is excellent. Two other native hollies, the deciduous holly and youpon, are worthwhile choices. They do not grow as large as the American holly, but they may be used for specimen accent or for grouping. Many hybrids such as the Chinese holly are fine evergreens with berries that can play an important role. Other berrying plants which you may want to consider include pyracantha with its orange and red berries or the nandina with its clusters of red berries and colorful foliage.

Another job for January or February in the garden is pruning. It is a good idea to prune evergreens and deciduous shrubs other than those which flower during early spring. Pruning most spring flowering shrubs will remove the flower buds that have already formed.

Trees also can be pruned. Remove damaged branches by cutting back to sound wood on a primary limb. Do not leave stubbs and make all cuts flush with the branch. All wounds larger than two inches in diameter should be painted with a tree wound compound available at nurseries or garden centers.

BATTER ON CHICKEN

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have trouble making batter stick to fried chicken, our food scientists of USDA have good news for you. To give the chicken a nice crispy crust and prevent the coating from coming off during frying they recommend you make a change in procedure. The new method calls for cooking the chicken before rolling it in batter. Then the fried pieces are dipped and cooked in deep fat just long enough to brown and cook the coating. The reasons given why batter tends to come off when it is applied before the chicken is cooked is that chicken parts lose about one fourth of their weight during frying, from evaporation of moisture. When raw pieces, dipped in batter, are cooked the batter coagulates before the meat shrinks. Then the shrinkage and pressure from steam cause a loose fitting coating that peels readily. It was found too, that dredging the chicken in flour or some other thickener before dipping it in batter does not reduce this peeling.

SOMETHING NEW

Men's wear manufacturers, increasing their use of very lightweight fabrics, have been making slacks and trousers with black inner pockets to eliminate any possible show through. In addition to this, one company has added black renew pockets to their line. Replacement pockets made of sturdy black cotton with a band of black Irontex sewn to the top. No sewing is required. The user simply irons the new pocket in place then cuts away the old worn pocket.

A companion product to saran wrap in roll form, the new squares are pre-cut sheets of the same film, interleaved with tissue paper for easy handling. The new product is packaged in a flat envelope style package. The squares are a size designed to fill most household wrapping needs. The package of squares is said to cost about the same as a comparable wrap in roll form.

H. D. COUNCIL MEETING

Mrs. Fred Riser, president of the Ouachita Parish Council, asked me to remind you council members of the meeting Friday at 10 a.m. at the Agricultural Auditorium. There are several important matters that need your help in making a decision.

Mrs. Grubbs, your vice president, has secured Dr. Carroll Summer to bring you important information on "Birth certificates."

SUEDE GARMENTS

Retaining the loveliness of suede garments requires that you give them proper care, Mrs. Homemaker. If they become spotted with grease or oil don't try to spot clean with a cleaning solvent. Solvents will leave an ugly ring and remove the color wherever the fluid touches the suede. The spot must be removed by an expert who has the chemicals and tools to remove them. Brush suede often with a good rubber brush. Brush briskly and hard when the garment shows the least bit of soil. Never brush suede with a steel or brass brush as it will cut the suede.

Never lose your capacity for enthusiasm.

Wallpaper Panels Add An Illusion

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The average room in new homes and apartments resembles a shoe box, lacking architectural details to make it interesting, says designer Douglass Semonin, who put an award-winning paneled room on paper.

One of the 20 winning designs selected by the American Institute of Interior Designers, it can give a room new identity.

"The idea is to enable decorators to change the architecture of a room to some extent, giving the illusion of architectural interest with wallpaper. Everyone is interested in new architectural developments because they are necessary in giving a room distinctive quality," he says.

VARIOUS SIZES

The paper panels were designed to achieve a series of panels that would be as useful as possible over the largest variety of sizes, he says. From a selection of sizes, the panels should be able to fit into any room.

This involved quite a few technical problems, Semonin says, but he finally hit on something that "was reasonably simple."

The paper walls come in a three-part plan — a background paper in plain woodgrain; cane panels which can be used with it in a choice of sizes — 18 or 28 inch widths and 6 feet in height; a dado that is 28 inches high. The same dado molding is used inverted at the ceiling.

The woodgrain paper looks like random - width aged oak. Besides a natural look it is available in a variety of colors including red and blue. The aim was to achieve the look of old paneling that had been painted and antiqued, says Semonin.

Cane panels have a darker value behind caning to give greater depth to side walls. Though the cane panels are basically Louis XVI design, they may be used with any furniture because the design has been simplified.

IDEA EXPANDED

The idea of an entire room of wood paneling on paper already has been expanded since its inception, says Semonin, because it opens up whole new avenues of thinking. Additional architectural elements are being added to the dado, and they are working on a companion paper for the ceiling, he says.

The effect of trompe l'oeil was achieved by the very realistic design based on an original cane paneling in the library of Louis W. Bowen, from whose wallpaper studios the paper envolved. It can be used in dining rooms, living rooms, bedrooms, doors, screens and in other imaginative ways.

Red Berries Add Color

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

One of the most striking and beautiful pictures in our winter landscape here in the South is that of the bright red berries of our deciduous hollies in front of cedars. Male cedars, at this time of the year, begin to turn slightly golden as the tiny cones on them begin to ripen and turn yellow with the pollen they contain.

Females are covered with bright blue berries, and it is this combination of yellow and blue conifers with masses of holly berries in front that makes up such a striking combination during January and February.

In order to have this composition on your home grounds, you will have to find a cedar (Virginia redcedar, which is really Juniperus virginiana) that has berries on it and move it from a nursery or from the woods into a group of males and then set out a non-evergreen holly or several of these bushes in front of your cedars.

SEVERAL TYPES

There are several of the bushy, non - evergreen hollies. Any one of them is beautiful with red berries. The commonest one in Southern woods and fields is Ilex decidua. The main stalk of this species is beautiful in itself in winter because of its light silvery color in the sunlight. These hollies are upright shrubs or small trees that, when cultivated, cover themselves with tiny red berries in thick cloud of red. Birds do not bother the berries until winter has nearly passed, so your picture will not be eaten as bird food until spring and daffodils are on the way with a new picture.

Since the hollies as well as the red-cedars are male and female on separate bushes or trees, you will have to find a young deciduous holly that has just begun to have berries. Cut it back and move it with no dirt at all, but with all the roots you can leave on it. In a year or so, new shoots will have arisen from the bottom, and the old wood you moved will produce berries with the new. Not much pruning is ever needed for these big shrubby hollies, but they are amenable to any trimming you may need to do in order to fit them to your space.

BRILLIANT HEDGES

All the different kinds of non-evergreen hollies make a brilliant flaming hedge in winter. The main stems are covered with short stubby little side branches a few inches long that look almost as if they were long prickles. Not many animals will try to get through these sharpened stubs.

In wet places, the chokeberries, another group of native red - berried shrubs can take the place of the deciduous hollies though the hollies like very moist sites, too. Choke - berries are lower growing.

CURTAIN CALL

As "Once Upon a Mattress" gathers momentum in rehearsal, a number of people have responded to the call for help backstage. Mary Lou Clay, Joellen Thompson and Dan Palser have joined Johnny McCoy in executing technical director Lonny Fraze's handsome set designs. Quite a few more could be used in this department, so we hope to report the names of others next week.

Nancy Franklin has enlisted the services of Mmes. Garland Moore, C. A. Shoudy, D. R. Perry, Paul Doyle, Earle Sherman and R. H. Evans in the considerable task of making costumes for the show. Jennie Welch's mother and Paul Wank have also offered their talents and here again we expect to have more volunteers listed in later columns.

EXOTIC PATTERNS

A glimpse of the costume sketches reveals colorful materials and exotic patterns that will not only enhance the beauty of the production, but also give us valuable additions to the wardrobe for future use or rental to other groups.

Considering that "Once Upon A Mattress" has been in rehearsal for only two weeks, the chorus has made remarkable progress with the songs. Visitors have been impressed with the tuneful Mary Rodgers score which rehearsal pianist Velma Willey characterizes as one of the best she has ever heard.

This is not surprising as Mary Rodgers is the daughter of Richard Rodgers, the distinguished composer of such musicals as "The King And I," "South Pacific," and "Oklahoma." Yet her own musical career has not depended on her father, for as Brooks Atkinson said in the New York Times, "She has a style of her own, an inventive mind and a fund of cheerful melodies."

The songs from "Once Upon A Mattress" deserve to be better known.

GREATEST ACCLAIM

"The Swamps Of Home," received the greatest acclaim from the New York reviewers, but we think Monroe will go for "Bravo, Bravissimo," and "In A Little While." Of course, the Carol Burnett numbers are largely in a humorous vein, like "Shy," which Murray Burfford does with great comic effect.

From Shreveport comes news of the marriage of Pat Peyton who was so sensational as the mayor's wife in "Bye Bye Birdie." Newlyweds Carolyn and Bob Evans are established in Houston.

Scherck Bogen is off on a business trip to Italy which will probably bring us news of theatre activities in all the cities where he stops.

The Travis MacClendons have donated Little Theatre an old upright telephone which is so often called for whenever we do a play of an earlier period.

The chorus of "Once Upon A Mattress" boasts no less than four AOPi Sorority members. They are Barbara Borgkvist, Jan Evans, Shelley Goodwin and Gail Shoudy. Ann Murray Burfford is also an AOPi, so the Northeast chapter is well represented.

Norma Brandle has been at work on the Green Room wall again with the result that we are up to date on our tiles. It takes about thirty minutes to letter each tile in the artistic fashion which is Norma's trademark, so when fifteen accumulate, we really have occasion to be grateful to her.

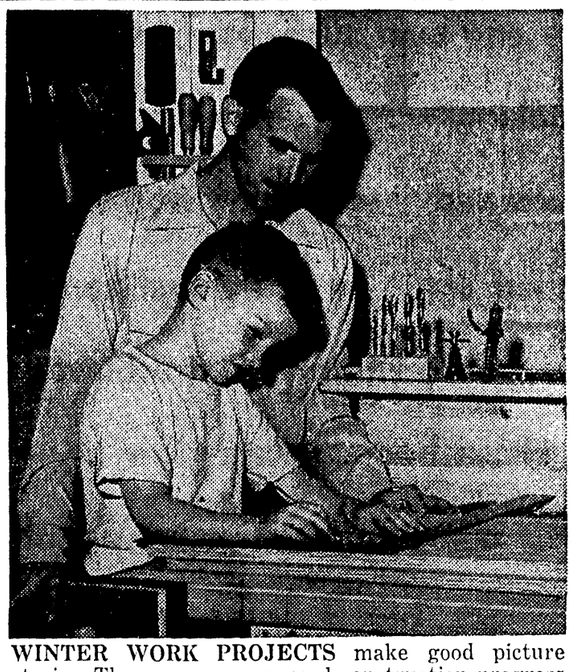

Some of our readers may be interested in knowing that the amateur and semi-professional theatre groups in Houston are currently offering "Take Her, She's Mine," scheduled as our closing show of the season, "Harvey," "The Imaginary Invalid" and "The Wizard Of Oz."

The latest New York show to draw raves from nearly all the reviewers is "The Chinese Prime Minister," by Enid Bagnold, who also wrote "The Chalk Garden." Called "an elegant and civilized comedy," it stars Margaret Leighton.

Entertainment

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Winter is project time for many — a time to work on the attic spare room or basement recreation room or to set up the gift ping pong table or even install a darkroom.

Whatever the project, it is ideal material for a picture story. A series will preserve the frustrations — and their solutions — as well as the fun of family participation in any of the home work.

HEART OF PICTURE

Many photographers consider it is sufficient to make just a "before and after" picture. Perhaps they get too involved in actual construction to take time out to make progress pictures. But that is where the heart of picture series is . . . the running story of events as the project evolves.

This is true also of any hobby shares or any games they play together. And, when it comes to an interest-story - telling set of photos, what can beat a candid series of Junior deeply absorbed in his pet project, perhaps building a model airplane or Sister dressing or nursing her brood of dolls?

Since we're dealing with wintertime indoor projects, illumination will be a matter either of using available light with high speed films or of shooting flash. For Picture-taking projects you can boost the level of room illumination with brighter lamps or put a reflector bulb in the room to "lighten" the work. With today's high - speed color films and certainly with black-and-white films, pictures by existing light are easy to make. Be sure to use Type B color slide films which are balanced for tungsten lighting. Use a light meter so that the entire roll of film is properly and consistently exposed.

LIGHT ELEMENT

If the existing light isn't bright enough for available light picture taking, you can shoot with flash. To avoid the monotony of straight flash - on - camera pictures, there are several ways to add variety to flash illumination. At the same time they produce more interesting results in the light and shadow.

The simplest technique is merely to remove the flash from the camera and hold it up high to one side of the camera. You must have a flash extension cord and attachment for your camera for this effective technique. It improves the facial lighting and separates the shadow from immediately behind the head when properly held. Sometimes another person can hold the flash while the photographer concentrates on the camera or the flash can be clamped in off-camera position for easier one-person operation.

Another technique to try is bounce flash. Here you aim the flash at a light-colored wall or ceiling so that the light bounces off and onto the subject. It provides a softer illumination but requires opening the lens about one and one-half times to compensate in making the exposure.

Another way to soften the full force of direct flash is to remove the reflector from the flash and shoot with the bare flashbulb. When shooting very close, this — or spreading a handkerchief over the flash to diffuse the light — prevents "Burned out" faces.

PLAY CAME FIRST

NEW YORK (AP) — Edwin O'Connor, a novelist doubling for the first time as a playwright gives priority to specific needs in "I Was Dancing."

He developed the story initially for the stage, then cast it in book form, doing tinkering in the transition.

"In writing a play," he explains, "a novelist has to learn what to leave out. The play is to be produced as originally written. It's the novel that I've changed around."

Garson Kanin has optioned the script for presentation next season. The novel is to be published this spring.

Stamp News

Kenya received its independence last month and immediately issued a set of 14 new stamps entitled "UHURU" which means freedom. The stamps depict local industry and landscapes. Some of the designs show cattle ranching, wood carving, heavy industry, fishing industry, new national flag, coffee industry and tea industry. The lowest value is 5c and the highest 20 shillings.

Postmaster General John A. Gronouski has announced that the 1964 stamp in the "fine arts" series will be a reproduction of a painting by Charles Marion Russell who is widely regarded as one of the greatest artists of the Old West. The 5c multicolored stamp will have first - day ceremonies in Great Falls, Mont., the hometown of Russell, on March 19. It will be the 100th anniversary of the artist's birth. He was born the same year that Montana became a territory. The Russell stamp will be the fourth in the "fine arts" series which began in 1961 with "The Smoke Signal" by Frederic Remington. In 1962 the stamp featured Winslow Homer's seascape, "Breezing Up." Last year it was a drawing of Columbia jays by John J. Audubon.

Pakistan has issued a new stamp featuring the building and installations of Multan Thermal Power Station. These words also appear on the 13 paisa stamp. The people in Pakistan are proud of this new power station since it will generate the power to run factories, as well as to provide light, heat and cool air to thousands of homes in West Pakistan.

On the last day of 1963 the Philippines issued two stamps marking the 10th anniversary of the inauguration of the late Ramon Magsaysay, third president of the Philippines. This is the second stamp in the series to popularize expressions issued by Philippine presidents. The 6 sentimo and the 30 sentimo stamps feature the words "I believe that he who has less in life should have more in law."

Remember when youngsters walked to school, ran errands, and got the exercise they needed? If parents insisted on more walking—and less riding—our youngsters would benefit. The automobile, however, is only one factor that deprives them of activity. Television is another. The average high school student now spends 15 to 30 inactive hours a week watching it. These are some of the reasons why all schools should have a daily period of planned, supervised, vigorous activity for all boys and girls. CURTAIN CALL

As "Once Upon a Mattress" gathers momentum in rehearsal, a number of people have responded to the call for help backstage. Mary Lou Clay, Joellen Thompson and Dan Palser have joined Johnny McCoy in executing technical director Lonny Fraze's handsome set designs. Quite a few more could be used in this department, so we hope to report the names of others next week.

Nancy Franklin has enlisted the services of Mmes. Garland Moore, C. A. Shoudy, D. R. Perry, Paul Doyle, Earle Sherman and R. H. Evans in the considerable task of making costumes for the show. Jennie Welch's mother and Paul Wank have also offered their talents and here again we expect to have more volunteers listed in later columns.

EXOTIC PATTERNS

A glimpse of the costume sketches reveals colorful materials and exotic patterns that will not only enhance the beauty of the production, but also give us valuable additions to the wardrobe for future use or rental to other groups.

Considering that "Once Upon A Mattress" has been in rehearsal for only two weeks, the chorus has made remarkable progress with the songs. Visitors have been impressed with the tuneful Mary Rodgers score which rehearsal pianist Velma Willey characterizes as one of the best she has ever heard.

This is not surprising as Mary Rodgers is the daughter of Richard Rodgers, the distinguished composer of such musicals as "The King And I," "South Pacific," and "Oklahoma." Yet her own musical career has not depended on her father, for as Brooks Atkinson said in the New York Times, "She has a style of her own, an inventive mind and a fund of cheerful melodies."

The songs from "Once Upon A Mattress" deserve to be better known.

GREATEST ACCLAIM

"The Swamps Of Home," received the greatest acclaim from the New York reviewers, but we think Monroe will go for "Bravo, Bravissimo," and "In A Little While." Of course, the Carol Burnett numbers are largely in a humorous vein, like "Shy," which Murray Burfford does with great comic effect.

From Shreveport comes news of the marriage of Pat Peyton who was so sensational as the mayor's wife in "Bye Bye Birdie." Newlyweds Carolyn and Bob Evans are established in Houston.

Scherck Bogen is off on a business trip to Italy which will probably bring us news of theatre activities in all the cities where he stops.

The Travis MacClendons have donated Little Theatre an old upright telephone which is so often called for whenever we do a play of an earlier period.

The chorus of "Once Upon A Mattress" boasts no less than four AOPi Sorority members. They are Barbara Borgkvist, Jan Evans, Shelley Goodwin and Gail Shoudy. Ann Murray Burfford is also an AOPi, so the Northeast chapter is well represented.

Norma Brandle has been at work on the Green Room wall again with the result that we are up to date on our tiles. It takes about thirty minutes to letter each tile in the artistic fashion which is Norma's trademark, so when fifteen accumulate, we really have occasion to be grateful to her.

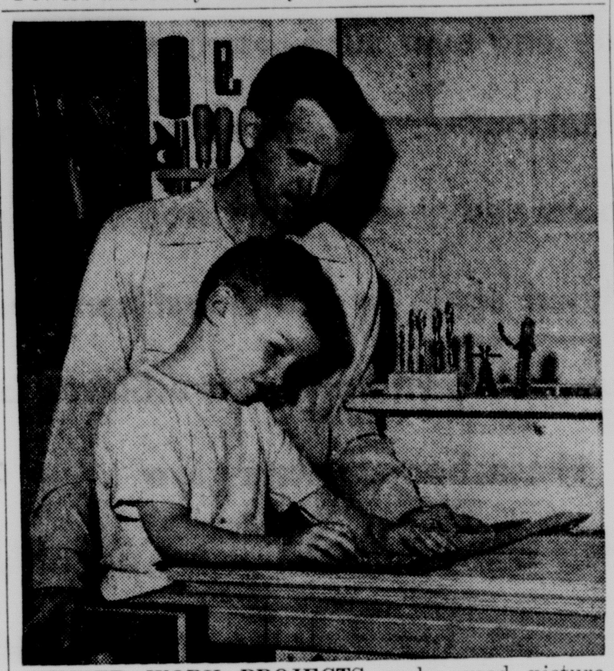

Some of our readers may be interested in knowing that the amateur and semi-professional theatre groups in Houston are currently offering "Take Her, She's Mine," scheduled as our closing show of the season, "Harvey," "The Imaginary Invalid" and "The Wizard Of Oz."

The latest New York show to draw raves from nearly all the reviewers is "The Chinese Prime Minister," by Enid Bagnold, who also wrote "The Chalk Garden." Called "an elegant and civilized comedy," it stars Margaret Leighton.

Entertainment

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Winter is project time for many — a time to work on the attic spare room or basement recreation room or to set up the gift ping pong table or even install a darkroom.

Whatever the project, it is ideal material for a picture story. A series will preserve the frustrations — and their solutions — as well as the fun of family participation in any of the home work.

HEART OF PICTURE

Many photographers consider it is sufficient to make just a "before and after" picture. Perhaps they get too involved in actual construction to take time out to make progress pictures. But that is where the heart of picture series is . . . the running story of events as the project evolves.

This is true also of any hobby shares or any games they play together. And, when it comes to an interest-story - telling set of photos, what can beat a candid series of Junior deeply absorbed in his pet project, perhaps building a model airplane or Sister dressing or nursing her brood of dolls?

Since we're dealing with wintertime indoor projects, illumination will be a matter either of using available light with high speed films or of shooting flash. For Picture-taking projects you can boost the level of room illumination with brighter lamps or put a reflector bulb in the room to "lighten" the work. With today's high - speed color films and certainly with black-and-white films, pictures by existing light are easy to make. Be sure to use Type B color slide films which are balanced for tungsten lighting. Use a light meter so that the entire roll of film is properly and consistently exposed.

LIGHT ELEMENT

If the existing light isn't bright enough for available light picture taking, you can shoot with flash. To avoid the monotony of straight flash - on - camera pictures, there are several ways to add variety to flash illumination. At the same time they produce more interesting results in the light and shadow.

The simplest technique is merely to remove the flash from the camera and hold it up high to one side of the camera. You must have a flash extension cord and attachment for your camera for this effective technique. It improves the facial lighting and separates the shadow from immediately behind the head when properly held. Sometimes another person can hold the flash while the photographer concentrates on the camera or the flash can be clamped in off-camera position for easier one-person operation.

Another technique to try is bounce flash. Here you aim the flash at a light-colored wall or ceiling so that the light bounces off and onto the subject. It provides a softer illumination but requires opening the lens about one and one-half times to compensate in making the exposure.

Another way to soften the full force of direct flash is to remove the reflector from the flash and shoot with the bare flashbulb. When shooting very close, this — or spreading a handkerchief over the flash to diffuse the light — prevents "Burned out" faces.

PLAY CAME FIRST

NEW YORK (AP) — Edwin O'Connor, a novelist doubling for the first time as a playwright gives priority to specific needs in "I Was Dancing."

He developed the story initially for the stage, then cast it in book form, doing tinkering in the transition.

"In writing a play," he explains, "a novelist has to learn what to leave out. The play is to be produced as originally written. It's the novel that I've changed around."

Garson Kanin has optioned the script for presentation next season. The novel is to be published this spring.

Stamp News

Kenya received its independence last month and immediately issued a set of 14 new stamps entitled "UHURU" which means freedom. The stamps depict local industry and landscapes. Some of the designs show cattle ranching, wood carving, heavy industry, fishing industry, new national flag, coffee industry and tea industry. The lowest value is 5c and the highest 20 shillings.

Postmaster General John A. Gronouski has announced that the 1964 stamp in the "fine arts" series will be a reproduction of a painting by Charles Marion Russell who is widely regarded as one of the greatest artists of the Old West. The 5c multicolored stamp will have first - day ceremonies in Great Falls, Mont., the hometown of Russell, on March 19. It will be the 100th anniversary of the artist's birth. He was born the same year that Montana became a territory. The Russell stamp will be the fourth in the "fine arts" series which began in 1961 with "The Smoke Signal" by Frederic Remington. In 1962 the stamp featured Winslow Homer's seascape, "Breezing Up." Last year it was a drawing of Columbia jays by John J. Audubon.

Pakistan has issued a new stamp featuring the building and installations of Multan Thermal Power Station. These words also appear on the 13 paisa stamp. The people in Pakistan are proud of this new power station since it will generate the power to run factories, as well as to provide light, heat and cool air to thousands of homes in West Pakistan.

On the last day of 1963 the Philippines issued two stamps marking the 10th anniversary of the inauguration of the late Ramon Magsaysay, third president of the Philippines. This is the second stamp in the series to popularize expressions issued by Philippine presidents. The 6 sentimo and the 30 sentimo stamps feature the words "I believe that he who has less in life should have more in law."

Remember when youngsters walked to school, ran errands, and got the exercise they needed? If parents insisted on more walking—and less riding—our youngsters would benefit. The automobile, however, is only one factor that deprives them of activity. Television is another. The average high school student now spends 15 to 30 inactive hours a week watching it. These are some of the reasons why all schools should have a daily period of planned, supervised, vigorous activity for all boys and girls. Open House Set For Power Plant

RUSTON (Special) — Ruston's new municipally owned power plant, built at a cost of approximately $2,000,000 will be opened officially today. Open House is scheduled for 2 to 5 p.m.

Construction of the plant, capable of generating 14,500 KW, was approved by Ruston property owners as part of a $2,500,000 bond issue voted in 1962. A total of $500,000 of this sum will be invested in improving and modernizing the city's power distribution system.

May Enineering Company, Kansas City, Mo., were engineers for the project. Lincoln Builders, of Ruston, were building contractors.

The new plant, located on McDonald Street on a 20-acre, city-owned tract to be used for industrial development, houses a steam generating turbine with a rated capacity of 14,500 KW. This capacity is equal to the combined output being generated in Ruston's present 8 diesel-generator plant on East Mississippi Avenue.

Mayor John W. Perritt, acting as spokesman for Ruston's City Council, said, "Completion of the new power plant is the fulfillment of a dream shared by many forward-looking Ruston citizens. As an integral part of our City's overall planned expansion program, the new power plant assures efficient uninterrupted electric service to our growing list of residential and commercial users, and to potential new industrial consumers.

"We are proud indeed of the new plant, and extend a most cordial invitation to area visitors to tour the new structure this afternoon."

Members of City Council forming the power plant committee were W. A. J. Lewis, Chairman; J. J. Thigpen and J. W. Spears. Councilmen Jeff Lain and Ernest Shaw will serve on the plant tour committee. P. G. Grambling Jr., is Ruston's superintendent of utilities. W. E. Carriker has been named superintendent of the new steam power plant.

Panama Businessmen Want U.S. To Relinquish Canal

PANAMA CITY (UPI) —A committee of Panamanian businessmen warned the United States Saturday it must yeild to Panamanian demands on the Canal Zone because Panama is not going to back down.

The committee said not only must current demands be negotiated but the United States must prepare for eventual withdrawl from the waterway, leaving it entirely under Panama's control.

The views were spelled out for U.S. and other foreign newsmen here by a committee of top Panama business, professional and industrial figures who formed what they called "the national committee for reaffirmation."

Their news conference support for President Robert Chiari's tough stand on the issue came as evacuated U. S. Embassy and embassy-connected personnel waited in the zone for instructions from Washington on their next move in the deadlocked Panama crisis.

U. S. officials indicated that no personnel of embassy-connected agencies such as AID and Peace Corps members would go back into Panama at the moment even though they are technically welcome to do so as far as the Panama government is concerned.

Embassy officials were reported studying the situation and keeping in touch with Washington by telephone.

There was no indication that the embassy staff, ousted from Panama Friday in the wake of the diplomatic break and collapse of mediation efforts, would be ordered back to the United States immediately.

Acting as the three main spokesmen Saturday for the "affirmation committee" were Dr. Octavio Fabrega, a former foreign minister, and industrialists Jaquin J. Vallarino and Bev Mario Arosemena.

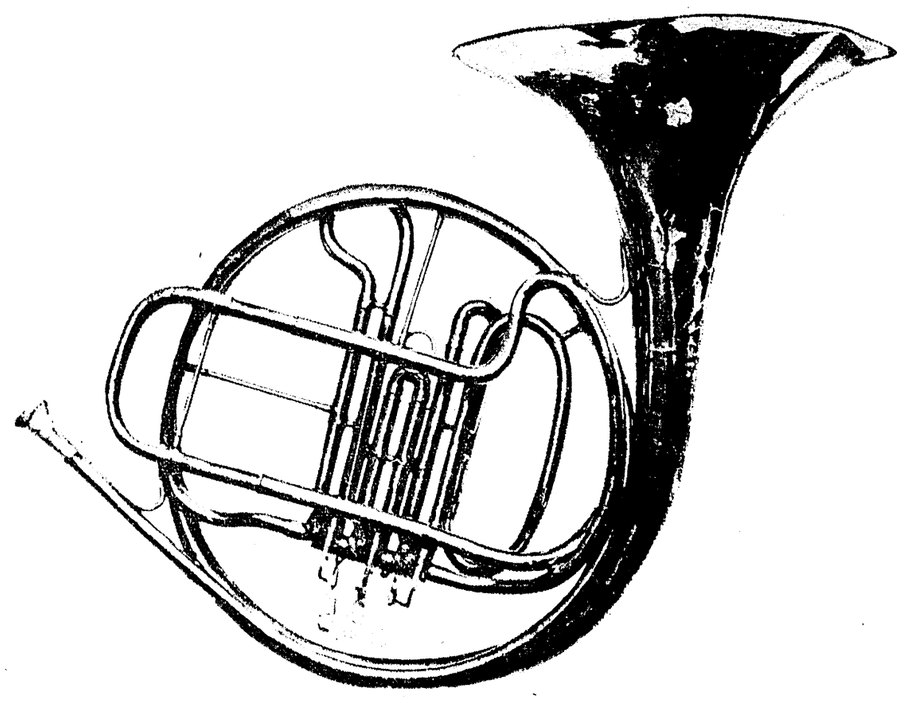

The committee said it is 100 per cent behind the government and announced it will send a delegation to Washington within the next few days to tell Panama's story to the American people.

"We are greatly concerned that the U. S. public is getting an image of the suitation which does not conform to the facts," Fabrega said. "A picture has been painted that Panama's demands are influenced by the Communists.

"This is not true. The Communists and Castroites did not motivate these demands which represent a unified national movement.

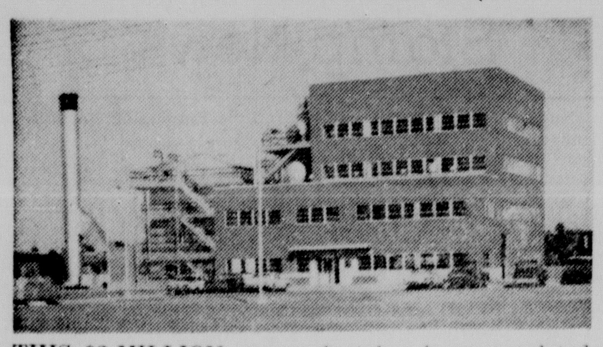

Since we opened our doors a little over four years ago we have been continually amazed at the tremendous reaction to the new concept in home furnishing which we offer. Then and now we hear over and over such comments as "indescribably magnificent" . . . "it's absolutely breathtaking" . . . I've never seen anything like it" . . . "Ohhhh, how beautiful!" The oooohs and aaaahs don't stop with what visitors see in our showroom. They're echoed again by individual homemakers when they see the Trend House look in their own homes, as achieved by our five full-time interior designers. These homemakers glow . . . with pride in the knowledge that their home furnishings are not only richly elegant and impeccably correct, but they are of the highest quality . . . quality that means lastingness. Wise buyers know . . . that there's no substitute for honest quality, and reactions from our customers prove that quality costs no more at Trend House. STRIKE AT OAK GROVE

Burglars Foiled By Tear Gas Rig

OAK GROVE (Special) — A homemade tear gas rig Saturday was credited with foiling safecrackers' attempts to break open the safe at W. H. Keller Ford Motor Co., here Friday night.

According to local law enforcement authorities, the burglars had bad luck at two other business establishments but managed to crack the safe at a fourth one, escaping with about $200.

At the Keller place, the burglars had attempted to "punch" the safe mechanism when they unknowingly punctured a tear gas bomb that Keller had attached to the inside wall of the door. Keller told officials that he could smell the tear gas when he opened the office Saturday at 7 a.m. He speculated that his place was the last hit and that the gas apparently scared off the safecrackers.

Entry was attemtped at Joe's Superette by jimming the front door. According to the owner, Joe Broadway, nothing was missing and entrance was apparently not gained. He said that burglars broke into the store Monday night and stole about $5 in change plus eight cartons of cigarettes. The front door glass was broken with a soft drink bottle that night.

The burglars pryed open the door of a small office on the Chrisman and Moore used car lot but found nothing of value there according to officials.

Officials said that the safe at the lumber company was also punched and speculated that at least three persons were involved in the break-ins. They said that attempts at lifting fingerprints revealed that the burglars wore gloves.

Monroe Police Arrest Bastrop Negro In Theft

A 42-year-old Bastrop Negro was arrested early Saturday morning by Monroe police and booked for the theft of a wallet containing $12. The suspect, also booked at 1:38 a.m. for drunk and disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace, was identified as Issac Lyons, of Rt. 2, Bastrop.

According to police reports, Lyons entered the bunkhouse of the Monroe Truck Center, 3101 Louisville Ave., and allegedly stole the wallet from the pant's pocket of a Littleton, Colo., trucker, Charles Donelson. Donelson's brother, Geraldean Donelson, of Grand Junction, Colo., told officers that he was awakened by the suspect and made an attempt to halt him. The men had stopped at the truck step to get some sleep.

He said that after a brief chase by himself and his brother, the suspect escaped. Later, with the help of a service station attendant, the men apprehended Lyons and held him for police. Police said that Lyons admitted the theft after questioning and showed them where he had discarded the wallet under a wrecked car on a nearby lot.

Housing Project Bigger, 'Better' Than Past Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson soft pedaled the point in his State of the Union message, but the administration's new housing program is going to be both bigger and—according to the men responsible for it — better than the current one.

The administration will propose an increase in the rate at which public housing is built and a variety of new techniques in slum clearance and urban renewal.

The President's language was modest enough. Avoiding superlatives, he spoke of a "revised" program aimed at realizing the goal of "a decent home for every American family."

But Housing and Home Finance Administrator Robert Weaver gave a somewhat different impression when he talked to newsmen at Austin, Tex., following a meeting with Johnson earlier this month.

"Large and significant" were the words Weaver used to describe the program that will be sent to Congress early in February.

This change may be hard to spot in the budget, Weaver pointed out, since the cost of the new housing program will be spread over more than one year. He predicted that the housing part of the new budget won't be much larger than in the current spending program.

The administration will ask for more public housing at all eligible income levels. The current program calls for 100,000 units over a three-year period. While Weaver declined to say how many units the new program will contain, he said there would be "a significant increase."

The White House will ask Congress to expand the program of federal insurance for home owners' mortgages

Housing Project Bigger, 'Better' Than Past Year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson soft pedaled the point in his State of the Union message, but the administration's new housing program is going to be both bigger and—according to the men responsible for it — better than the current one.

The administration will propose an increase in the rate at which public housing is built and a variety of new techniques in slum clearance and urban renewal.

The President's language was modest enough. Avoiding superlatives, he spoke of a "revised" program aimed at realizing the goal of "a decent home for every American family."

But Housing and Home Finance Administrator Robert Weaver gave a somewhat different impression when he talked to newsmen at Austin, Tex., following a meeting with Johnson earlier this month.

"Large and significant" were the words Weaver used to describe the program that will be sent to Congress early in February.

This change may be hard to spot in the budget, Weaver pointed out, since the cost of the new housing program will be spread over more than one year. He predicted that the housing part of the new budget won't be much larger than in the current spending program.

This would be in keeping with the President's intention to help every American fulfill "his basic hopes," but "without any increase in spending."

Briefly, here is what Weaver said will be in the new housing program:

The administration will ask for more public housing at all eligible income levels. The current program calls for 100,000 units over a three-year period. While Weaver declined to say how many units the new program will contain, he said there would be "a significant increase."

The White House will ask Congress to expand the program of federal insurance for home owners' mortgages

WHY PAY RENT?

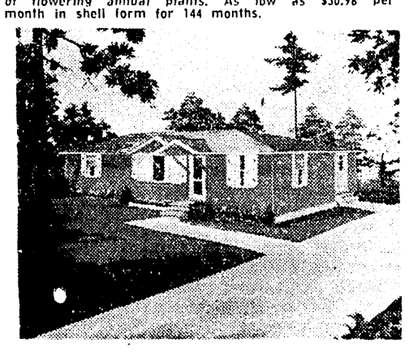

A gracious home providing ample space for the large family. The El Dorado offers more livable space for less cost than any other shell home on the market today. The exterior styling makes this home an asset to any neighborhood and the interior is designed especially for the wife with a discerning taste for future arrangements. As low as $49.98 per month in shell form for 144 months.

For compactness, convenience, and attractive design, Modern Homes offers you the Corvette. This model has two bedrooms which are ideal for a small family or couple and it features the increasingly popular living and dining room combination. The Corvette boasts a large kitchen to make cooking a pleasure. The gabled entrance lends itself to arrangements of flowering annual plants. As low as $30.98 per month in shell form for 144 months.

Your home away from home. The Riverette is a well constructed, beautiful looking house that will be ideal for a vacation cottage on the beach, lake, river or mountains. It features a large sun deck, full size bedroom, large living and dining area. The attractive extended roof overhang makes this home especially more comfortable in hot weather. As low as $31.98 per month in shell form for 144 months.

Simplicity marks this home with distinction—simplicity with original touches in the popular hip roof, large scenic window, and fashionable planter. The roof, which, as an overhang, provides both protection and coolness. The Bonneville also has ample storage space and it features the separate dining room and kitchen. As low as $41.98 per month in shell form for 144 months.

WHAT EVE THOUGHT WAS TO BE A "TYPICAL PARISIAN PARTY" TURNS OUT TO BE A PROPOSAL OF MARRIAGE!

MR. VICTOIRE, I GUESS I'M PRETTY UNSOPHISTICATED ABOUT THESE THINGS. BUT TWO PEOPLE JUST DON'T UP AND MARRY WITHOUT KNOWING LOTS ABOUT EACH OTHER.

ABOUT YOU WE KNOW SUFFICIENT, MLLE. JONES.

YOU DO?

INDEED. WE KNOW, FOR EXAMPLE, THAT YOUR FAMILY IS ONE OF THE OLDEST IN AMERICA. THAT YOUR SISTER IS HIGH UP IN POLITICAL CIRCLES...

...THAT YOUR FATHER IS A PRINCE OF COMMERCE, YOUR ESTATE AN OBJECT OF WONDER FOR MILES AROUND. IN SHORT, MY DEAR, YOU ARE OF EXCELLENT STOCK.

BUT OF COURSE, MY SON.

SO I COME FROM A LONG LINE OF NOBLEMEN MILLIONAIRES, EH? AND MY SISTER PRACTICALLY RUNS THE COUNTRY—THAT IS, WHEN MY FATHER ISN'T BUSY SHOWING OFF OUR ESTATE TO ADMIRING HORDES!

EVE— PLEASE!

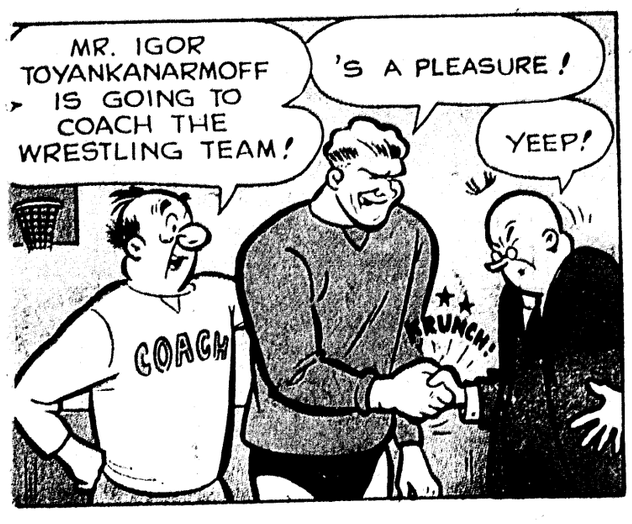

I...I WAS FORCED TO PERHAPS...AH... EXAGGERATE TO PLEASE MY FATHER YOU KNOW HOW IT IS?

NO! NO, I DON'T KNOW HOW IT IS! YOU TELL ME HOW IT IS.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I save all my newspapers.

I soak them in water and after a day or so I roll them into hard balls about the size of golf balls.

I then put them in the driveway where the sun will shine on them.

Be sure and squeeze out most of the water and roll them tight and hard, because the tighter you roll them the longer they will burn.

It's great to get all your kids out in the yard and have them do this for you! If you don't have any kids, use your neighbors' and give them a few lemonades! They love it. Olaf

POCKET OF PEACE

DEAR HELOISE

I cut a piece of nylon net off and folded it four times. I then stapled this to the inside of the shower curtain. It looks like a pocket on top of a sport shirt. I keep our bar of soap in this.

Now we can always find the soap without stooping. The nylon net allows it to dry and it doesn't get soft.

A. B.

DIRTY CLOTHESPINS?

DEAR HELOISE:

I snap four spring-type clothespins together to make a square. This opens the clamps to get the inside clean. Then I soak them in warm bleach water until they are clean.

Rinse the clothespins several times and lay them on a clean surface to dry. This renews all my wooden clothespins.

C. L. Murphy

BREEZY IRONING

DEAR HELOISE:

I hate to iron pillow slips, but can't stand to put them on the bed unironed.

I take them from the washer, put them directly on the pillows and hang them lengthwise on the clothesline with four clothespins and let them dry.

They appear to have been ironed and my pillows get an airing at the same time!

B.B.

DIVINITY IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

When making divinity candy, do not worry about that last bit of syrup which gets too hard to pour out of the pan.

Just set this aside until the batch of divinity is safely put away to cool, then take one-fourth cup of very finely-chopped walnuts and dump into the pan with hardened syrup.

Place this over a very low heat and stir the nuts around until the syrup softens again and the whole mess clings to the spoon.

Mildred Rapson

WARM MILK

DEAR HELOISE:

When a recipe calls for warm milk—instead of warming some milk in a pot on the stove—use instant dry milk. Pour the powder into a measuring cup and fill the cup with hot water from your water faucet. All you have to do is stir . . . and presto!

It's no muss, no fuss, and you have warm milk in a few seconds.

Mrs. T. H. Harders

SINK STRATEGY

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a bachelor but I sure can wash dishes in a hurry. I pour detergent on a wet sponge, hold the dishes under the water faucet, wipe with the sponge, scald and put in the drainer.

I never put glasses in the dish drainer. Takes up too much space and sometimes it leaves them with water rings. I set the glasses—bottom side up—on a big heavy bath towel.

The thick pile absorbs all the moisture, and nary a water ring. For those who have tile drainboards, this also prevents chipping.

Mark Evans

DEAR HELOISE:

I always put a drop of cologne on the tip of each pillowcase in my guest room. My guests always comment how lovely and fresh the bed smells.

J.M.

FROSTED COOKIES

DEAR HELOISE:

I spread my leftover cake icing between graham crackers. They make real tasty sandwich cookies for the kiddies. They may also be frozen for future use.

Carol E.G.

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who have basements, an old worn-out umbrella, and who do laundry . . .

Just remove the cloth from the umbrella and hang the handle across a beam in the basement or utility room. It's absolutely fabulous for drying baby's diapers, husband's socks, etc.

Maggie

DEAR HELOISE:

You can make a wonderful holder for your bathroom brush by cutting away the upper part of a plastic bleach container. This looks very neat in the bathroom, too.

Bettie Rollis

DEAR HELOISE:

A clove of garlic cut in half and rubbed around the inside of a wooden salad bowl will season the salad but will not give it too strong a flavor for those who cannot eat garlic!

Earl Simpson

DEAR HELOISE:

I use a pipe cleaner to hold my stitches when knitting. The wire in the pipe cleaner helps to get the stitches on the needle, and the little fuzz around it keeps them from slipping off.

You can turn back the ends of the pipe cleaner and the stitches will stay on this way

Hattie Madsen

SWEET CORN

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a little tip I've had up my sleeve for some time.

When cooking fresh corn in water—either on the cob or cut off—drop a tablet or so of saccharine (or a teaspoon or two of sugar) depending on the amount of corn to be cooked, in the water. The corn will be tender and sweet.
